TO

FREDERICK,

BY DIVINE PERMISSION

LORD BISHOP OF LONDON,

AND SOMETIME

BISHOP OF EXETER,

IS

DEDICATED,

IN GRATEFUL REMEMBRANCE

OF HIS

LORDSHIP'S SANCTION

AND

ENCOURAGEMENT.

PREFACE.

The Register of Bishop Edmund Stafford is comprised in two folio Volumes, written on vellum. They are in excellent preservation and practically perfect, for, although some of the leaves have been injured by damp, the margins are happily so ample that only a few unimportant words have perished.

Vol. I., the "Registrum Commune" or General Record of the Acts of the Bishop, consists, nominally, of 334 folios, but really of only 324: the numbering of the folios, (contemporaneous as far as CCXLVIII), passes from CXLIX to CLX by a clerical error which fortunately occurs in the middle of a sentence, so that it is quite certain that the leaves have not been lost. The General Title is as follows:—"Registrum Venerabilis Patris, Domini Edmundi de Stafforde, Episcopi Exoniensis, qui consecratus fuit in Capella Manerii de Lamhith, Wyntoniensis Diocesis, per Reverendissimum in Christo Patrem et Dominum, Dominum Willelmum Courtenay, Archiepiscopum Cantuariensem, die Dominica videlicet vicesimo die mensis Junii, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^{mo} Nonagesimo quinto, auctoritate Literarum Apostolicarum subscriptarum, assistentibus eidem Reverendis Patribus, Roberto Londoniensi, et Johanne Sarumensi, Episcopis." The said "Letters Apostolick," eight in number, together with a copy of the Oath taken by the Bishop-Elect, occupy ff. 1—3. The actual Register commences, at fol. 4, with a "licencia absentandi ab ecclesia," in favour of John Hacche, Rector of South Molton, dated at the Bishop's House in London, 14th July, 1395; and it ends on fol. 248, with Letters-Dimissory granted to one Peter Sturte, 3rd September, 1419—followed by the first line of another intended entry:—"Noverint universi quod nos, Edmundus, miseracione Divina Exoniensis Episcopus, ex—; but here the record of the Bishop's work was cut short by his death.

The remainder of the volume is taken up with a complete and valuable Register of all the Ordinations held by Bishop Stafford and by his Suffragans (ff. 249——299), followed by a very interesting series of Wills, sixty in number (ff. 300——334). The back of folio 334 and a fly-leaf at the end are occupied by a rude attempt at an Index,—Notanda in hoc Registro"—written at different times and by several hands, and of no value whatever.

Vol. II. is commonly known as the Register of "Institutions," with which it is mainly concerned; but its contents are of a somewhat miscellaneous character. It comprises 364 folios, nominally, but really there are only 352; and it commences with the Institutions by the Vicars-General of the Diocese, during the Bishop's prolonged residence in London. The first Vicar-General was Ralph Tregrisiou, Dean of Exeter, and his Register occupies ff. 1.——15. Its General Title is as follows:—"Registrum Reverendi Viri Magistri Radulphi Tregrisiou, Legum Doctoris, Decani Exoniensis, Venerabilis in Christo Patris et Domini, Domini Edmundi, Dei Gracia Exoniensis Episcopi, ipso Venerabili Patre in remotis agente Vicarii in Spiritualibus Generalis, de Presentacionibus et Institucionibus, virtute et auctoritate cujusdam Commissionis sibi facte et inferius descripte: xiij die mensis Julii, Anno Domini Millesimo CCC^{mo} nonagesimo quinto, prefatus Magister Radulphus Commissionem dicti Venerabilis Patris recepit, in hec verba." The document referred to is dated London, 5 July; and the first Institution under its authority was that of John Noble, priest, to the Rectory of Horwood, on the 30th of the same month; the last that of Thomas Prydel, priest, to the Chantry of St. Leonard at Ralegh, 12th March, 1399—1400. "Et sic finiunt Instituciones et Commissiones tempore prefati Magistri Radulphi Tregrisiou, Vicarii-Generalis antedicti." Tregrisiou was succeeded by Robert Rygge, S.T.P., Chancellor of the Cathedral, whose Commission (fol. 15) is dated Crediton, 27th September, 1400, and his Register commences, on the same page, with the Institution of John Lucas, chaplain, to the Vicarage of Tavistock, on the 17th of October in the same year. This is followed by three Institutions; after which this Register becomes a "Registrum Commune," occupying ff. 16—26, and containing Institutions and Exchanges, Dispensations and Letters-Dimissory, arranged in chronological order from 8th October, 1400 to 20th March, 1402. Contemporaneously with this record of the Acts of the Vicars-General, kept at Exeter, a separate Register of Institutions by the Bishop himself was kept in London and elsewhere, and continued throughout his Episcopate. It occupies ff. 27——205; commencing with the collation of John Candlesly, clerk, to a Canonry and Prebend in the Church of Ottery, 5th July, 1395, and ending with the collation of Michael Lercedekne to a Canonry and the Prebend of Karswelle in the Church of Crediton, 3rd September, 1419, (See pp. 161, 2, infra).

At this point a gap occurs, more than half of fol. 205 having been cut away, as well as the three following leaves (206—208). It is probable however, that we have no loss to lament here; at any rate there is no apparent break except in the numbering of the folios.[1]

[1] This Volume is made up of several distinct groups of MSS., bound together, and then paged throughout; the leaves at the end of each section, which had not been required for use having been apparently left at the time and removed

The next section, extending from fol. 209 to fol. 268 consists of a series of Commissions. They commence with the Commission to Dean Tregrisiou as Vicar-General, dated 20 June, 1395, and end with a Commission of Enquiry as to the vacancy and right of patronage of the Rectory of St. Leonard's, Exeter, issued 24 Aug., 1419. And here again the spare leaves two in number, have been excised since the Book was bound, and the paging passes from 268 to 271.

A miscellaneous collection of Documents follows,—

(1) The Statutes of the Royal Free Chapel of BOSHAM; ff. 271—274.

(2) The "Ordinacio" of the Chapel and Cemetery of KINGSTON in the parish of ERMINGTON; ff. 275—278.

(3) "Ordinacio," by the Bishops of London and Exeter, concerning certain rents and tenements bequeathed to OTTERY Collegiate Church; ff. 278—279.

(4) An "Ordinacio" concerning the right of Sepulture in the Chapel of FUNTINGTON, dependent on Bosham; ff. 280—281.

(5) The "Ordinacio" of the Chantry of Edmund de Stafford, in his Cathedral Church; ff. 281—284.

(6) Copies of Sundry Letters Apostolick [Boniface IX.], touching certain Appropriations, Indulgences, etc.; ff. 284—286.

(7) An "Ordinacio" between the Prior and Monks of COWICK and the Parishioners of ST. THOMAS'S, EXETER; ff. 287—288.

(8) The Appropriation, to SLAPTON COLLEGE, of the Rectory of LODDISWELL; ff. 288—290.

subsequently, no doubt by some one who wanted a little vellum. For the same thing, precisely, occurs at the end of other sections, where the pagination indeed is interrupted, but the dates seem to show clearly that nothing had been written upon the missing sheets.

(9) The "Ordinacio" of the Chapel of St. Edmund-the-King in the Town of KINGSBRIDGE; ff. 290—292.

(10) An "Ordinacio" between the Prior and Monks of COWICK, Rectors of Okehampton, and the Vicar of that Parish; ff. 292, 293.

(11) The Dedication of the Chapel and Cemetery of APULDRAM (dependent on Bosham); ff. 293b—295.

(12) The "Ordinacio" of the Vicarage of HEAVITREE; ff. 295b, 296.—At this point another and a more serious gap occurs; for no less than six leaves 297—302 are missing.

(13) A miscellaneous collection of copies of WRITS, etc. (A.D. 1395—1399); ff. 303—309.b

(14) "Feodum Archidiaconi Cantuariensis, qui intronizare debet singulos Episcopos Cantuariensis Provincie; fol. 309.b

(15) List of Persons who did homage to the Bishop for their Lands, from 28th Jan., 1395, to 30th July, 1419; ff. 310—311.b

(16) A continuation of the abovenamed collection of WRITS, etc., (A.D. 1400—1405); ff. 312—318.

(17) "Constitucio Provincialis contra Lollardos," etc., ff. 318—321.

(18) "Statutum Regium contra Lollardos" etc.; ff. 322—323.b

(19) "Lez estatuz faiz en parlement tenu a Leycestre le darrein iour davril, lan seconde du regne del Roi Henry V."; ff. 324—330.b [written on smaller sheets of vellum: fol. 331 has been cut out, but apparently the leaf was blank].

(20) A further continuation of the collection of WRITS, etc.; (A.D. 1409—1419); ff. 332—364.

At the end of this volume, also, a rough Index has been attempted on the fly-leaves, which have been much mutilated: it is, however, quite valueless.

It would seem that Richard Tyttesbury was Registrar —"actorum nostrorum scribam et registrarium (i, 14b)—from the beginning of Stafford's Episcopate till some time in May, 1409. His name occurs for the last time on the 2nd of May, and his Will was proved on the 7th of June. Roger Bolter succeeded him, and was holding the Office at the time of the Bishop's death.

The name of Tregrisiou's Registrar does not occur; but John Whyteway, a notary-publick, is twice mentioned by Rygge, his successor in the office of Vicar-General, as serving in that capacity. Both volumes are, with slight exceptions, written with great clearness and precision throughout; and their Latinity is, perhaps, above the average.[1]

Edmund de Stafford—I quote the late Dr. Oliver's "Lives of the Bishops of Exeter"[2]—was descended from a family rivalling the most antient and illustrious within the realm of England." He was the second son of Sir Richard de Stafford Knt. (who was summoned to Parliament as Baron Stafford of Clifton in 1371), by his first wife—Isabel, daughter of Sir Richard de Vernon, of Haddon and Harleston, by Maud eldest

[1] There is a curious instance in Vol. I (fol. 219b), of the trouble taken by the Scribe to secure variety of expression. Eight Letters-Dimissory were issued on the same day (31 March, 1416), and thus the several entries commence,—"Item ultimo die mensis predicti, ibidem"—"Item, eisdem die et loco"—Item, dictis die et loco"—"Item, prefatis &c."—Item, memoratis &c."—"Item, antedictis &c."—"Item, sepefatis &c."—"Item, prenominatis &c."—Blank spaces, left, evidently, for the insertion of possible entries, but not required, are always carefully cancelled by the words—"Hic nichil deficit."

[2] The occasional references to Oliver are to this Book, or to his "History of the City of Exeter." And I may mention here, that by "D'Arnis" is meant the "Recueil de Mots de la Basse Latinité" of W. H. Maigne D'Arnis, published by M. Abbé Migne; and by "Halliwell," his well-known "Dictionary of Archaic and Provincial words."

daughter and coheir of William de Camville, of Clifton, Staffordshire. Entering Holy Orders he was, at an early age, marked out for rapid advancement: from 1369 (in which year he was instituted to the Rectory of Worthen, Salop), to 1377 he was Prebendary of Ufton, and from 1377 to 1395 of Weeford, both in the Cathedral-Church of Lichfield: he was, also, Prebendary of Welton-Paynshall in Lincoln Cathedral, and of Knaresborough cum Bickhill in York Minster, as well as Dean of York, at the time of his promotion to the See of Exeter in January, 1395. He was consecrated by Archbishop Courtenay on the 20th of June in that year, the Bishops of London and Salisbury (Robert de Braybroke and John Waltham) assisting. Several years elapsed before the new Bishop visited his Diocese. Appointed Lord Chancellor on the 23rd of October, 1396, he retained that high Office till the abdication of Richard the Second, shortly after which event we find him at Bishop's Clyst on the 23rd of March, 1399—1400. About a month later he commenced his Primary Visitation, which was held almost continuously, and in no less than thirty-eight places in Devon and Cornwall. Returning to London in January, 1400-1, he became Lord Chancellor again in March, and held the Office till February, 1402-3. On the 29th of March we find him at Clyst; and his Register shews that, except on rare occasions, and for a few days only at a time, he never again left his Diocese; and it attests, as his Biographer justly observes, his diligence as an administrator, and his zeal for the good government of all classes of men committed to his charge. His second Visitation commenced in June, 1404, and was held in twenty-one places. The third Visitation was held in twenty-five places, during the months of May and October, 1411. In 1414, he left Clyst at the end of April, proceeding to Ilchester, Bruton, Chipping-Norton, Leicester, Lutterworth, Daventry, Warminster, Chard, and Honiton, and returning to Clyst on the 14th of June. From this time until his death on the 3rd of September, 1419, the active work of the Diocese at large was committed almost entirely to Suffragans, the Bishop residing in his Manor-Houses of Clyst, Crediton, and Chudleigh, and chiefly at Clyst. His bodily strength had, probably, failed him. But his work at home was incessant until the end, as the record of his acts, in an almost continuous series, amply proves. He died "in harness" at the age of 75, having instituted on the same day a Rector of Blackawton and a Canon of Crediton.[1]

I have compiled an "Itinerary" of the Bishop, after careful collation of all the dated entries in the two volumes of the Register. It will be found, I hope, of much service to Students, affording, as it does, the means of ready reference to the place where every recorded act of the Bishop was performed.

The plan of my Work needs but little explanation. It is no mere "Index," for I have given a full abstract of every important document. The "Institutions"[2] are indexed continuously under one head, for obvious reasons of convenience; and, for the sake, especially, of the Genealogical Student, I have dealt in like manner with the interesting and valuable series of Licences for Domestick Chapels and Oratories. The "Wills" and the "Ordinations" are, also, kept separate, as in the Register itself; and to the latter, as their necessary complement, I have added the numerous "Letters-Dimissory," which are entered [1] His Will, dated 24 July, 1418, and proved 18 Sept., 1419, is preserved in the Register of Archbishop Chicheley (i, 319, 20).

[2] In the case of omitted Parishes, which are very few in number, it should be understood that there was, probably, no change of Incumbents during Stafford's Episcopate. It may, also, be well to note that the name of the Patron is not repeated when the same person presented to a Benefice; also, that in all ordinary cases of collation the Bishop was, of course, Patron: when he collated by lapse the fact is mentioned.

in the order of their dates in the "Registrum Commune." The Index-proper is concerned with everything not included under the above heads, and comprises that great desideratum in works of this kind—a series of cross-references, which I have done my best to make complete.[1] I have refrained from burdening my pages by needless repetitions of dates; they will not be found, therefore, in the cross-references; but all the dates are given somewhere, and, as a general rule, under the names of places. I may add that I have quoted the ipsissima verba of my MS. wherever, for any reason, it seemed desirable to do so.[2] In the case of all Names of Persons I have preserved throughout the variable spelling of the Register; of the Names of Places I have, as a rule, given the modern spelling, adding within brackets every variation of importance.

The pleasing duty remains of thanking the late Bishop of the Diocese and the Deputy Registrar, Mr. Burch, for the ready help and encouragement afforded to this undertaking from the first,[3] as well as the many friends who have enabled it to be accomplished by their generous subscriptions to its cost, or who, as experts, have assisted me in its preparation for the [1] It will be observed that in a considerable number of instances the names of persons and places are simply indexed, without explanation or reference to other parts of this Book. These for the most part,—all, indeed, for which the reader is referred to Vol. i, fol. 300 et seqq.—belong to the Series of Wills, wherein the particulars will be found. In the other cases—few in number—there was nothing of importance to notice.

[2] I have done so very freely in the case of the Wills, of which my abstracts are so full as to be virtually translations; nothing is omitted but mere verbiage.

[3] I am, also, largely indebted to Mr. Mugford, of the Principal Registry, for his invariable courtesy and kindness whenever I have had occasion to work in his Office. And a few words must be added in memoriam: Mr. Pollard, of North-Street, Exeter, who had undertaken both to print and to publish my Book, was suddenly called away only a few weeks before its completion, from a sphere of manifold usefulness. He took the greatest interest in the Work, and was indefatigable in the personal revision of the proofs.

press. Among the latter I must be permitted to mention, especially, Mr. B. W. Greenfield, of Southampton, (who has read all the sheets as they passed through the press, and to whom I am indebted for many most valuable suggestions); Sir John Maclean; the Rev. C. W. Bcase, Fellow of Exeter College, Oxford; the Rev. W. D. Macray, of the Bodleian, and Mr. Robert Dymond, of Exeter.

Beamound, Joan, v. Richard Ley (in the Consistory Court),—

It appears that exception had been taken to John Toker, a witness in this case, on behalf of the said Joan, on the ground that, at the time, he was lying under sentence of the Greater Excommunication, on account of his having consented to act as witness at the clandestine marriage of one Robert Martyn with Englisia his own natural daughter, though he knew, and had acknowledged, that it was an uncanonical proceeding. The Bishop, on the 15th of June, 1412, ordered the Register to be searched by the Registrar, Roger Bolter,[4] and it was found therein recorded that the said John Toker, alias Batyn, had appeared before the Bishop at Crediton, on the 14th of March, 1411-12, confessing that, although he was well aware that the said Robert Martyn and Alicia Wyllyam, parishioners of Milton Abbot, had been previously married and that Alicia

At the time of the Taxation of Pope Nicholas (A.D. 1288-91) it had two Incumbents, a Rector and a Vicar; and this was the case in Bishop Stafford's time and for some time afterwards. When the Valor Ecclesiasticus was made, in 1536, the Vicar was the only Incumbent; the Rectorial endowments having been alienated, only a few years before, and bestowed on the Priory of Augustinian Canons at Bisham, in Berkshire, which had been founded, in 1338, by William Montacute, Earl of Salisbury. Tanner states that it was largely endowed 26 Henry VIII (1534-5), surrendered in 1536, was refounded by the King in 1537, (for a mitred Abbot and fifteen Benedictine monks), and finally dissolved in 1539!—The Montacutes were long patrons of this Rectory; and it appears that the Rectors were patrons of the Vicarage, which is now in the gift of Crown.

The appeal had been first made, in due course, to the Bishop, who, it appears, postponed the hearing plus debito, and was accused of practically denying justice to the new Rector. The executors were allowed fifteen days to settle the matter, and, failing a settlement, were to appear on the twentieth day in the Court of Arches. The Bishop was to take all usual and necessary steps, and inform the Court thereof; but he handed over the entire business to the Court, alleging that he was hindered from attending to it aliis negotiis arduis, multipliciter; and no wonder, for he had been Lord Chancellor since 23 Oct., 1396, the Diocese being administered by his Vicar-General.

He was suspended by the Bishop, at his Visitation in 1400, for one year, (from 27 Sept., then past), on account of guilty conduct which rendered him unworthy to minister at the Altar; and Michael Robert, chaplain, had been appointed to minister in his place, and at a competent stipend. The said William complained to the Bishop that some of the parishioners had retained all that was due to him over and above the said stipend, to his great loss; and he waited personally on the Bishop to seek redress. The Bishop seems to have been satisfied as to the culprit's repentance, for he directed the said Chaplain to collect what was due from the defaulters, and ordered him to allow the Vicar to celebrate on Christmas Day, on Easter Day, and at Pentecost, and for the three days succeeding each Festival. But he was not to be permitted to administer the Sacrament to the parishioners, or to celebrate on any other days whatsoever (20 Nov., 1400), i, 50.

Mandate addressed by the Bishop of Exeter to Peter, the Sacristan, and to John Heynon, one of the Vicars, in the matter of the sequestration of the revenues of the Vicars of Canons Thomas Cook and Richard Courtenay (20 June, 1397), i, 12b.

Mandate addressed by the Bishop to Peter, the Sacristan, for the Visitation of the Chapel. The King had informed the Bishop (2 June, 1398) that it was reported that much disorder prevailed, thac the goods of the Church were being wasted, and that the Canons and other ministers were neglecting the Divine Offices and leading a dissolute life : and he commanded him to visit the Community, in person if possible, and to apply a remedy. The Bishop appointed Sept. 15 for his Visitation, when all members of the Community were to appear before him in the choir (8 June, 1398), i, 19.

The Visitation actually commenced on the 18 Sept. ; and the Bishop, after consulting the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and with the approval and consent of the Sacristan and Canons of Bosham, took vigorous measures for the reformation of the Community. His statutes, including minute directions for the conduct of the services, the vestments and the ordinary apparel of the Ministers, and like matters, are set forth at large in a document which was sealed with the Episcopal Seal, at the Bishop's House, in London, 12 June, 1399 ; with the Seal, also, of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, in their Chapter-House, 5 Jan. 1399-1400. The Bishop wrote to the Sacristan, on the 25 Jan., requiring the said statutes to be promulgated in the Chapel within fifteen days from the receipt thereof, and once in every quarter, afterwards.—ii, 271-274b.

On 11 Feb., 1398-9, a warrant was applied for, for the arrest of William Maundevyll (late vicar of Nicholas Braybrok, prebendary of Funtington), who had contumaciously refused to appear before the Bishop, i, 25b.

Ralph Waterman, Sacristan, was commissioned 6 May, 1401, to exact, and account for, certain moneys payable to the Bishop, as Ordinary, ii, 228.

The Chapel of the B.V.M. at Funtington was dependent on this Collegiate Church. It appears that William Scardevyle, John Groffham, Thomas Cokwelle, and others, inhabitants of the villages of Funtington and East and West Ashling, represented that the said Chapel was distant two miles or more, from the Mother Church, and had been used, from time immemorial, for all sacraments, services, etc., save only for the burial of the dead, a fit Chaplain being provided there by the Prebendary of Funtington and by the said Collegiate Church ; that it sometimes happened that, in consequence of the long and tedious journey and the roughness of the sea, they could not reach Bosham for two or even three days ; that, being mostly engaged in agriculture and poor, they could not afford so much time ; and, therefore they begged for leave to bury in the said chapel and in its cemetery. The Bishop, after consulting all the parties concerned (viz. the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, John Makworth, William de Langeton, Laurence Haukyn, William Sutton, and Richard Gabriell, Canons of Bosham), and especially John Makworth, the Prebendary of Funtington, John Lamburne, the Sacristan, and John Yonge, the Perpetual Vicar, assented to their petition, with permission to Robert, Bishop of Chichester, or any other English Bishop, to dedicate the same ; certain fees, etc., being reserved to the Mother Church, and provision made for preventing all manner of abuse of the concession. Dated at Crediton, 13 Sep.; by the Exeter Chapter, 14 Sep. ; by the Canons of Bosham, 21 Sep. ; by the Prebendary of Funtington and the Petitioners, 23 Sep, 1408.—ii, 280-281b.

church here, which was looked upon as a Royal Free Chapel, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and exempt from the ordinary jurisdiction of the Bishop of Chichester and his arch-deacon."

Bishop Stafford is described in the Register (ii, 271) as Chaplain Ordinary immediately under the King, sole collator and patron of the Canonries and Prebends therein.

The Chapel of Apuldram was also dependent on the Church of Bosham. It appears that the Bishop of Exeter had received a petition from John Carpenter, Henry Cobay, John Nappe, Thomas Spygernell, William Wrest, Robert Segrom, John Couper, John Wodelond, John Cartere, Richard Coterell, William Shuppe, Roger Pulte, Robert Bury, Walter Cobay, William Cardon (senior and junior), William Idrych, Thomas Tylby, William Goldyng, Thomas Hurst, John Edward, John Nelond, John Burgoun, Thomas Carpenter, and Robert Porter (inhabitants of "Appeldurham alias Appeldreham," above-named) setting forth that from time immemorial they had resorted to their Chapel of the B.V.M. for all services except the burial of the dead; that they were three miles from Bosham; and that the road was tedious and dangerous from floods and inundations; that, therefore, they prayed the Bishop to allow them to bury in their Chapel and its cemetery. Their petition was granted, with the usual conditions and reservations. Dated 23 July (by the Bishop), 24 July, by the Exeter Chapter, and by the petitioners (through the President of the Consistorial Court at Exeter, and under his seal), on the same day; by the Canons, etc., of Bosham, 12 Aug., 1417.—ii, 293b 295b.[1] [3] Hempston Magna, MS.

The parishioners had represented to the Bishop that their Church was in a ruinous condition and notoriously clumsily constructed: they desired to rebuild it on a larger scale, and in a different part of the Cemetery; and to this the Bishop consented, on condition that they engaged to complete the new church within two years from the pulling down of the old one, and sooner if possible. Moreover, he granted an Indulgence to all the Faithful who should contribute to "so great and pious a work" (28 Dec., 1400), i, 51b.—On 22 Nov., 1401, scarcely a year later, the new church appears to have been sufficiently advanced for use, as a licence was then granted, for one year, to celebrate Divine Service "in quadam ecclesia, sive basilica, in cimiterio . . . de novo erecta et constructa," i, 58b; this licence was renewed and for the same period, 4 Nov., 1402, i, 62; and again, 4 Nov., 1403, i, 68. After this date there are no further licences recorded; neither is there any record, apparently, of the consecration of the new church.

Brokas, Katherine, widow of Sir Bernard Brokas, knt.,—

On the 14th of January, 1395-6, the Bishop received a Letter from the Bishop of London (dated at Hadham, on the 11th), informing him that the Dame Katherine Brokas, widow, then residing in London, had applied to him for a licence to place herself in the hands of the Bishop of Exeter, that she might take a vow of perpetual chastity, and have some church or chapel assigned to her for her abode.—Accordingly, on the 16th of January, the Bishop received her in the Chapel of his House in London, "juxta Temple barre," and celebrated Pontifical High Mass, during which she took the vow in the terms which follow,—"En le noun de Dieu ieo Katerine Brokas venevowe a Dieu perpetuel chastite en le presence de vous, Reverent Pier in Dieu Esmound, par la grace de Dieu Evesque dexcestre, et promitte establement vivere in chastite, saunz compaignie de homme, a terme de ma vie."—i, 7b.

appointed a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Chulmleigh, i, 50: the repairs required in the chancel, etc.,—

In Sept., 1412, the Bishop commissioned Archdeacon Hunden to investigate the matter; before whom appeared the parties immediately concerned, viz: the Abbot and Convent of Tavistock, the Rectors (by their proxy, John Twyford), and Thomas Bost, the Vicar, who disputed the liability, while the Rectors alleged and produced the Letter of Thomas, the late Bishop, duly sealed with his oblong seal, which the Vicar acknowledged to be true and authoritative. This document is given at length; it is dated 24 Sep., 1390, and sets forth that, on searching the Register of Bishop Walter de Stapyldon, it was ascertained that, by the ordination and taxation of the parish, the Sanctuary, and all the land held by the secular Rector, ought to be enjoyed by the Vicars, together with all buildings thereon, as well as all the small tithes, oblations, etc., including the tithe of hay, and all mortuary offerings; they were to pay procurations to the Archdeacon, and also all synodals, etc., and they were to keep the chancel in repair, and the books and ornaments thereof (which the Rectors had been accustomed to maintain), after the same had been put in proper repair, once for all, by the Abbot and Convent of Tavistock. Moreover, they were to pay to the said Religious, every year, at Easter, seven shillings "de fructibus altalagii": but the latter were to defray all extraordinary expenses and burdens. The Abbot and Convent, also, produced witnesses, who were examined on oath; and, both parties assenting and so requiring, the Bishop's Commissary, complying with the terms of their petitions herein, did, on the 19th May, 1412, in the chapel of St. Gabriel, near the Bridge, at Clyst, where the Bishop was, at that time, in residence, decide and decree, in due form of law, as follows:—

"That it was evident that the Abbot and Convent of Tavistock, being Rectors of the parish of Burrington, save and except the pension belonging to the Vicars thereof, were required by Bishop Stapyldon's 'Ordinacio' to put the chancel in proper repair, together with its books and ornaments, once for all, at their own charges. That both sides had been heard; and that it appeared that the liability for such repairs, now and in the future, fell on the Vicar for the time being, and that the said Religious were free from such liability; that they were entitled to demand of the said Vicar the said pension of seven shillings annually, which at Easter last past the said Thomas Bost had failed to pay, and for which default they sought a remedy. That the said Thomas Bost, in order to avoid further proceedings and expense, confessed that the said annual payment was due from him. The Commissary, accordingly, pronounced judgment against him, ordering him to pay the money forthwith, which he consented to do; and, presently, putting his hand into his purse (marsupium), he produced and paid over the said seven shillings, and a Deed was duly executed, to give effect to the above provisions, in the presence of John Colkyrk (notary-publick), and Walter Bowhay, clerks, and John Uppecote.

The "Commission" directed to Archdeacon Hunden (27 Jan., 1407-8), is given at length: also, the "Procuratorium" of John Twyford abovenamed (dated 15 Sept., 1402), and the Certificate of Roger Bolter, notary-publick, etc., as to all the proceedings herein and the said decree, i, 164.

to [Lucy Warre] the Abbess, for its Visitation on the 19th June (dated 27 May,) 1400, i, 39,—

It appears that this Visitation was postponed to the 25th of June, as on the 24th of that month Chancellor Richard Hals was Commissioned to discharge the duty, on behalf of the Bishop (who states that he was prevented from visiting in person), on that day (ii, 227.) It appears, however, from i, 42b, that the Bishop had been at the Abbey on June the 20th, on which day he, there, granted a licence for private oratories to Elinor de Fizpayn and to Thomas Horsey and Alice his wife.

Gregory, R. of Raddington (Dioc. of Bath and Wells), appointed Confessor to the Community (17 Feb., 1402-3), i, 62b; licence to the Abbess (Lucy Warre), for her private Oratory within the Abbey (25 July, 1410), i, 101; in arrear of procurations, due to the Pope's Collector, for three years (1408-10), i, 105, 110.—Election of Abbess,—

The Bishop being at Ottery, William Baunton, a chaplain, appeared before him (4 Dec., 1410), on behalf of Christina Roges (Sub-prioress) and of the whole community, to inform him that they had elected Mary Beuchamp, one of their number; with Baunton were associated John Barel, R. of St. Illogan, and Thomas Gylle, clerk. The Electors were the said Christina Roges, Katharine Tambroke (cantorissa), Joan Downes (sacrista), Meliora Okinforda (celeraria), Joan Laury, Thomasia Tracy, and Elizabeth Fitzwater, Joan More and Margery Cheseldon. Lucy Warre, the last Abbess, had died on 11 Oct., and licence to elect her successor had been granted by Edward, Duke of York (Patron by reason of the minority of Richard, son of Thomas, Lord le Despenser). The election took place on the 24th of November, the Elect with tears (flebiliter) demanding time for consideration, and reluctantly consenting thereto on the following day. The Bishop ordered proclamation thereof to be made in due form; his Mandate being addressed to the Dean of Tiverton and Walter Stalworde,[1] chaplain; it it was dated at Clyst, 5 Dec. The Certificate was dated 10 Dec., and set forth that proclamation had been duly made in the Conventual Church and in the parish church of Burlescombe. The election was confirmed by the Bishop at Crediton, 12 Dec., and on the next day he issued his Mandate to the Archdeacon of Exeter for her induction and installation, ii, 125-129.

[1] "qui quanto magis" — thus our Bishop writes of the departed Primate—in dignitatis et excellencie sublimitate extiterat constitutus, tanto magis velud arbor in domo Domini fructificans ac sectator omnium bonorum operum aliis relinquens exemplum, conquerentibus videlicet aures benignissimas et humiles exhibendo, de corde multipliciter tribulatos assidue confortando, errores et heresies in Provincia Cantuariensi, inimico humani generis procurante, pullulantes sagaciter extirpando, caritatem et amorem inter regni Anglie proceres ceterasque oves sibi regendas commissas, velud bonus pastor, reformando, ac in necessitatibus quibuslibet constitutis verbo et facto misericorditer subveniendo, devotissime Domino studuit pro viribus complacere, et non solum ad singulares personas, verum etiam ad totum regnum Anglie, sua summa humilitas atque generosa bonitas largissime extendebat.

The Bishop caused Bishop Grandisson's Register to be searched, and ascertained that, 2 Dec., 1338, there appeared before William de Crauthorn and Benedict de Paston (the Bishop's Commissaries), in the said parish church, John de Sharshull, Precentor of Exeter, and Nicholas Coffin, V. of Chudleigh, who were called on to give an account of the dilapidations in the Chancel, &c. (super defectibus cancelli et cujusdam intersticii inter navem et cancellum), and to shew cause why they should not be required to repair the same. The said Nicholas denied that he was liable; but being asked whether he had any special grounds for saying so, answered "No" (respondit quod non). Asked to shew cause why he should not be required to repair pro rata, he said that he ought not to be. He was, therefore, ordered to appear for judgment on 11 Dec., Ralph Catepath, David le Bruere, W. Kamok, and many others, being witnesses. On the appointed day the said Precentor and Vicar both appeared before the said Benedict de Paston, who decreed that the Precentor and Vicar should repair and maintain the said Chancel, each pro rata porcionis,—the former pro duabus, the latter pro tertia, partibus,—and should be compelled to do so. Witnesses: William Doun and Alfred Brigg, clerks. Bishop Stafford certified accordingly, 1 April, 1418, i, 239.

Certificatorium factum Archiepiscopo pro etc. (5 Nov., 1415; there is no Schedule), i, 213[b].

Procuratorium [Domini] pro etc. [in favour of Richard Gabriell, Canon of Exeter, and Thomas Stevenys, advocate in the Court of Canterbury] 4 Nov. 1415, i, 214b.

Certificatorium pro etc. (24 March, 1415-16). The Schedule contains the Dean, the four Archdeacons, and the same Abbots and Priors as before, i, 218b.

Procuratorium Domini pro etc. [in favour of John Wakeryng, Keeper of the Privy Seal, and Thomas Stephyn, advocates etc.], 24 March, 1415-16 ; i, 219.

Certificatorium pro etc. (31 Oct., 1416). The Schedule contains the same names, omitting only the Prior of Barnstaple ; i, 227.

Procuratorium Domini pro etc. [in favour of Richard Gabryell and Thomas Stephyn], 31 Oct., 1416 ; i, 227b.

Procuratorium Domini pro etc. [in favour of the same], 15 Nov., 1417 ; i, 235b.

Certificatorium pro etc. (20 Nov., 1417). The Schedule omits the Dean; gives the four Archdeacons, the same Abbots as before, and the Priors of Plympton, Launceston, St. German's, Bodmin, Frithelstock and Tywardreath ; i, 236.

Cook, Andrew and Isabella, i, 306b.

Cook, John, instituted to Landcross, R., ii, 95b.

A Clerk of the same name, and probably the same person, was shortly afterwards instituted to the neighbouring R. of East Down, ii, 108b.

Cook, Thomas, chaplain, licensed to celebrate in Capella Sancte Electe, in the parish of St. Endellion (15 Sept., 1400), i, 48 ; 107b.

The name occurs several times, and identification is not easy. Thomas Cook was Canon of Bosham and Prebendary of Apuldram therein, i, 12b, 25b, which preferment he resigned, ii, 38b. A Thomas Cook appears as proxy for Walter Lambard, ii, 84b ; and probably the same man was instituted a little later, to St. Kieran's, Exeter, ii, 103.—A Commission of enquiry was issued, 27 Aug., 1413, in the matter of the excommunication of Thomas Cook, of Torre, for an assault on John Dowelton, priest, and monk of Torre Abbey, ii, 252. See, also, i, 301, 308b.

Cook, Walter, Canon of York and Prebendary of Axminster, i, 15 ; ii, 17b, 19b ; co-patron of Axminster, V., ii, 187.

This name is of frequent occurrence, and identification is difficult. Walter Cook was collated (1399) to the Archdeaconry of Exeter, ii, 43b ; but there is no record, apparently, of his death or resignation : his successor, however, died in 1408, ii, 232. A Walter Cook was instituted to Langtree, R., in 1411 ; ii, 132b, 239b, i, 171b. See, too, i, 302b.

three years (1408-10), i, 105, 110.—"Ordinacio" between the Prior and Monks and the parishioners of St. Thomas "ultra pontem," Exeter,—

The Bishop refers to the fact that Holy Scripture requires the ordinances of Religion to be celebrated in buildings dedicated to God, except in cases of necessity, and states that he had received a Petition from John, Prior of Cowick, and the monks there, and also from the parishioners of that place, setting forth that in the Chapel of St. Thomas of Canterbury, situated at the end of Exe-Bridge, the V. for the time being had continued, and from time immemorial, to perform all parochial functions (the burial of the dead only excepted), until it had been swept away by an inundation of the river, whereupon the said Prior and Monks, Patrons of the Vicarage, and the parishioners—the Faithful elsewhere contributing their alms—had built a fair Basilica, in honour of the said glorious Martyr, on a piece of ground called "Pyryhay" (well removed from the river and from all risk of inundations), the property hitherto of the said Priory, and of their church at Cowick. Now monks, secundum ethimologiam nominis, ought to serve God apart from the common intercourse of the people, and the said Mother-Church, moreover, was quite at one end of the parish, and the new Basilica in its midst, so that the latter was, in every way, more convenient and suitable for the Parish Church. The Bishop consented to the prayer of the Petition, that he would consecrate the new church and its cemetery, having first consulted, and obtained the consent of, the Dean and Chapter, the said Prior, the Vicar (John Alkebarwe), and the parishioners at large, represented by Richard Holand, John Floyer, John Brycon, John Kyte, John Farthehill, Hugh Beuyn,[1] William Chedder, and Peter Hode—the right of continuing to bury in the cemetery of St. Michael's chapel being reserved for those who preferred it. All duties pertaining to the Rector were to be performed by the Prior and monks, except cure of souls, for which the Vicar would continue responsible; the parishioners to fulfil their customary duties, including the maintenance in good order of the said antient cemetery of St. Michael. The Bishop dedicated and consecrated the new Church on Tuesday, 4 Oct, 1412, and the mensa and High Altar, together with the cemetery, on the following day, and ordered that the Feast of Dedication should always be solemnly observed, and in the same manner as Christmas Day. This "ordinacio" was sealed by the Bishop, the Dean and Chapter, and the Prior and Convent; also by the Dean of Kenn (within whose Deanery the Church stands), at the request of John the Vicar; and by the Dean of Christianity, at the request of Richard Holand and the seven other parishioners named above, and on their behalf, because they had no common seal of their own."—ii, 287-288.

John Waryn, Dean of, i, 256b,—

A Commission was issued 27 July, 1417, addressed to Dean Waryn, for the repair of the Choir (or Chancel) there, and at St. Columb-minor (which was appropriated to the College), and for the raising of the moneys required; which moneys Robert Trehage had been deputed to receive and apply. Some of the Canons had been slow to contribute their proper share; so the Bishop ordered the names of the defaulters to be reported to him, and the Dean was to see that payment was enforced.—ii, 262.

Cryour, Thomas (Canon of Plympton),—

He had appeared before the Bishop, complaining that one John Sutton, a servant and cook[1] of the cell of St. Mary-in-the-Marsh,[2] near Exeter, had been accustomed to annoy him, and on one occasion, finding him in a corner of the hall where there was no chance of escape, had foully abused him, and then rushed at him with a dagger,[3] so that, being in fear of his life, and in self-defence, he attacked his assailant with a stick, which he was lucky enough to find in the corner of the hall, striking him once only on his head, and wounding him. The said John, contemptuously refusing to do what the doctor advised, died three days later, and entirely through his own obstinacy. Cryour, by the advice of his friends, had withdrawn himself from the service of the Altar; but the Bishop, after careful enquiry, pronounced him free from all blame in the matter, and restored him to the full exercise of the duties of his office. The Bishop delivered sentence herein, in the Chapel of his Palace at Exeter, 5 Sept., 1409.—i, 89b.

—Chapel of Cofton[3], in the parish of,—

An action brought against John Caynok, the late V., by the villagers of Cofton as to providing a chaplain to serve the chapel there, having been decided in the said Vicar's favour, they appealed against the decision of the Court, refusing to resort to the Mother Church for the Sacraments, etc., as the new Vicar, Thomas Fayrforde, in like manner declined to serve Cofton chapel. Pending this appeal, the Bishop directs John [Colyn], R. of Mamhead to hear the confessions of the Cofton people, and to celebrate specially for them, in his own parish-church on Easter-day and administer to them the sacrament[4]; but he was to take no stipend for his work, and no part of the revenues of the living was to be diverted from the Vicar (2 April, 1411), i, 122.

Referring to the Commission (of the 7th of March, 1411), in the matter of the dilapidations left by John Caynok, the Bishop declares that the said dilapidations had been assessed in not less than £6 11*s.* 11*d.*, and that Fayrforde had represented that, unless the amount could be recovered at once, the property of the deceased would probably be made away with. So he directs sequestration thereof till the said sum be paid (17 April, 1411), ii, 241[b].

The controversy between this Vicar and his parishioners at Cofton seems to have been patched up, but not settled, soon afterwards; for on the 11th of August, 1411, he was licensed to celebrate in "the Chapel of St. Mary[1]" (on the Feast of her Assumption only), and on the 30th of August "in capella Beate Marie de Cokton," on the Feast of her Nativity, i, 131, 133[b].—On the 30th of March, however, 1412, Thomas Uppeton, V. of Kenton, was licensed to serve the Chapel, pendente lite; i, 146[b]; and on 6 March, 1412-13, this licence was renewed, also pendente lite; i, 177[b]. On the 8th of August, 1412, the licence for St. Mary's at "Cokton" was renewed, and at the same time a licence was granted for the Chapel of St. Mary at "Lydeswyll."—i, 163.

[1] He had been ordained without licence, "ab alieno Episcopo . . . Thoma, Crispolitano Episcopo." The Bishop refers with satisfaction to the fact that, having done this thing ignorantly and inadvertently, Dreyn had abstained from exercising his office, and he speaks of himself as having been specially moved in this case, "fusis a te nobis devotis precibus ob tuorum exuberanciam meritorum paterna pietate inclinati."

[2] He is described as "de eadem [ecclesia] presbitero."

were granted to him (9 May, 1397), i, 12; but he was ordained deacon "ab alieno Episcopo," Nicholas, Bishop of Dunkeld, and priest by the Bishop of Winchester; this rendered a dispensation necessary, which was granted 20 April, 1398, i, 17[b]; and on the same day a licence of non-residence, that he might reside for two years in Oxford, ibid; co-patron of the V. of Duloe, ii, 40, 49, 141[b].—See, also, ii, 246, 308[b].—The Vicarage of,— Dunchideock, the Rectory House, etc., at,— Indulgence granted (26 Jan., 1395-6), to the Faithful who should contribute to its rebuilding—"ad reedificacionem domorum mansi Rectorie ecclesie parochialis de Dunschidiok ad humum funditus prostratorum," i, 7[b].—About two years and a half later, Matthew Stoke, priest, made formal complaint to the Bishop, that in a certain case touching the repair or rebuilding of the chancel of the parish church, and of the manse and other houses belonging to the Rectory, which had been heard before Thomas Tredowargh, a pretended commissary or delegate of Ralph Tregrisiou, (Dean of Exeter and Vicar-General), between John Lange, R. of the said parish, plaintiff, and the said Matthew Stoke, defendant, the said pretended Commissary, though he had no jurisdiction in the matter, proceeded, illegally, and favouring the plaintiff more than was right, to deliver a definitive sentence in the said John's favour, and entirely against the other side; which sentence was null and void; yet because he disobeyed it, one John Dawny, a chaplain, calling himself a special commissary of the said Thomas, had caused him to be threatened with suspension ab ingressu ecclesie, and with the greater excommunication—minus canonice. He had, moreover, at the instance of the said John, caused it to be publickly announced that he had been so suspended and excommunicated, to his great prejudice and injury. The Bishop, accordingly, commissioned Robert Rugge, Archdeacon of Barnstaple, and Walter Gybbes and Walter Levenaunt, Canons of Exeter, to hear the case on its merits and decide the matter (9 Jun., 1398), i, 19[b].

—John Prous, R. of, (primam tonsuram clericalem habenti); dispensation (to study at Oxford), for three years, from 25 Nov., 1411, i, 140[b]; ditto[1] (sub-deacon), for four years, from 15 Oct., 1414, i, 202[b].—See, also, i, 245.

Exeter Cathedral,—

"The Bishop writes to the President of the Consistorial Court, the Archdeacons, the Deans Rural, etc., granting an Indulgence to the Faithful who should contribute to the completion, decoration, and maintenance of the Cathedral church, which he describes as "vestra mater et magistra omnium ecclesiarum nostre Diocesis." Collections were to be made every Sunday in Lent and even up to the Octave of Easter, "usque ad consummacionem dicte fabrice et claustri eidem annexi, ac refeccionis eorundum; cum eandem ecclesiam matrem suam saltem semel in anno venerari actualiter teneantur, et absque Christi fidelium elemosinarum largicione facultates ad fabricam ecclesie et claustri prescripti, ut ex testimonio fidedignorum accepimus, non sufficiant." The Bishop orders the collections to be confined to this work—"aliis questoribus quibuscumque pro eodem tempore dumtaxat exclusis." All moneys so raised were to be paid in immediately after Easter every year, under pain of the greater excommunication if any portion thereof were kept back (3 Feb., 1393-9), i, 25.

Letter from the Bishop, addressed to Walter Gybbes and Henry Brokelond, canons, for the correction of an abuse in the case, especially, of William Broun, a Vicar. He interfered with the chaplains appointed to commemorate the Anniversaries of former Bishops and Benefactors, by taking the office and work and the stipends also (2 March, 1396-7), ii, 212.

The Bishop's Mandate (addressed to the Dean or President), for the Visitation of the Cathedral on the Monday next after the Feast of St. Mark Evangelist, i.e. April 26—a Sunday, in 1400) to correct and reform whatever in the fabrick itself, or in the Ministers of whatsoever Dignity, may stand in need of correction or reformation. All Canons, Prebendaries, Vicars, Annivellars, etc., were to appear in the Chapter-House at the hour of Prime, or thereabout, and they were to produce their Letters of Orders and their Titles to their Benefices. To the Dean the Bishop adds—"Vos etiam, Domine Decane, ad predictos diem et locum, tenore presentium peremptorie citamus, quatenus ad vos attinet ad omnia et singula supra dicta (5 April, 1400), i, 34b.

St. Nicholas Priory, i, 316, 318, 327.—The Prior and Convent present to Brampford Speke, V., ii, 75, 188[b]; to Butterleigh, R., ii, 23; to Collumpton, V., ii, 134, 175[b]; to Pinhoe, V., ii, 27[b], 92, 183; to Poughill, R., ii, 7[b], 28[b], 66, 147[b], 197; to St. Olave's, Exeter, ii, 74, 166[b].—

"Disautenticacio sigilli Domus Sancti Nicholai Exoniensis":—On the 3rd of December, 1400, the Bishop, being at Chudleigh, wrote to John Westecote, R. of St. Petrock's, Exeter, and to the Dean of Christianity, informing them that, on the 8th of November, some iniquitous persons had stolen a case containing the seal of the Priory, which had been incautiously left lying about in their Chapter-House, contrary to the will of William Mersshe, the Prior, who earnestly besought the Bishop to apply a remedy, as they were in danger of loss from forged and fictitious deeds which the thieves might fabricate, and seal with the said seal; which is thus described,—"rotundum fuerat, habens in medio insculptum ad instar et similitudinem castri quadrati habentis in sui medio unam turrim excelsam, et in angulis suis alias turres bassiores et propugnacula, et supra castrum hujusmodi in una parte vetus scutum armorum Regis Anglie videlicet cum tribus leopardis, et in alia parte gladium erectum, et in ejusdem gladii cuspide, sive punctu, coronam regiam, et subtus castrum draconem gradientem, insculpta. In circumferencia vero, sive circulo, ejusdem sigilli scriptum erat sic: S. Ecclie Sancti Nichi Exon." The Bishop's official had decreed, and the Bishop confirms the decree, that the said seal should be regarded as "disautenticatum, dampnatum, et annullatum," and of no force at all, in the case of all deeds sealed therewith since the said 8th of November; and that it was never again to be accounted the authentick seal of the Priory, but that another seal should be at once prepared "cum diversa sculptura et de alia forma." The thieves were to be threatened with excommunication unless, within fifteen days, the seal were restored to the Priory, to be destroyed and broken up[1], i, 51.

Commissions of enquiry as to the right of presentation, addressed to the Archdeacon of Exeter: (1) 23 Oct., 1410; for William Sechevill, chaplain, presented by John Ufflete, domicellus. (2) 28 Oct., 1410; for John Halsanggere, chaplain, presented by Sir John Dynham, knt. (3) 31 Oct., 1410; for John Chaddesley, chaplain, presented by Joan, relict of John Speke, jun.,

[1] Dr. Oliver, in the Monasticon, gives an engraving of this seal, from a deed dated 1 April, 1387; it corresponds accurately with the description given above, except that the inscription is in a less abbreviated form than in the text of the MS.—"Sigillum Eccle Sci Nicholai Exonie." He gives another circular seal, of similar design; but in this a second shield of arms occupies the place of the sword and crown, and the dragon becomes a bird: the inscription is—"Sigillum Prioratus Ecclesie Sancti Nicholai Exonie," and this was, probably, the substituted seal. There is yet a third seal, with a similar castle, but no shields, or other like device, and instead of the dragon (or bird) a scroll: the inscription is the same as in the first seal.

[Breve Regium], Mandamus to the Bishop to search the Registers and certify the king as to the names of all persons instituted to this Benefice since 40 Edw. III. (dated 12 Nov., 1410), ii, 335b.

[Breve Regium], Prohibition to admit to this Benefice, pending the settlement of the dispute as to the right of patronage, between the King and John Ufflete and William Sachevyll (dated 12 Nov., 1410), ibid.

The Bishop's Certificate as to the result of the search :—In Grandisson's Register he had found that William Danyell "de Eton Meisi" was admitted 17 July, 1347 ; patron, Sir John de Ralegh, of Beaudeport, knt., as proxy for Oliver de Dyneham : also, that on the 3rd of Jan., 1359-60, John Lucas, priest, was collated, by lapse : also, that on the 9th of June, 1363, Simon Squyer, priest, was collated, by lapse. In Brantyngham's Register he had found that William Trevellys instituted a Rector in 1381, name and patron not recorded ; but on the 15th of June, 1382, John Doget, chaplain, was admitted on the death of Nicholas Terrers, patron, William Asthorp (proxy, William Colton de Ledes, clerk—Dioc. Ebor.) Dated 4 Jan., 1410-11, ii, 336.

[Breve Regium], Mandamus to the Bishop to search the Registers, and certify the King as to the names, etc., of all persons instituted to this Benefice from the first year of Edward, son of Henry [i.e. 1 Edw. I, 1272] to 20 Edw. III. [1346].—15 May, 1411, ii, 340b.

On the 13th of June the Bishop certified that he had found in Bishop Grandisson's Register that 8 Kal. Dec. (i.e. 24 Nov. 1328) he admitted, at Morchard, Roger de Camelford, priest ; the Church having been vacant from the Saturday next before the Feast of St. Luke the Evangelist ; patron Thomas de Esse, clerk, representing Dionisia de la Bruere, ii, 340b.

Meanwhile the Bishop had collated Walter Simon, chaplain, by lapse, on the 2nd of May, 1411 (ii, 132b) ; but, shortly afterwards, the King (at the Assizes held at Exeter in August), recovered his right of presentation against John Ufflete and William Sechevyle, chaplain, and issued his mandate to the Bishop accordingly (Breve Regium, 7 Aug., 1411), ii, 341. Walter Symon's collation was held to have been null and void[1] ; and Richard Mannyng, clerk, was instituted, 19 Aug., 1411, Patron, King Henry IV., ii, 135.

Richard Mannyng, R. of ; dispensation (to study at Oxford) for three years, from 8 June, 1412 ; i, 161.

This Rector did not long enjoy his Benefice ; and on his death, about three years later, a Prohibition to admit was served on the Bishop, pending the settlement of the dispute as to the right to present, between King Henry V. and Richard Ufflete (Breve Regium, 24 Oct., 1414), ii, 349b. This was shortly followed by a Mandate to admit William Normanton, the King's nominee (Breve Regium, 22 Nov., 1414), ii, 350 ; and he was instituted accordingly, 7 Dec., 1414 ; ii, 162b.

William Normanton (sub-deacon), R. of ; licence of non-residence for one year, from 10 Dec., 1414, i, 205 ; dispensation (to study "in Universitate Oxoniensi, vel alibi ubi viget studium generale), for three years, and not to

Filleigh, William [Prydeaux], R., a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Barnstaple, i, 143b, 174.—Desecration of the Parish Church,—

Robert Rychard[1] appeared before the Bishop at Crediton, craving absolution from the sentence of the greater excommunication, incurred by reason of a murderous assault, committed on one Oliver Lange, in this parish Church, even shedding his blood and polluting the Church, which had to be reconciled at the charges of the parishioners. The Bishop acceded to his petition, and committed the business to his Chancellor, William Hunden, who (having ascertained the amount of the fees paid by the parishioners, and ordered full satisfaction to be made to them), assigned to him the following penance: after the manner of a penitent, stript off all his garments—"braccis et camisia dumtaxat exceptis," he was to undergo, at suitable hours on appointed days, three "fustigaciones corporales" through the market-place at South Molton, and the like number through the church of Filleigh, carrying a wax candle, half a pound in weight, and on the last of the appointed days delivering the said candle into the hands of the priest, who should be saying High Mass in the said Church (22 Dec., 1410), i, 110b.

On the same day, the Bishop wrote to the Deans of Barnstaple, [South] Molton, and Shirwell, requiring them to cause this sentence to be proclaimed in the usual manner, i, 111.

In vol. ii (fol. 235b), is a Copy of the Commission for an investigation of this case directed to Archdeacon Hunden (24 Nov., 1410).

A Licence to celebrate in the Chapel of St. Katherine in the Manor of Fremington, was granted to this V., 17 June, 1411, i, 126[b].

A scrutiny of the Register [of Institutions, vol. ii, fol. 96[b]], having been made, the Bishop ascertained that on the 9th of June, 1407, he had instituted Henry Alkebarwe to this benefice, on the presentation of the Abbot and Convent of Hartland, and nomination of K. Henry IV., by reason of the minority of the son and heir of Sir John Holond, knt., (15 Jan., 1411—12), i, 141[b].

The Bishop having been informed that the Church of Fremington had been polluted in a quarrel, with effusion of blood, between John Haye and John atte Wyll, issues a Commission to the Archdeacon of Barnstaple to enquire and report (17 June, 1411), ii, 242.—The Bishop decided that there had been neither violence nor bloodshed, and, consequently, no pollution, ii, 242[b].

Frithelstock Priory,—Mandate for its Visitation on the 22nd of May, 1400 (dated 14 April), i, 36[b].

At this Visitation, the Prior, John Pynnok, was found to have grievously wasted the goods of the Priory, reducing it almost to a state of desolation: but, submitting himself to the Bishop,—"pure, sponte, et absolute, alte et basse, solempniter se submisit,"—he was dealt with mercifully. He was punished, however, by suspension from the administration of the temporalities of the Priory, and Thomas Rede, one of the Canons, was entrusted therewith during the Bishop's pleasure, The Bishop required monthly accounts to be kept, and the state of the House reported annually to himself; and he appointed two other Canons to assist in this work, viz., Adam Prode and David Beff, restraining them from interfering in other respects with the Prior, whom he bound to obedience on pain of deprivation. In order to free the Priory from the debts caused by Pynnok's improvidence, and as part of the penance to be imposed on him, the Bishop ordered him not to take his meals in the great Hall—"'aula Prioris' vulgariter ibidem appellata"—but to resort to the Refectory with the rest, unless honourable and bona fide guests should happen to arrive—"tunc enim in camera sua, aut alia camera Hevytre nuncupata, cum hospitibus hujusmodi, se reficere, ac prandere, et cenare valeat"—but that was not to be an event of too frequent occurrence, so as to evade the Bishop's order. He made restrictions, also, as to clothing and the number of the servants, allowing but one servant to the Prior, and a quarterly allowance of 40s. for clothes, wine, and other necessaries, to be paid him by the administrator. Also, he ordered an inventory of all the goods of the Priory to be prepared before Christmas, and submitted to the Bishop before Epiphany; and in like manner a list of the Prior's debts, with names and amounts, and stating why they were incurred. Also, he ordered that the Divine offices be duly said by day and by night; and that the Brethren abstain from all idle wandering up and down, from hunting, and the like; observing their rule strictly; and giving attention to reading, etc., in the church, the cloister, and elsewhere; abstaining from festivities publick and private, and from all drinking in improper places or at unsuitable times, especially after compline—matters in which the Prior was bidden to remember that it was his duty to set an example to the rest and to devote himself to the Divine Mysteries, and to his Convent, night and day. None of their land, or other property, was to be put out to farm, or sold, during the administration of the said Thomas, without the Bishop's special licence. And severe punishment was threatened in case of disobedience or rebellion.—The Bishop's mandate was formally communicated to the Prior and Convent, 6 December, 1400: and 4 January, 1400-1, the inventory was sent to the Bishop, together with the Prior's formal undertaking to submit to the Bishop's decrees—"per omnia humiliter et reverenter parui, pareo, et parebo," i, 53. The Prior and Convent were, of course, returned as in heavy arrears on account of the Procurations due to the Pope's Collector, i, 105, 110.—

Election of Prior,—

On the 8th of May, 1417, the Bishop received notice of the election of Thomas Rede. The formal documents are given at length; from which it appears that the late Prior, John Pynnok, died on the 19th of March, and was buried on the 21st; that on the 22nd of April the Convent met in Chapter and fixed May the 4th for the election. The electors were William Ford, senior Canon and President, Thomas Rede, Walter Whytbe, and James Dunham, Canons of Frithelstock; also, Philip Tone, Abbot, and Gentian Mantyngho, Canon, of Hartland (who had a right to attend and to vote). After the usual formalities, the election of Thomas Rede was confirmed; and the Mandate for his installation was issued by the Bishop at Clyst, 18 May, 1417; ii, 183, 185b.

"Seeking his own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's" he had deceived the Faithful, and specially those who belonged to the "new Chapel" at Dartmouth, by falsely pretending to be a Penitentiary (or Confessor) deputed by the Bishop. He even went so far as to deal with cases commonly reserved, taking money from penitents, and to palliate his crime, gave out that the said money was for the Bishop, whose Receiver he falsely pretended to be. Under these circumstances, the Bishop directed the Dean of Totnes, Stephen [Joseph],[2] and Gerard Foghel and William Berya, chaplain of the Thomas Chamberleyn, Vicar-choral, licensed (7 Aug., 1403), to celebrate in any suitable place "infra clausum dicti Collegii," i, 67b.—Licence granted (17 March, 1404-5), to the Provost, Canons, etc., to celebrate in the Common Hall of the Vicars until Pentecost, unless the Church, which (as was alleged) had been polluted, should in the meantime have been reconciled, i, 74. And on the 29th of the same month the Canons were licensed to celebrate "infra mansiones suas infra clausum," and the others "in communi loco," pending the said Reconciliation, ibid.

On the 28th of June, 1403, the Bishop, being at Clyst, was certified by the Provost and Chapter that they had received his Mandate (which they recite at length). The Bishop, at his recent Visitation (4 Sep., 1400), had found certain things requiring correction, and admonished them accordingly; directing (1) That all Vicars and inferior ministers found guilty of neglect or irreverence in saying the Divine offices be punished by the Provost, or (in his absence) by the Sacristan, in open Chapter, "non cameraliter aut privatim." (2) That no Canon should hinder any Vicar from doing his proper duty by imposing upon him "aliquod officium famulare," under penalties to be inflicted on the Canon offending and on the Vicar complying: and whereas the Bishop had ascertained that, through the laxity of the Provost, the Vicars, etc., had been suffered to absent themselves and scandalously neglect their duties, he laid down strict rules as to granting leave of absence. (3) That the Canons, etc., should be present in their proper habit at the Divine offices and at Mass, as the statutes require; the Vicars saying their private masses at such times as not to interfere with the recitation of the Hours in the Choir, which they were themselves bound to attend; and that none of them, whether in their habits or not, presume to walk about the Church, or its precincts, in service-time. (4) That, forasmuch as he only should live of the altar who serves the altar—"cum omnia beneficia ecclesiastica propter officia dentur et fuerint instituta"—the Canons in residence should regularly, in succession, week by week, say High Mass at the High Altar, or, in case of illness or other hindrance, make provision for the same. (5) That the common seal be kept securely under three keys, one in charge of the Provost (or his locum tenens), the others of two of the Canons; the said seal never to be used without the assent of the majority of the (senior) Canons. (6) That the Sacristan, by his clerk, attend carefully to ringing the bells for the services, and to closing the doors in good time, lest damage happen to the Church or scandal to its ministers; that he provide bread and wine ("purum, non acetosum"), daily, for Mass, and cleanse the vessels used at the Altar; the said Clerk, in case of negligence herein thrice repeated, to be dismissed (after a month's notice) by the Sacristan, and a successor to be forthwith appointed, or the appointment to lapse to the Provost. It had been represented, moreover, to the Bishop, at his said Visitation, that the Church wanted repair, and that it was still incomplete—"super restauranda et sustinenda fabrica ipsius ecclesie, ac novo opere complendo, et precipue de choro ipsius et ejus alis arcuandis et voltandis"—and that the sum of 26s. per annum contributed (according to antient custom) by all the prebendaries was insufficient for the purpose: but it appeared that all were anxious to help forward the work, and had agreed to devote to it the whole of their stipends for one year, from Michaelmas next ensuing; the stipends of Geoffrey Carow (the Sacristan), and John Raff, one of the Canons, alone excepted, because they alone of the Community enjoyed no benefices outside the College, while the former was bound to perpetual residence and to take the place of the Provost in his absence, and dispense hospitality; but the said Sacristan would be content to receive for the year, instead of his prebend, £20 in quarterly payments, and the said John Raff was ready to take ten marks, to be paid in like manner. These and other like arrangements, made for so good a purpose, the Bishop approved and sanctioned, and appointed to be Receivers Alan Treles, "Rectorem de Ponte[1]," and Thomas Trefuthon, one of the Vicars-choral, who were to lay out the money with the advice and help of Edward Dauntesey, Archdeacon of Cornwall, and Canon Matthew Bodrigi. To all which the Provost, etc., promised obedience (17 May, 1403), i, 64b.

Thomas Chapman, R. of Withiel, William Somerford, R. of Lanreath, William Tregos, R. of Eglosros (i.e. Philleigh), and Matthew Bodrigy, R. of Creed, Canons of Glasney; licence of non-residence for one year, to reside in the College (13 Nov., 1404), i, 77.

William Tregos, a Canon, having neglected to appoint a Vicar, the Bishop collates, by lapse (7 Aug., 1410), i, 102b.

The Provost and Chapter complained to the Bishop that, whereas in the case of temporal estates, all who prohibit their servants and tenants from buying from or selling to the Clergy, so defrauding the Church of her rights, are liable to excommunication, certain heinous offenders, parishioners of St. Just in Penwith (appropriated to their Collegiate Church), had shamelessly interfered with the collection, etc., of the revenues of the said parish.

Commission to enquire as to his alleged incapacity, through old age and infirmity (18 Oct., 1413), ii, 252[b].

The result of this enquiry is not recorded; but, probably, he was ordered to procure the help of a chaplain immediately, for shortly afterwards he complained to the Bishop that, although he had made an agreement with one John Clyverton, chaplain, having no cure of souls elsewhere, to serve the church of Goodleigh, for a competent stipend, from Christmas, 1413, to Michaelmas, 1414, and the said John had bound himself so to serve, he had refused to fulfil his agreement. He petitioned the Bishop to interfere; who, accordingly, wrote to the Archdeacon of Barnstaple, to William Vedde, R. of Loxhore, and to Richard Bursy, "suffraganeo Decani originalis Decanatus de Schyrewyll," requiring them, if they found the complaint true, to warn the said John, once, twice, and thrice, peremptorily, to return, within fifteen days, to his duty at Goodleigh, on pain of suspension. If contumacious, he was to be ordered to appear before the Bishop at Clyst, and shew cause why the sentence of suspension should not take effect (12 Jan., 1413-14), i, 190b,—Baret (who told the Bishop that he was blind as well as infirm), did not long survive this trouble, for the question of patronage was in dispute 6 March, and his successor was instituted 30 May following.

Heavitree [Hevytre, MS.]; the "Ordinacio" of the Vicarage,—

The Bishop states that, recently, between the Dean and Chapter of Exeter (the appropriators), on the one part, and Thomas Plymmeswode (Vicar), on the other part, certain questions had arisen, touching the "portion" assigned to the said Vicarage; and that both parties were willing to accept the Bishop's decision, viz. (1) That the Vicar and his successors should have all the oblations, etc., at the altars of the said Church, and its dependent chapels of St. Sidwell and St. David, and also of two other chapels in the parish, St. Clement's and St. Eligius', with the tithes of the mills, and all small tithes, "nutrimentis animalium," buildings, gardens, etc., at Heavitree and St. Sidwell's formerly assigned to them; also twelve acres of arable land. (2) That the Vicars should be relieved from the annual payment of four marks and ten shillings to the Dean and Chapter, hitherto made by them. (3) They were to be responsible for all ordinary burdens connected with the parish-church and the Chapels of St. Sidwell and St. David [including the repair, and even rebuilding of the three chancels, and everything, generally, for which the parishioners were not responsible]. (4) They were to have no part of the tithes feni, bladorum, garbarum, whencesoever arising, whether in orchards, crofts, gardens, or other closes, not even if such lands should again be brought into agricultural cultivation; nor of the apples in the garden of the Dean and Chapter at St. Sidwell's; save and except the tithes of the lands assigned, above, to the said Vicars. But if any arable land were afterwards devoted to crops lini, canabi, carduorum, porrorum, allei, separum, vel olerum, or to pasture, the Vicars were to be entitled to their tithes therefrom, as before described, and not otherwise (28 March, 1401). Nicholas Brabroyk; on whose resignation was collated, 14[1] July, 1397, Edward Dauntesey, Doctor of Decrees, ii, 35. He was consecrated Bishop of Meath ("Episcopus Medensis"), having resigned his Archdeaconry, etc., (by proxy, John Leman, chaplain); and his successor[2], [1] "13 July, 1396" in Oliver's List, but in error.

[2] Oliver inserts here "John Orum," simply stating that his name "occurs in 1411"; but Orum was, at that time, Archdeacon of Barnstaple, and the Register states distinctly that Bremour succeeded when Dauntesey resigned.

John Bremor was collated, 3 April, 1413; ii, 149. On the death of Bremour (sic)
Richard Penels, chaplain, was collated, 15 Sept., 1418[1]; ii, 193[b]; on whose death

Angelus, Bishop of Ostia, and a Cardinal; he died 31 May, 1408.

The name of this Archdeacon is not given in either Oliver's or Le Neve's List, and I find no record of the date of his collation. The fact of his having held the office evidently escaped notice because it is found recorded not among the collations, &c., but among the Commissions, in a separate part of the Register. The document containing it, then, being of exceptional interest, may well be given in extenso:—"Commissio Officialis, Archidiaconatu Exoniensi vacante.—Edmundus, miseracione divina Exoniensis Episcopus, dilecto in Christo filio, Magistro Ricardo Wykeslond, in legibus bacallario, salutem, graciam, et benediccionem. Cum reverendissimus in Christo pater et dominus, dominus Angelus, Ostiensis Episcopus, sacrosancte ecclesie Romane, dum vixit, Cardinalis, Archidiaconus Exoniensis in ecclesia nostra Exoniensi, ultimo die mensis Maii proxime preteriti extremum clauserit diem suum, fructusque redditus, et proventus quicumque et omnis et omnimoda jurisdiccio Archidiaconalis ejusdem Archidiaconatus, durante vacacione ejusdem, ad nos de jure pertinere dinoscantur; ad exigendum, igitur, colligendum, et recipiendum fructus, redditus, proventus, et obvenciones quoscumque predictos, crimina eciam et defectus subditorum quorumcumque ipsius Archidiaconatus corrigendum, puniendum, et canonice reformandum, jurisdiccionemque Archidiaconalem ibidem integraliter excercendum, omniaque alia et singula faciendum, excercendum, et expediendum que circa premissa necessaria fuerint et quomodolibet oportuna, et que ad Archidiaconum ipsius Archidiaconatus pertineret si esset ibidem Archidiaconus, vobis committimus vices nostras et, hujusmodi vacacione durante, plenariam potestatem. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum nostrum presentibus est appensum. Datum in Manerio nostro Criditonensi, ix die mensis Julii, Anno Domini Millesimo cccccviij, et nostre consecracionis anno quartodecimo."—ii, 232.

John Lyndeseye, chaplain, was succeeded by John Tresloscan, priest, collated "hac vice, jure nobis in ea parte legitime devoluto," 6 Oct., 1411; ii, 136. It appears that

John Nanskylly, chaplain, held this Chantry at some subsequent date,—"quam nuper et immediate optinuit,"—1 July, 1415, when the Bishop, (see ii, 166), issued his mandate to the Provost of Glasney for the admission of

Robert Trewolge alias Stephyn, as his successor. But there is no record of his collation; and Treloscan seems to have been still in possession some two years later, when the Bishop issued a similar mandate (30 Sept., 1417), for the admission of Richard Opus, priest, in Treloscan's room, and on his decease:—"ad cantariam perpetuam, quam nuper et immediate optinuit dominus Johannes Treloscan, capellanus . . . per mortem ejusdem vacantem." Probably Nanskylly held the benefice for a short time in the interval, Treloscan being appointed again; but there is no record of the transaction: ii, 187b.

GLASNEY, the Chantry (or Portion) "de Ponte" in—Alan Trelees; on whose death was inst., 29 May, 1410;
John Dawe, chaplain; patrons, William Cullyng, provost, and Nicholas Herry, Sacristan, ii, 111. On Dawe's resignation

Stephen Stokes, chaplain, was inst., 15 Jan., 1406-7; ii, 94. On whose death
William Dawe, chaplain, was inst., 7 March, 1412-13; ii, 148.

ST. CLEMENT'S[1] [Lamorek, MS.], Vicars of—
William Bealde; on whose death was inst., 23 July, 1400,
Thomas Nahillyn, chaplain; patrons, the Provost and Chapter of Glasney, ii, 48b. On Nahyllyn's death
John Lamledyr, chaplain, was inst., 18 Oct., 1400; patrons, the same, but on the nomination of William Bodrygan, ii, 15b. I find no mention of his death or resignation; but apparently Walter Fraunces, inst. 26 March, 1409, was his immediate successor; patron, the Prior of St. Michael's Mount, ii, 105.

ST. CLETHER [Sancti Clederi, MS., also "de Sancto Cledero"], Vicars of—Richard Bray; on whose death was inst., 21 May, 1397.
John Carwargh, priest; patron, Henry Staunton, R. of St. Clether, ii, 7. His resignation is not recorded; but he was instituted to St. Mary Church in the autumn of 1403 (though the exact date has not been preserved) and John Hauk, chaplain, succeeded him, 18 Nov., 1403; patron, K. Henry IV. (as holding the temporalities of the alien Priory of Tywardreath, during the war with France), ii, 70. On Hauk's resignation William Wille, chaplain, was inst., 27 Feb., 1413-14; patron, John Sutton, chaplain of St. Michael's in the Cemetery of St. Austell; ii, 156b. Commission, dated 10 Jan., 1413-14, ii, 253.

Thomas Harry, chaplain, was collated, 5 June, 1411; ii, 133. On whose resignation Richard Wyllyam, chaplain, was collated, 29 July, 1412; ii, 142b. This Vicar exchanged with Stephen Reskyr (V. of St. Cubert), who was collated, 18 Oct., 1412; (proxy—Henry Wynnegode); ii, 145.

ST. COLUMB-MAJOR [Sancte Columbe majoris, MS.], Rectors of—
John Bray; on whose death was inst., 11 March, 1398-9, John Fecos, priest; patron, John Aroundell, domicellus, ii, 11b. He exchanged, 6 July, 1399, with Ralph Rudruth (S.T.P., see ii, 28b), R. of Creed (John Tregois being proxy for Rudruth, and Hervey Wyket for Fecos); patron, the same, ii, 42. On Rudruth's death
Richard More, clerk, was inst., 25 June, 1404; patron (and to the end of the period), Sir John Arundell, knt., ii, 76b. More exchanged, 23 June, 1406, with Laurence Haukyn (R. of North Molton); ii, 89b. His resignation is not recorded; but John Ikelyngton, chaplain, apparently his immediate successor, was instituted (proxy—John Foughler, clerk), 31 March, 1411; ii, 131b. He exchanged 8 Dec., 1411, with Peter de Alcobass (R. of St. Mary's, Southampton—patron, the Bishop of Winchester); his proxy being Richard Palmer, and for Alcobass, John Foughler; ii, 137b. On his resignation
Hervey Wyket, clerk, was inst., 14 Aug., 1416; ii, 178b. On Wyket's resignation

[1] Item dictis die et loco [Crediton 8 Oct., 1410], emanavit litera compulsoria pro domino Thomas Albon, Rectore ecclesie parochialis Sancte Endeliente, Exoniensis Diocesis, licenciato de non residendo per dominum Edmundum, Exoniensem Episcopum predictum, directa Magistro Johanni Coulyng, Vicario perpetuo Ecclesie parochialis Sancte Minerve (sic) ac his institution. It is possible that "Albon" was an alias of Thomas Berty; at any rate it was Berty, who 28 Dec., 1410, exchanged this Benefice with John Worthyn or Wortham (R. of Farringdon); ii, 129b. There is no record of Worthyn's resignation or death; but the parish must have been vacant for not less than six months when, 6 April, 1414, the Bishop collated

John Wolston, clerk, by lapse, ii, 158. His successor,

William Gorteboos, clerk, was inst., 3 Aug., 1413; patron, the Prior and Convent of Bodmin (as before), ii, 178b.

ST. ENDELLION, "Bodmin" Prebend in the Church of,—Prebendaries—

Richard Bruton; on whose death was inst., 27 Dec., 1417, John Arundell, alias Hylle (proxy—Andrew Lanvyan, clerk); ii, 189.

ST. ENDELLION, [Trehaverock] Prebend in the Church of—Prebendaries—

Matthew Bodrygy; on whose resignation was inst., 3 June, 1400, Hervey Wyket, clerk; patron, Sir John Aroundell, knt.. by grant of the turn from Elizabeth, relict of William Bray, of Treworlas; ii, 46b.

ST. ENODER [Sancti Enodori, MS.], Vicars of—

Peter Gerveys; on whose resignation was inst., 26 May, 1396, Richard Osmond, chaplain; ii, 30b.

ST. ERME [Sancti Heremitis, MS.], Rectors of—

John Tregek; on whose death was inst., 9 March, 1405,

William Kylyow, chaplain; patron, "hac vice," Guy Sentabyn, domicellus, ii, 82b.—There can be no doubt that "ecclesia parochialis Sancti Heremitis" means, here, the Church and parish near Truro, now called "St. Erme," for I find, from Bishop Lacy's Register, that, on the death of William Kylyow, Thomas Markanut was inst., 2 May, 1432; patrons, Nicholas Thorley and Alice, his wife; and in the same Register (ii, 152) this benefice is described as "Ecclesia Sancti Ermetis juxta Truru," the patrons being the same. But there was another ST. ERME [Sancti Ermetis, MS,], R., to which the Bishop collated, and which is described as "ad ipsius Domini collacionem pleno jure spectantem." On the death of John Mark, John Burgoun, chaplain, was collated 16 July, 1415; ii, 166; and 11 Jan., 1415-16, this Rector exchanged with

Henry Wynnegode, clerk (R. of Lezant), the Bishop being patron of both benefices, ii, 174b. Is ST. ERVAN intended? Oliver states (Monasticon p. 438) that the Church there was dedicated to "St. Hermes."

ST. ERTH [Sancti Erci, MS.], Vicars of—

Ralph Godman; on whose death was inst., 17 Dec., 1395,

William Talcarne, priest; patrons, the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, ii, 2.

ST. EWE, Rector of—John Preston (q. v.)

Domino Thome Cook, capellano, dicte Exoniensis Diocesis, ad compellendum dominum Walterum Maysmere, capellanum, ad deserviendum cure domini Thome Albon, ecclesie parochialis Sancte Endeliente rectoris predicti, necnon primo, secundo, et tercio. ac peremptorie monendum, et efficaciter inducendum ac requirendum prefatum dominum Walterum, quem dictus dominus Edmundus, Exoniensis Episcopus, requisivit et monuit, quod cure predicte deserviat, sub pena suspensionis ab officio in Constitucione Provinciali bone memorie domini Simonis, quondam Cantuariensis Archiepiscopi, in hac parte rite edite et publice promulgate, quem, si hujusmodi monicionibus et requisicionibus infra viginti dierum spacium a tempore monicionum premissorum, cessatis causis legitimis, de quibus causis in litera precedente plenius apparet, non paruerit, eo ipso se noscat incursurum, etc." Vol. i, fol. 107b.

ST. GENNYS [Sancti Genisii, MS.], Vicars of—
Adam Thomas; who exchanged, 21 April, 1412, with

Robert Baret was inst., 12 Nov. 1411, patron, Henry IV. (as above), ii, 136b.—[There can be no doubt that Uploman is meant by "Wellyngton Lamon," though the fact is not very apparent at first sight; and it may be well, perhaps, to quote the entry at length:—

"Item, duodecimo die mensis Novembris, Dominus, in Manerio suo Criditonensi, admisit dominum Robertum Baret, capellanum, ad Ecclesiam Parochialem de Wellyngton Lamon, Exoniensis Diocesis, per liberam resignacionem domini Thome Warr, ultimi ipsius Ecclesie Rectoris, in manibus ejusdem Domini factam et per ipsum admissam, vacantem. Ad quam per excellentissimum in Christo Principem et Dominum, Dominum Henricum, Dei gracia Regem Anglie et Francie illustrem et Dominum Hybernie, verum ipsius Ecclesie, hac vice, patronum, racione custodie terre et heredis Johannis Wroth, militis, defuncti, in manibus suis existencium, eidem Domino extitit presentatus; et ipsum Rectorem instituit canonice in eadem cum suis juribus et pertinenciis universis: Curam animarum, etc.: Juribus, etc. Et, prestita canonica obediencia per eundem, mandatum fuit Archidiacono Exoniensi, seu ejus Officiali, pro ipsius Induccione; et obtinuit literas Institucionis et Induccionis." [1] In Pole's Collections I find, under "Lomen or Uplomen" (p. 212), that it "was ye enheritanc of a famyly of yt name . . . . in Kinge Henry 2 tyme, Willam de Lomen, or Lumine; Willam de Lomen, Kt, his sonne; Sr Richard, sonne of Sr Willam; and Sr Richard de Lomen, the last; after whom followed Sr John de Willington." He makes no mention, in this place, of the Wroths; but, under Aderington (p. 422), I find that "Jordan de Chambernun" of Umberlegh in that parish, "had issue William, wch by Eva his wief had issue the Lady Jone, wife of Sir Ralph de Willington . . . . shee had issue Sr Ralph de Willinton (sic)" who "by Julian (wch I take to bee daughter and heire of Sr Richard de Lomene, for all the lands of Lomen descended in her issue) had issue Sr John," whose descent is given, through several generations, to "Margaret, wief of John, son of Sr John Wrothe, and Isabell, wief of Willam Beaumont. John Wrothe," he adds, "by ye said Margaret had issue Elizabeth wief of Sr Willam Palton, by whom hee had Umberlegh; Sr Willm, sonne of Sr William and Elizabeth, had issue Sr Wm Palton, of Umberlegh, which maried Anne, daughter of Sr Phillip Courtenay, and died wthout issue, by wch meanes Umberlegh, and the rest of Willington's lands, fell unto Sr Thomas Beamont, sonne of Willam Beamont and Isabell Willington." It will be observed that Pole makes no mention of John, the minor referred to in the Register, as (in 1397) the son and heir of Sir John Wrothe, and afterwards (in 1406) as the son and heir of Margaret his widow. He died a minor, and without issue, when all the lands passed in the female line to the Beaumonts of Shirwell (Esq. 13 H. IV. No. 25). Thus it is plain to see how the parish of 'Lomen' came to be called "Wellyngton Lamon" in 1411; a fact which I have not seen stated, however, in any book of reference to which I have access.

Instow, Huish in the parish of, i, 73b.—

Thomas Lange (subdeacon), R. of this parish, obtained a dispensation (to study at Oxford) for one year, from 22 April, 1407, i, 81.—He seems not to have returned to his benefice; for, 22 Jan., 1410-11, the Bishop wrote thus to the Archdn. of Barnstaple—"ad nostrum pervenit auditum quod quidam Thomas Langge, Rector ecclesie parochialis de Yenstow . . . absque causa racionabili, seu licencia nostra aut alia legitima quacumque, ab ecclesia sua prefata per tempora diuturna se absentatus, gregemque proprium deserens curam animarum sibi commissam, hospitalitatem eciam, ac cetera que ad ipsum de jure et consuetudine pertinent, effectualiter observare et temere negligit et omittit, in anime sue grande periculum ac aliorum perniciosum exemplum." The Bishop declares that he cannot, with a safe conscience, wink at such misconduct any longer, and directs the Archdn. to admonish the offender personally (if he can find him, and if not, then anyone who may act as his proxy), in the parish-church, before the principal parishioners and their friends, once, twice, and thrice, to enter within six months from that day, into residence, or failing therein to appear within twenty days before the Bishop at Exeter; i, 111b.

Commissions of Enquiry as to the right of patronage, (1) directed to the Archdn. of Barnstaple (11 Aug., 1410), ii, 233b.—(2) To the like effect (6 Oct., 1410) on behalf of John Fayreste, chaplain, presented by Sir William, and by Richard and John, Hankeford[1] (6 Oct., 1410), ii, 234.

Inwardleigh, John Gedefray (R. of Halwell), appointed "Curator" to John Flemmyng, R., i, 74.

Ipplepen, John Excestre, R. of—

He made complaint to the Bishop that certain disgraceful persons, unknown, had broken a window and thereby effected an entrance into his Rectory-House, and had carried off a number of important deeds, etc., therein preserved in a chest; the Bishop ordered the offenders to be denounced publickly and threatened with excommunication unless restitution were made (15 June, 1398), i, 20.

(Breve Regium, 27 Sept., 1400), Prohibition to admit to this Rectory, then vacant, pending the settlement of the dispute as to the patronage between the King and Sir Almaric[2] de St. Amand. But it turned out that there was no such case before the Judges after all[3]; and the King, in a second Writ (dated 21 Oct.), nominated John de Sprynghorp, who was instituted on 25 Oct., ii, 312b; 51.—He was licensed to hear the Confessions of his parishioners (8 March, 1401-2), i, 55.

The Bishop's Ordinacio between the R. of Churchstow and the parishioners of Kingsbridge on the dedication of their Chapel and Cemetery :—

Referring to a petition from Roger Saunder, John Veel and Wm. Surmound and others, parishrs. of Kingsbridge, setting forth (1) that their Chapel of St. Edmund, K. and Martyr, had been built long ago, and on a magnificent scale; (2) that they had always been exempt from all liabilities as to the Mother-Church, but were bound to maintain their own Chapel and also the Chancel thereof, and the books and necessary ornaments (because it had been granted to them for their own sole convenience), though they were not charged with the support of their Chaplain, or with the provision of bread and wine for the Eucharist, which burdens fell on Roger Bacheler, Rector of Churchstow, who was also bound, as his predecessors had been, to provide for all sacraments and sacramentals in the said Chapel, save only for the burial of their dead, which only could take place at the Mother-Church at Churchstow, a fee of one denarius being payable for the same; (3) that the said Chapel stood in a valley near the sea-shore, and a long way from the said parish church, which was built on the top of a lofty mountain [in cacumine montis excelsi], the road to it, along which funerals had to pass, being by a long and tedious ascent of the said mountain, both dangerous and difficult; (4) that they, the said parishrs. of Kingsbridge, were some of them sailors or shipmasters, while some were tradesmen and merchants, and others artificers and mechanicks, making a living by the labour of their hands, and devoting themselves to works of publick utility, so that they could with difficulty attend to even the burial of the dead, when so long and tedious a journey was necessary : and supplicating the Bishop to consecrate their Chapel and its Cemetery, and to grant them rights of interment therein; the Bishop declares that he had looked into the whole matter carefully, consulting the Abbot and Convent of Buckfast, on whose land the said Chapel and Cemetery stood, as well as Roger Bacheler, the Rector of Churchstow, and certain of his parishioners there, viz., Robt. Hulle, junr., John Hacche, Robt. and John Holdyche, John Wordell and Walter Legh, and also the Dean and Chapter of Exeter ; and had found that all the statements in the said petition were true ; and that, accordingly, he was prepared to consecrate the said Chapel and Cemetery, reserving all the rights of the mother Church intact, and subject to certain conditions as follows—(1) Every adult parishioner of Kingsbridge, being married and a householder, was to hear Mass every year, on the local Feast Day, viz., the Assumption of Blessed Virgin Mary, in the Mother-Church, and for himself and family to make an offering of one denarius to the R. (2) Every unmarried parishioner, male or female, being a householder, was to do the same, and pay one obolus ; and on the Day of the Dedication of the said Mother-Church (Sept. 5), all such were bound to attend their own Chapel and keep the Day as a Double Feast, abstaining from servile work, as well as on the Day of the Dedication of the said Chapel, viz., St. Edmund's Day, and to make an offering of one obolus there, for the use of the said Rector. (3) The executors or friends of any person buried there were to pay one denarius to the R., as if the interment had taken place at Churchstow. (4) Every innkeeper or brewer of beer for sale, was to pay the sum of one denarius in lieu of the flagon of ale which, after the manner of tithes in kind, the Rector had been accustomed to receive pro qualibet pandoxacione : (5) And whereas there are always some who, from avarice and malice, are wont to defraud the Church and the Clergy, using at funerals the lights commonly called fraternalia, and, against the will of the Curates, erecting lofty tombs of stone, all men were forbidden so to employ the tapers belonging to any fraternity, in the said Chapel or its Cemetery, unless they first indemnified the Rector by paying him two denerii, or to set up such great monuments of stone therein without first paying him six denarii ; but modest tombs, level with the ground and offering no obstacle to passengers, erected solely in memory of respectable men and women, and inviting prayers for their souls, were in no wise prohibited ; but in both cases the said Rector was to be consulted. And as to other lights, not "fraternalia," those that were carried, with the bodies of the dead, into the Cemetery were to be given to the said Rector for his own use ; but those that were only used outside the Cemetery were to remain, as formerly, at the disposal of the executors and friends. (6) The trees and the herbage (or grass) in the said Cemetery were to belong to the said Rector. (7) In case of any resistance to these provisions or violations of them, if the majority of the adult parishioners were to blame, and after eight days' notice, given on a Sunday during Mass, they remained rebellious, all right of sepulture in the Chapel and Cemetery would be forfeited, and would return to Churchstow until their submission ; but if the minority or any individual parishioner were in fault, the Rector was to proceed according to law, in the usual manner.

The Chapel was dedicated by Bishop Stafford on 26 Aug., 1414, and the Cemetery on the following day ; and he signed and sealed the Ordinacio at Chudleigh on the 30th of August. The Dean and Chapter of Exeter had done so on the 20th of July, in their Chapter-House ; the Abbot of Buckfast, in the Chapter-House there, on July 23 ; Roger Bacheler, the Rector, using the seal of the President of the Consistory Court of Exeter, at Churchstow, on the 22 July ; the above-named parishioners of Churchstow, using the seal of the Dean of Woodleigh, at Kingsbridge, on July 24; and Roger Saunder, John Veel, John Torryng, Wm. Surmound, Andrew Blakhall, John Redewyll, Rd. Lockyngton, Roger Dyer, Thos. Lever, Robt. Bold, David Ryder, Robt. Blake, Thos. Olyver, and others, parishioners of Kingsbridge, using the seal of the Town [sigillum nostrum et dicti Burgi de-Kyngysbrygge], at Kingsbridge, on 25 July; all in 1414: ii, 290b—292b.

Kings Nympton, John Haket, R., licence of non-residence (to study at Oxford), for a year, from 14 Nov., 1395, i, 6b.—John[1] Southam, R., for two years, from 12 Feb., 1411-12, i, 145.

A Commission of Enquiry as to the dilapidations here, through the neglect of the late R., William Southam, was issued 9 Dec., 1412, on the complaint of his successor, Philip Staunton, ii, 250. This R. obtained licence of non-residence from 12 Jan., 1413-14 to St. John Baptist's Day, 1414; i, 190b.

Kingsteignton and Yealmpton, Prebend of, in Salisbury Cathedral, ii, 37b.

Kingston, a daughter Church to Ermington:

Ordinacio touching the Chapel and the new Cemetery there; in which Richard Hals, Treasurer and Official Principal, sets forth that Pope Boniface IX. had lately conceded to the inhabitants of this village or hamlet the right of sepulture in the said Chapel, dedicated to St. James the Apostle, and in a cemetery annexed thereto as soon as dedicated, and he quotes the Letters Apostolick at large. They had complained that the bodies of the dead had to be carried all the way to Ermington, at great inconvenience, although their children had been baptized, and the Sacraments and all Sacramental rites administered in their said Chapel, from old time. Accordingly permission was granted for the enclosure of a cemetery, and for its dedication, the rights of the Mother-Church being saved.—[Dat. at Rome, at St. Peter's, iij Non. Febr., ann. Pontificat. XII.] Subsequently, on 10 May, 1402, the parties appeared before the said Rd. Hals in the Consistory Court, at Exeter, viz., Richard Tyttesbury, R. of the Mediety of Ermington, represented by Ralph Dolbeare, literate, and the parishioners of Ermington by Rd. Pyperell and John Dymmok, together with Thos. Row, Vicar of Ermington, on the one part, and the inhabitants of Kingston, represented by Thos. Cotemor and Thos. Whyteway, their proctors, on the other—and settled the terms of an agreement herein, thus:—The inhabitants of Kingston were to resort, as before, to the Mother-Church on the Day of the Dedication thereof, viz., 5 Feb., and on the local Feast Day, viz., the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul, every year, observing both after the manner of Double Feasts, but not of necessity bound to pay the accustomed dues: their Chaplain, also, was not to say Mass in their Chapel, on the said Feast of Dedication, unless there were a corpse there to be buried the same day. They were bound for ever to contribute to the renewal and repair of the nave of the Mother-Church, and the books, vestments, ornaments, and other burdens belonging to the parishioners, whenever the parishioners should will to make a levy for the said purpose; they were to have a vote in the matter, being represented by two of their members, with appeal to the Bishop in case of disagreement; but in the absence of their representatives the parishioners of Ermington could proceed without them, and enforce payment. They were bound also to keep up, at their own cost, part of the cemetery at Ermington as of old, viz., the part on the S. and E. of the church between the two stiles (scansilia), measuring in length 12 rods and 10 feet. Also they were to pay yearly, on the Feast of St. Nicholas the Bishop, twelvepence, to maintain two processional candles in the Church of [1] A clerical error apparently; he is elsewhere called William.

Ermington, to be paid to the wardens of the said Church of St. Peter, according to immemorial custom; but whenever they brought their dead to Ermington to be buried, they were to have the use of the said candles (without requiring to ask permission of the parishioners of Ermington), to be lighted as soon as the body is brought into the Church, and kept burning till it is carried forth to the burying. The parishioners of Ermington were to have quiet possession of the lands, tenements, &c., called "Peteryslonde at Hacche" (situate within the parish of the said Chapel) for the use and service of the Mother-Church, as from time immemorial. And as their Chapel was built and is continued for their convenience, they were to keep it in repair, not the nave only, but the chancel also, with all books and ornaments whatsoever; but the V. was to provide and maintain a fit chaplain to minister therein. Also the parishioners of Kingston were to give yearly, on the Feast of the Dedication of their Chapel, to the Vicar of Ermington one lagena of wine, or the estimated value thereof, in acknowledgment of their liberty of sepulture therein, and to the R. and V. thereof their tithes, great and small, as aforetime, together with all dues and offerings, under certain pains and penalties in case of default. This Ordinacio was duly ratified, &c., &c., in the presence of Rd. Wykeslond, Rd. Talbot, John Lydeford, junr., and Thomas Tredowar, advocates, and Wm. Knyght and Wm. Combe, proctors, on the day and in the year above-named.

The names of the parishioners of Ermington who appeared, by proxy (as above), in this case were—Walter Pruston, John Mayovn, John Holewyll, Henry Schetcote, and Andrew Baker. Their procuratorium was dated 6 May, 1401.

The names of the parishioners of Kingston were John Hacche, Roger Edmund, John Broun, Thos. Carswyll, Wm. Coppe, Walter Yurl, and Ambrose Palmer [Dated at Kyngeston, and sealed by the Dean of Plympton], 6 Jan., 1401-2; ii, 275-278.

Kyngysford, Ralph, deacon—

His petition; setting forth that formerly, when he was a simple clerk, only fourteen years old, he and a fellow clerk, one Robert Hoper, of the same age, were playing cum quadam mirica, sive scopa facta de miricis, when, quite by accident, he struck the said Robert on the eye, and entirely destroyed the sight. Later on he proceeded, without scruple, to the Orders of subdeacon and deacon; but when, in due course, he desired to take priest's Orders, and was prepared to make ample reparation to the mutilated clerk, the said Robert refused to come to terms, and Ralph appealed for a remedy to the Holy See. His prayer was granted, and Letters Apostolick were addressed to the Bishop; whereupon a Commission was directed to Ralph Morwyll, William Payn, and William Andrew, to cause the said Robert to appear before the Bishop, in his manor of Clyst, and shew cause, etc. (24

May, 1412), i, 149b. In the end, the said Robert Hoper having refused to take the sum of 10s offered by way of reparation for the injury, and continuing contumacious, a full Dispensation was granted to Kyngysford (20 Sept., 1412), i, 171b. Licence was granted to him (17 June, 1411), to celebrate in St. Benet's Chapel in this parish—"in capella in honore Sancti Benedicti infra parochiam predictam constructa et situata ;" i, 126[b]. [There are still considerable remains of the antient Chapel and of a house to which it was attached : it stands near the parish-church, and has been the subject of much misapprehension. Dr. Oliver had to explain his reasons for omitting it from his Monasticon of the Diocese. "As to St. Bennet's," he writes (Pref., p. v.) "in the parish of Lanivet in Cornwall, asserted to have been a nunnery subordinate to some foreign monastery in Italy, in France, or elsewhere (for various places have been named), it was nothing more than a Chapel of Special Devotion, as is proved by a document, dated May 6, 1535, in vol. ii, of Bishop Veysey's Register."]

Lancels, John, Canon of St. Stephen's, Launceston, ii, 117.

Launceston, the Priory of St. Stephen's at—

The Prior having represented to the Bishop that the Feast Day of the Priory Church (a Feast of the Second Rank) occured in the Octave of the Assumption, a Double Feast; other Feasts also coinciding, viz., those of SS. Agapetus, Magnus, Philibertus, Timotheus, Symphorianus, Audoenus and Genesius, so that their full services could not be properly celebrated, the Bishop transferred the Feast of Dedication to Oct. 22 (18 June, 1401), i, 56[b]

Licence of non-residence from 12 Sept., 1401, granted to John Waryn, Vicar of Liskeard, to enable him to remain at Rome until the settlement of the dispute—super jure et possessione ejusdem Vicarie—between this Priory and himself, i, 58.

Stephen [Tredydan], Prior of, ii, 313[b].—On the death of this Prior, 8 Dec., 1403, the Bishop granted his licence (12 Dec.), for the election of a successor, appointing the Subprior and Noel Patreda, steward of his lands in Cornwall, to be the guardians thereof in the interval, ii, 72. Roger Combrygge was elected. I find no record of the fact; only of his death, which occurred, 18 June, 1410. The Bishop was informed thereof, at Crediton, on the 20th, by John Honylond, one of the Canons, the bearer of a letter from the Community, dated 19 June, requesting the Bishop, as Patron, to grant his licence to proceed to an election. It was granted; and on the same day the Bishop appointed David Treludek, sub-prior, and Richard Repprynn (his steward in Cornwall) to have charge of the goods of the Priory during the vacancy; the spiritual charge being committed to the former alone. On the 30th John Wylle was deputed to inform the Bishop of the election (on the 28th), of John Honylond, by David Treludek (sub-prior), and all the other members of the community; viz., Robert Hervy, Thomas Tredak, John Batyn, John Cleve, Thomas Osburne, Simon Anstyswylle, John Wylkyn, John Cade, John Lancels, John Honnylond, John Thomme, and William Frengy, all priests, in the presence of John Sutton, clerk, notary-publick, William Hunden and Richard Penels. A Mandate was issued to the Dean of Trigg-major, and to John Bylker and John Clerk, priests, to publish the election in the usual manner; and the election was in due course confirmed, 5 July, and the Mandate for the new Prior's induction and installation directed to Laurence Bedeman, R. of Lifton: ii, 115-120.

Licence was granted to Prior Honnylond, 17 July, 1410, to celebrate within the several Manors and Mansions belonging to the Priory—"cum vos ad hujusmodi maneria . . . . . causa recreacionis vel alia legitima declinare

Lawhitton; Peter [Lamoren], R., licensed to hear confessions (28 Feb., 1395-6), i, 8 ; licensed to celebrate in his Rectory house (3 April, 1414), i, 195b—

By the inscrutable judgment of God this R. was smitten with blindness, and so overcome with infirmities that he was quite unable to discharge his duties ; and yet he had wasted, and continued to waste the profits of his Living, and was suffering the buildings thereof to fall into ruin. The Bishop, therefore, desiring to obviate this danger to the souls of the parishioners, directed a Commission to James Carslegh (Official of his Peculiar Jurisdiction in Cornwall), empowering him to appoint a fit person as coadjutor-priest, with sole charge of the parish, reserving a sufficient maintenance for the said Peter, and requiring the coadjutor to render a true account to the Bishop (19 June, 1418), ii, 265b ; see, also, Langedon, John (ii, 310) ; Bodulget, Stephen (ii, 310b ; and Kyngdon, Roger (ibid) ; also, i, 46b ; ii, 209b.

Chapel of St. Mary Magdalene at Brunnion[2], i, 20b; chapel of Porthya[3], i, 39b; Trembethow, i, 240b.

Chapels of St. Tewennoc[4] the Confessor, and St. Ya the Virgin[3]: Peter Pencors, William Stabba, James Tregethes, John Guvan, and other parishioners of the said chapelries, complained that they lived, for the most part, four, three, or (at least) two miles from the Mother-Church of Lelant, the roads being mountainous and rocky, and liable, in winter, to sudden inundations, so that they could not safely attend Divine Service, or send their children to be baptized, their wives to be purified, or their dead to be buried; the children often went unbaptized, and the sick were deprived of the last Sacraments. They stated that they had built the two Chapels above-named at their own expense and had enclosed suitable cemeteries, to be sufficiently endowed for two priests to serve therein, and they prayed the Bishop to consecrate the same; who, accordingly commissioned Richard Hals and John Gorewyll to meet all the parties (including, specially, the Vicar of Lelant, John Clerk), and to enquire and report (27 Sept., 1409), ii, 232b.

Bulls of Pope Alexander V. and of Pope John XXIII, for the Dedication of the dependent chapels of St. Tewinnoc and St. Ya; presented to the Bishop, in the Chapel of his Palace at Exeter, 8 Sept., 1411, by two parishioners thereof, viz., Peter Pencors and John Guvan, who asked him to give effect thereto. They told him of the difficulties above recited, complaining that they were obliged to repair to their parish Church for the baptism of their children, to receive the Sacraments, and to bury their dead; that occasionally some of them were unable to undertake such a journey, and some were left to die without confession and the last Rites of the Church, to the great loss of their souls. Accordingly, they desired that fonts should be placed in these Chapels and the Sacraments administered therein; also that the cemeteries should be licensed for interments. Inquiry was ordered; the Petition to be granted, if the result were satisfactory. Both Bulls are given in full; and in the second, reference is made to a contention between these parishioners and John, the Vicar of Lelant. The Bishop forthwith directed the Precentor and the Chapter of Crediton, who were Rectors of Lelant, and John [Clerk], the said Vicar, to appear before him personally (together with any others concerned), in the Church of Crediton (12 Sept., 1411), i, 133b. The Bishop shortly afterwards went into Cornwall: we find him at Penryn on the 5th of Oct., at Helston on the 7th, and on the 9th at "Lananta," on which day he granted his licence to celebrate Divine offices in the said Chapels, i, 135b Lercedekne, Michael, clerk, instituted to Haccombe, 30 July, 1400, ii, 49.

There is no record of his cession; but Michael Lercedekne, chaplain, LL.B. (whom Oliver seems to regard as a distinct person) was instituted, 14 Dec., 1409; ii, 107b (having, just before, been instituted to Grade R., which he immediately resigned, ibid.) See i, 56b, 60b, 147b, 162, 166b, 167b, 172b, 176, 178. He resigned Haccombe early in 1413, and appears soon afterwards as R. of Thorney (Dioc. of Chichester), ii, 151b, 153; and see i, 186b, 200, 201b, 202, 210, 213, 215, 217b, 321. He was then collated to a Canonry and the Prebend of Westbrook in Bosham, ii, 158b; i, 212, and is mentioned as proxy for John Hody, ii, 165. Having exchanged Thorney for St. Stephen's in Brannel, R. To Richard Peryn, V., the Bishop wrote, 31 Jan., 1410-11, with reference to the complaint of certain parishioners (viz., Sir Ralph Botreaux, knt., John Labe, John Carkyk and others) that, whereas they had subscribed to maintain a priest, to celebrate in their parish-church, without prejudice thereto, or to the Vicar, the latter had prevented his ministrations, with no reasonable cause. The Bishop ordered the Vicar to admit the said priest forthwith, or, failing to do so, to appear before him and show cause for his refusal, i, 113b. The Bishop, moreover, wrote to the complainants (Sir Ralph Botreaux, knt., Richard Doyggel, John Leye, John Robert, John Warda, Robert Gabe, Robert Beare, William Odetrof, Henry Hervy, Walter Hervy, Richard Knolle, John Pengelly, John Frouses, John Trugge, John Lene, John Robert de Clompit, John Carkek, Thomas Trelaba, Thomas Adam, John Baret, Henry Pengelly, Roger Reda, Walter Stryla, Roger de Lankynhorn, and John Bobawale), granting their request (20 Feb., 1410-11), i, 116. It is clear from the above that Peryn was on bad terms with a large number of his parishioners, and—sad to relate—he was brutally murdered within a month, while riding "in alta via" between the parish-church and the village of Clompit (hodie Clampit). The Bishop denounces the murderers (who were unknown) as "perdicionis alumpne, Sathane satellites," and directs the Archdeacon of Cornwall and his Clergy to proclaim them excommunicate for their crime. The Bishop (who was close by, at Lawhitton, when he wrote, 17 Oct., 1411), thus describes the murder as it had been reported to him:—"manus injecerunt temere violentas, eundemque dominum Ricardum graviter vulneraverunt, et tandem, ausu temerario, et mente sacrilega, inhumaniter occiderunt," i, 136.—See, also, Trethak, Thos., i, 145.

Appropriation to the College of Slapton of this Rectory—

The Bishop states that he had received Letters Apostolick from Pope John XXIII. on behalf of the Rector and College of Slapton; which he recites at large. The Pope had received a petition from the College, setting forth that, formerly, the Church of Loddiswell, of which they were Patrons, had been assigned to them (on the strength of a Letter from P. Boniface VIII.), for the support of the Rector, 6 priests and 4 clerks (the number then; since much increased), a suitable Portion being reserved for the Vicar thereof; but that the said Pope, on xi Kal. Jan. Anno Pontif. XIV., had quashed all appropriations made by himself which had not already taken effect—[See fol. 284[b]. ad finem]. They pleaded, however, for an exception in this case, as the income of the College was insufficient for its maintenance, not exceeding 160 marks, while the revenue of Loddiswell did not exceed 60 marks; and the Pope granted their request, reserving for the Vicar who should serve the said Church a competent stipend [Dat. at Rome, at St. Peter's, xiiij Kal. Feb., in the 3rd year of his Pontificate—i.e. 1413]. The Bishop, accordingly, proceeded to assign the said Vicar's portion, having summoned to appear before him all parties interested, and especially Sir Peter Holdyche, Rector of Loddiswell; and after obtaining a return of the fruits and profits of the benefice, and of the glebe lands, buildings and enclosures, and also of the Episcopal dues, and of all burdens ordinary and extraordinary, he made division between the College and the Vicars, as follows:—The College was to have all the great tithes of the whole parish, that is to say "decimas garbarum sive granorum frumenti, ordei, siliginis, avenarum, fabarum, pisarum, vescarum et omnium aliorum bladorum sive segetum cujuscumque generis fuerint aut nature," from all fields, meadows, &c., under cultivation, and from the gardens of the parishioners; while the great tithes arising from the Sanctuary (de Sanctuario) of the said Church were reserved for the Vicars, whether they kept it in hand or no. Moreover the College was to hold, for the storing of their crops, and for the accommodation of themselves, their agents, and their beasts, whenever they might need to be there, the barn lately built there, "una cum area et parietibus suis," where, lately, were cattle houses, commonly called "boveria," and other buildings, recently pulled down (just outside the wall or enclosure of the inner manse of the Rector), which had been constructed to shelter the cattle and other beasts, and which the College was to rebuild, in the antient or in another form, as might seem best, at their own cost. They were to have also a certain "park" commonly called "Movhay," together with a certain close, on the west side of the said barn, commonly called "Fursepark," with free ingress and egress to and fro—"ad ea et ab hiis"—for ever. But the hedges and banks of the said close "of Fursepark," with the trees and plants growing therein, the College was to have and keep up on the side where the pool or ditch—"alveus, fossa, sive fossata"—adjoins "Fursepark," whereas on the side where it adjoins the Sanctuary and glebe lands the Vicar was to maintain them. To provide against loss and injury befalling himself or his successors, in consequence of this transaction, the Bishop assigned an annual pension of 20*s.*, to be paid by the College, at the Palace at Exeter, every year, on Michaelmas Day from the date of the cession, or decease, of the present Rector, and their entering on quiet possession. Moreover, to augment the Vicar's stipend the College was to pay him annually xl s. in four quarterly payments on the Quarter Days; and for the relief of poor parishioners, according to statute, x*s.*, on the Feast of the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr of Canterbury, to be distributed in the Church of Loddiswell, year by year, as long as this appropriation should endure. Further the Bishop decreed, as to the right of presentation to the vicarage, that, on the cession or decease of Sir Peter Holdyche, the Rector of Loddiswell, the College should be bound to present to the Bishop, within six months, a suitable parson; and he confirmed this right of presentation to the College for ever, on the understanding that the Vicar's portion and the lands, etc., of the Church of Loddiswell, "which, in the Diocese of Exeter we call vulgariter the Sanctuary," be secured to him, and the tithes of the said Sanctuary, and the whole altilage and the tithe feni, and all the small tithes of the parish, and all emoluments pertaining to the Church, and the pension of xl s., together with the hall, chambers, kitchen, and all other buildings, enclosures, etc., belonging to the Church, save only the great tithes and the barn, the court, and its fences, and the Movhay and Fursepark, above-mentioned. To prevent disputes, such as are apt to rise between appropriators and vicars as to the apportionment of tithes in cases of change in the mode of cultivation of meadows and orchards, the Bishop ordered that notwithstanding any change of culture, such as converting arable land into pasture or garden ground, or vice versa, there should be no change in the tithes on that account, as to the mode of dealing with them; but all great tithes, howsoever arising, should belong to the College, and all tithes feni, or other small tithes to the Vicar. Rules were prescribed touching the onera to be borne by both parties; and with regard to the Vicars, in order to prevent mistakes and disputes in the future, the Bishop thought it expedient to decree that over and above the entire cure of the souls of the parishioners, the Vicar should be bound to maintain in proper order and repair, and to renew when necessary, the whole Chancel with its windows, and the celatura over the High Altar, the Office books also, and one Psalter; also, to pay the tenths—payable to the King or any other, and a pension of 6*s.* 8*d.* paid by the said Church, from antient times, to the Prior and Convent of Totnes, and all Synodals, &c., and all dues payable to episcopal legates and nuncios of the Apostolick See, to the Archbishop, the Bishop, and their Officers and Commissaries; and to the Archdeacon; —viz., procurations, subsidies, and the like—and he was to serve as Dean-Rural in his turn—"ac eciam Decani-Ruralis officii excercicium cum acciderit." He was to provide, also, incense and lights for the Chancel, and in short all onera whatsoever (save only the three pensions of xx*s.* xl*s.* and x*s.* aforesaid, and those which pertain to the parishioners) and this, on the ground that the Bishop had assigned, not only a sufficient, but even a superabundant portion to the said Vicar. And the Bishop specially reserved to himself and his successors the power of summary sequestration absque strepitu et figura judicii, in case the vicar should give any trouble to the College herein, or interfere with their rights as laid down by these presents.—Executed by the Bishop at Clyst, 19 Oct., 1413,—by the Rector, Priests and Clerks of the College, in their Chapter House at Slapton, on the 15th February, 1413-14—and by Peter Holdyche, (hitherto Rector, but from that time) Vicar of Loddiswell, on the 12th day of the same month, in the Bishop's presence, at Clyst, using the seal of Wm. Hunden, Archdeacon of Totnes; ii, 288-290b.

The parish-church, having been rebuilt, was dedicated 24 Sept., 1409, in honour of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, i, 90[b]. Henry Andrew, R. appointed a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Aylesbeare, i, 50. Early in 1407, becoming old and infirm and unable to do his duty, he resigned and applied for a pension. The Bishop accepted his resignation; and the patron, Sir William Bonevyll, knt., having appointed John Holcot, chaplain, he was instituted [13 April, 1407], and at the request of the said patron and with the new Rector's consent, the Bishop assigned to Andrew a pension of £10 for life, to be paid yearly on St. John Baptist's Day, by Holcot and his successors (16 April, 1407), i, 81.—Holcot seems to have been almost continuously non-resident. Within two years of his institution he obtained licence of non-residence for one year, from 4 Dec., 1408 (i, 87[b]); and, after a short interval, for a like period, year after year; viz., from 1 Aug., 1410 (i, 101); from 24 July, 1411 (i, 129[b]); from 4 Aug., 1412 (i, 163); from 17 Sept., 1413 (i, 183[b]); from 2 Oct., 1414 (i, 201[b]); from 23 Jan., 1415-16, to Michaelmas, 1416 (i, 215[b]); from 25 Jan., 1416-17, to Michaelmas, 1417 (i, 229); from 27 Jan., 1417-18, (i, 237[b]), and from 21 July, 1419 (i, 247[b]).

[Breve Regium.]—

The Bishop, in accordance with the King's Mandate, sends the official Letter of the Archdeacon of Totnes, shewing that he had convened the Clergy of the Deanery, viz., Edw. Daundesey, John Grymestone, David Loveryng, Roger Laug, Stephen Andrew, Thos. Raly, Robt. Pytman, and John Cowyk, Rectors of Ashwater, Holsworthy, Black Torrington, Bradford, Putford, Sutcombe, Holcombe, and Pyworthy, and also other neighbouring clerks, who knew the facts, viz., Laurence [Bedeman], Wm. Badecok, Thos. Dunham, Rectors of Lifton, Iddesleigh, and Torrington-parva, and John Yerde, Roger Treuerew, and Thos. Launcell, vicars of Bradworthy, Hatherleigh, and Broadwoodwidger—who testified that John Sergent, the last R., died 27 Jan., 1411—that Edw., Earl of Devon, and Sir John Arundell, knt., were the true patrons at that time; the former presenting 2 turns successively, and the latter the 3rd turn. At the last vacancy, Sir Rd. Stapyldon, knt., on the death of Walter Wollecomb, immediate predecessor of John Sergent, presented the said John Sergent, and because the said Sir Rd. was an outlaw at the time, on the suit of Sir Peter Veel, knt., K. Richard presented William Orbyry, clerk, and thereupon issued a writ of Quare impedit against Richard Stapyldon and John Sergent, and forthwith the said outlawry terminating, the said Richard Stapyldon recovered his right to present. But meanwhile the Living had lapsed to the Bishop (Brantingham); who, however, "graciously" collated Stapyldon's nominee, the said John Sergent. The right to present now belonged to Edw., Earl of Devon, for his 1st turn, by virtue of a settlement under the great Seal, the terms of which are recited at length. "Michaelmas, 15 Edw. III., K. of England, and 2 Edw. III., as K. of France [1341.]"—Before Roger Hyllary, Wm. Basset, Thos. de Heppescotes, and Rd. de Kelleshylle, Judges,—between Hugh de Courtenay, Earl of Devon, and Margaret his wife, and Wm. Chebeseye, chaplain, and John Horncastell, chaplain, concerning the Manors of Cadelegh, Nuneham Courtenay, Whitewell and Huntbear, and certain rents in Milton Damarel, and the advowsons of Woodleigh, Stoke Damarel, Milton Damarel, and St. Leonard's in the suburbs of Exeter, in Devonshire; the Manor of Hull in Dorset, and a mediety of the Manor of Crewkerne in Somersetshire.—The Earl acknowledged the rights herein of the said Wm. and John, and they, in their turn, conceded the same to the Earl and Margaret his wife (the manors, rent, and mediety to the Earl and the said Margaret and to his heirs whatsoever, and the advowson to the Earl and the said Margaret and their heirs; to have and to hold of the King and his heirs, by customary service for ever. Moreover, the said Wm. and John granted the said Manor of Hull, which Clarice, wife of Sir Rob. de Hull held at the time of her death, and which ought to have reverted to the said Wm. and John, to remain to the said Earl and Margaret and the heirs of their bodies in like manner. Provided that, if the said Earl and Margaret should leave no heir, the said manor of Hull and the said advowson should remain to the direct heirs of the said Earl for ever. This settlement was made by the King's command, and they say that Edward Courtenay is the heir of the said Hugh and Margaret, being son of Sir Edw. de Courtenay, knt., who was son and heir of the said Hugh and Margaret, to whom accordingly belongs the right of presentation to Milton Damarel for this turn.—The living was free from pensions, portions, &c.—and was taxed at xx marks,—the Clerk presented was of good repute, and in every way fit; in priest's orders, and over 40 years old. He was R. of the Parish of Northill, and Preb. of Glasney. Richard Courtenay had presented one Rob. Osan, clerk, but on investigation it was decided that the said Richard had no right to present, as indeed Osan had himself confessed. [Dated in the parish-church of Holsworthy [Hollysworth, MS.], 22 April, 1411], ii, 341.

Walter Colle, R.; licence of non-residence (to study at Oxford), for 3 years, from 16 Oct., 1413, i, 186.

North Tawton, Matthew Chapman of, i, 140b;

[Breve Regium—8 June, 1410]—Mandate to the Bishop, to enquire as to the right of patronage claimed by Richard Haukeford, who (many years previously) had presented John Boure,[1] clerk ; ii, 333b.—On 8 Oct. following, the Bishop certified as follows : Diligent search had been made in the Diocesan Registry, and it was found that Ralph Tregrysiou, Dean of Exeter and Vicar-General, had been deputed to make enquiry as to the patronage of North Tawton (alias Chepyngtauton). This was done through the Archdeacon of Barnstaple. The said Richard Hankeford had presented the said John Boure; and the Archdeacon was to report the facts, as ascertained, to the said Vicar-General; (16 Jan., 1397-8). For this purpose he summoned John [Hopere] de Bonelegh, John [Poyns] de Chalvelegh, Thomas [de Bukenarle] de Lappeford, Roger [Yurd] de Wemmaunthy, Robert [Forde] de Nymet Roland, Walter [Beare] de Sele-monachorum (in the person of John Gyffard, chaplain)—all Rectors ; and these Vicars, viz., Roger [Cole] de Burryngton, and Thomas [Sprot] de Colrych, all of the Deanery of Chulmleigh, in full Chapter assembled; who said that the Church of North Tawton had become vacant by the death of John Northwode, 10 Jan. [1397-8], and that Rd. Haukford was the true patron, in right of his wife Thomasia, daughter and heir of Sir Richard Stapylton, knt., Lord of Estyngton, in the said parish ; her grandfather, also a Sir Richard Stapylton, had last presented. They reported further that there was a pension of two marks, payable to St. Nicholas' Priory, Exeter, which had been withheld for the three years last past ; also, that all had been done regularly in the case of this presentation (28 Jan., 1397-8) : ii, 333b.—[Breve Regium, 1 Nov., 1413]—To certify the King as to an earlier Enquiry, made in the time of Walter [de Stapledon], the late Bishop, as to the vacancy and right of patronage.—[Breve Regium] ; The Bishop's certificate therein, to the effect that the Archdeacon of Barnstaple had then reported, to the said Bishop Walter de Stapledon, that he had convened the Dean of the place (loci Decanum), viz., Henry, R. of Wembworthy, and other neighbouring Clergymen, who were not satisfied as to the vacancy, not having been able to prove that Richard de Wellyngton, the last Rector, was dead, or that he had resigned, or been deprived ; they found, however, that Sir Richard de Stapledon was the true patron, having bought the glebe and the advowson of Hugh de Walletort (sic), 9 March, 1317 ; ii, 348.—This John Boure (or Bowre), R. ; obtained licence of non-residence for a year, 9 July, 1398, contemplacione honorabilis viri, Willelmi Hankeford, Justiciarii Domini nostri Regis, i, 20b : a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Chulmleigh, i, 94, 115b, 143b, 174, 194b, 207b ; Overseer of the Will of Rd. Okehampton and Cowick, Ordinacio concerning, by Bishop Stafford—The Bishop sets forth that between the Prior and Monks of Cowick, appropriators of the Parish-Church of Okehampton [Okhampton, alias Okementon], on the one part, and John Newcomb, Vicar, thereof, on the other part, grave differences had lately arisen, touching the repairs of the Chancel and the provision of office-books therein, and that the said Prior, &c., by their proxy, John Hethfeld, chaplain, and the said Vicar in person had appeared before him at Clyst, 3 June, 1417, and had stated their case, the former alleging that by Bishop Briwere's Ordinacio, and by custom, the Vicar was liable, and the said Vicar maintaining the contrary view. With the consent of both parties, the Bishop settled their differences thus :—"The said Vicar and his successors were to keep up both the Chancel and the office-books; and by way of compensation it was agreed that in the case of any subsidy to be paid by the Vicar, and in the case of procurations payable by him on account of Archiepiscopal and Episcopal visitations, the Prior, &c., should pay one entire moiety of the same. Also the Prior and Convent agreed to remit 6s. 8d. per annum out of an annual pension of two marks payable to them by the Vicar, reducing the said pension to 20s. per annum. This settlement the Bishop declared to be just and fair, and he confirmed the same accordingly. Bishop Briwere's Ordinacio, mentioned above, is quoted in full, granting to the Prior and Convent of Cowick the Church of "Okementon" and the Chapel in the Castle there, with the consent of Courtenay [de consensu de Curtenay, veri patroni], reserving to the Vicar all the obventions of both, the glebe [sanctuarium] and the court and buildings thereon, and the tithes, great and small, therefrom; save that the Convent was to enjoy the tithes garbarum both of the whole parish and of the tenants of the glebe, together with a suitable space adjoining the Vicar's court, and a barn; with two silver marks yearly at Michaelmas. The Vicar was to be liable for omnia onera debita et consueta Episcopalia, etiam Archidiaconalia, dictam ecclesiam et dictam capellam contingencia [these were the disputed words], and to provide for Divine service daily in the said Chapel. It was dated at Exeter, die Martis, in Easter week, 1239.—The date of this Ordinacio was as given above, "at Clyst, &c." The Prior, &c., signed it on 7 June, in their Chapter House; the Vicar, at Clyst, on the same day, ii, 292b, 293b.

Oldcastel, Sir John: Certificatorium super execucione Literarum Domini Cantuariensis contra Dominum Johannem Oldcastel.—Certain charges of heresy had been brought against Sir John in Convocation, and it was determined to make representation thereon to the King; at whose instance further proceedings were stayed for a time, that he might be induced to recant his errors. The King's efforts proving of no avail, the Archbishop attempted to cite him by means of one John Boteler, who proceeded to his castle of Coulyng for that purpose; but Oldcastel declined to be served. The Archbishop accordingly caused him to be publickly cited to appear before him on Sept. 11th, in his Castle of Ledys, and as he failed to appear, he declared him contumacious and excommunicate. He was again cited to appear, on the Saturday next after St. Matthew's Day (Sept. 23), on which day, having been apprehended, he was brought before the Archbishop and the Bishops of London and Winchester, in St. Paul's Cathedral, in custody of Sir Robert de Morley, knt., Keeper of the Tower. The Archbishop declared to him the charges alleged against him and told him that he had been pronounced excommunicate for contumacy; but he refused absolution, and, taking from his bosom a certain Indenture containing the profession of his faith, he read it aloud, and then handed it to the Archbishop, as follows:—

"I, Johan Oldcastell, knyght, Lord of Cobham, wole that alle Cristen men wyte and vndirstonde that I clepe Almyghti God in to witnesse that it hath ben, now is, and ever with the help of God schal be myn entent and my wille to bileve feithfully and fully alle the sacraments that ever God ordeyned to be do in holichurche, and more over for to declare me in these foure poyntis. I bileve that the most wurschupfull sacrament of the auter is Cristys body in fourme of breed, the same body that was born of the blessid Virgyne oure Lady Seinte Marie, doon on the cros, deed ant bured, the thridde day roos for deeth to lyf, the whiche body is now glorified in Hevene. Also, as for the sacrament of penance, I bileve that it is nedefull to everyman that schal be saved to forsake synne and do duhe penaunce for synne bifore doon, with trewe confession, veray contricion, and duhe satisfacion, as Goddis lawe limyteth and techeth, and ellys may he not be saved; which penance I desire alle men to doo. And as of ymages Y undirstonde that they be not of bileve, but that they were ordeyned syth the bileve was ȝive of Crist, by suffrance of the churche, to be kalenders to lewed men, tho represente and brynge to mynde the passion of oure Lord Ihu Crist, ant martirdoom and good lyvyng of other seyntes; ant that who so it be that doth the wurschup to dede ymages that is duhe to God, or putteth feith, hope, or trust in help of hem, as he schulde doo to God, or hath affeccion in oon more than in an other, he doth yn that the grete synne of Mawmetrie. Also, I suppose this fully that every man in this erthe is a pilgrym toward blisse or toward peyne; and that he that knoweth not, ne wole not knowe ne kepe, the holy commandements of God in his lyvynge here, al be it that he goo on pilgremage to all the world and he dye so, he schal be dampned, and he that knoweth the holy commaundements of God and kepeth em to his ende, he schal be saved, though he never in his lif go on pilgremage, as men use now, to Canturbury or to Rome, or to any other place."

The Archbishop acknowledged that this profession contained many things which were both good and Catholick, but further questioned him on certain points. He refused to answer further, and was warned by the Archbishop that if he persisted in refusing, he would be condemned as a heretick; and he expounded to Sir John the doctrine of the Church on the points at issue, the latter replying that he believed what the Church taught and God's word declared, but not what the Pope and Cardinals and Prelates of the Church maintained. The Archbishop, pitying him, gave him the following statement of doctrine, in English, that he might consider it with greater deliberation, and appointed the following Monday (Sept. 25) for his final answer:

"The faith and the determinacion of holichurche touchyng the blisful sacrament of the auter is this, that after the sacramental wordis ben sayd by a prest in his masse the materiel bred that was bifor is turned into Cristes veray Body and the materiel wyn that was bifor is turned in to Crystes verray Blood, and so ther leveth in the auter no material breed ne material wyn, the whiche were there bifore the seyinge of the Sacramental wordis. How lyve ȝe this article? Holichurche hath determyned that every cristene man lyvynge here bodilich in erthe oughte to be schryve to a prest ordred by the Churche, if he may come to hym. How feele ȝe this articule? Criste ordeyned Seynt Petir the apostell to ben his vicaire here in erthe, whos see is the churche of Rome, ordeynyng and grauntyng the same power that he ȝaf to Petir schulde succede to alle Peters successours, the whiche we callen now Popes of Rome: by whos power in churches particuler special ben ordeyned prelatis as Archebischopis, bischopis, curatis, and other degrees to whom cristen men oughte to obbeye after lawes of the Churche of Rome. This is the terminacion of holychurche. How feele ȝe this article? Holichur (sic) hath determyned that it is needefull to a cristen man to goo a pilgremage to holy places, and there specially to wurschupe holy reliqes of seyntes, apostelys, martirs, confessours, and alle seyntes approved by the Church of Rome: how feele ȝe this article." On the day appointed the same Prelates sat again, with the addition of Benedict, Bishop of Bangor and certain others, viz., Henry Ware, the Archbishop's Official, Philip Morgan, Howel Kiffyn, John Kempe, Wm. Carleton, John Wyttnam, Thomas Palmere, Rt. Wombewelle, John Whitheed, Robert Chamburlayn, Rd. Dodyngton, Thomas Walden; and Jas. Cole, and John Stevenys, notaries public. Oldcastel was again brought before the tribunal, by Sir Robert de Morley; but he refused to ask for absolution except from God; and, having been invited to say what answer he could give as to the points which had been submitted to him, he made a full statement of his opinion as to the Holy Eucharist, the Sacrament of Penance, the adoration of the Cross, and the Power of the Keys, concluding by warning the bystanders in a loud voice against his Judges, who were deceiving both them and their own selves. Again the Archbishop exhorted him; but, as he refused to give way, he solemnly and in the Name of God adjudged him guilty of heresy, and directed the Bishop of London, and through him all the Suffragans of the Province of Canterbury, to provide for publishing the sentence in every church "in a loud and intelligible voice, and in the mother tongue." His letter was dated at Maidstone, 10 Oct., 1413, and the Bishop of London's to Bishop Stafford, in accordance therewith, and containing a copy thereof, at Hadham, on 23 Oct., following; i, 191-193[b].

The Bishop's Mandate for the Visitation, 21 June, 1400 ; i, 39b.
Henry, a chaplain of this parish, was a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Aylesbeare, i, 50.
Robert, Bishop of London, and Bishop Stafford, to the Warden and College of,—"Ordinacio" concerning certain rents in the City of London, bequeathed to the College for pious purposes.—Sir William Thyrnyng, knt., Sir Gerard Braybrok, knt., Thos. Stowe, clerk, Edmund Hampdene, esq., John Wyke, clerk, John Skystelyng, clerk, and Roger Albryghton, clerk, with the King's licence, had assigned to the College for ever a certain messuage called Blosmysyn, with a shop on the north side thereof, in the parish of St. Laurence, Old Jewry, and a garden in the parish of All Saints' Hony Lane thereto adjoining ; also, a messuage called Warchous annexed thereto, and a certain yearly rent of 26s. 8d. arising out of certain tenements hard by, formerly belonging to Walter Cavendysh, citizen and mercer of London, and William Gore, citizen and foundour of the said city. The Bishops appropriate the proceeds thus :—
(1) To each of the 8 canons, if in residence, 2s. 6d.
(2) „ the Parochial Chaplain, 15d.
(3) „ the Master of the School. 10d.
(4) „ each of the 2 clerici aquebajuli, 10d., quarterly.
(5) „ „ 8 vicars and 2 priests [appropriation of the R. of Northam] and the morning chaplain, 12d.
(6) To each of the 8 clerks called Secundarii, and the clerk of Our Lady's Chapel, 8d.
(7) To each of the 2 clerks called "clerici ecclesie," 8d.
(8) „ „ 8 choristers, 4d., every month, counting 13 months in the year.
(9) To the canons, priests, and clerks, for the obit of Nicholas Braybrok and Sir Thomas Mountenay, knt. (on second day after the F. of the Epiphany) 10s. among them, and
(10) 3s. 4d. to be given to the poor—for their souls.
(11) to four of the clerks, viz., the 2 clerici ecclesie and the 2 aquebajuli, 8d. yearly, in the future, pro classico in dicto obitu faciendo.
(12) and (for repairing their houses)—to the Vicars, 3s. 4d. ; to the secundarii, 16d. ; to the schoolmaster and the choristers, 2s.
(13) to the receivers of the rents, &c., 13s. 4d. for their labour, over and above all costs for repairs.
(14) to a chaplain, to serve in the West Chapel, without the door of the Cathedral (wherein the body of John de Grandisson, the late Bishop, rests), for his food and clothing, 8 marks a year in quarterly payments of 26s. 8d., on condition of continual residence ; and if the receivers were in arrear of such payments for a month at the end of any quarter, they were to pay the chaplain 40d. in compensation, out of their own allowance.
The said chaplain was to be removed if he alienated in any manner the books, missal, and other ornaments of the Chantry ; the College to provide all things necessary for the service, and to renew and repair the same, and to receive from these rents 6s. 8d. yearly for the same.
The Receivers were to see to the due observance of the obit of Nicholas Braybrok, in the Cathedral, on the same 2nd day after the Epiphany, and to remunerate the priests and clerks. They were to provide a strong chest, to be kept in the Treasury at Ottery, for the safe keeping of all moneys, each of the two receivers to hold a key. If any of the beneficiaries were non-resident, except on College business, or being resident absented himself from his duties, unless sick, he should forfeit his allowance.
The election of Receivers was to take place annually on the vigil of St. Michael the Archangel, one Canon and one Vicar being chosen by the College. Rules were laid down for their guidance. Provision was made for prayers on behalf of the above-named Bishops (of London and Exeter) in life and after death, for ever; and power was reserved to the Bishops of Exeter to vary all these provisions at their discretion, if necessary.—Dat. London, 22 Feb. 1402-3; and accepted by the Coll. 5 April 1404, ii, 278, 279b. See Oliver's Monasticon, pp. 275-7.

John Hamond, Sacristan, accused of certain grave offences, appeared before the Bishop's commissaries, and was convicted. The Bishop decided that, forasmuch as the said Sacristan was, by reason of old age, quite incapacitated for duty, a coadjutor was necessary; and he appointed Henry Clement, priest, and chaplain of the parish—"virum utique providum et circumspectum"—to serve in this capacity during pleasure, with an annual stipend of 30s.; requiring Walter Robert, Precentor, and Robert Wantyng, Minister, to see to the due carrying out of the arrangement (12 Nov., 1409), i, 90.—Certain grave charges were also brought before the Bishop against the Canons; who were accused of quarrelling, disobeying the statutes, neglecting the Divine offices, and other scandalous conduct: so the Bishop descended upon the place, 20 June, 1408, to see and hear for himself. The Warden, etc., appeared before him and asked him to deal with the case summarily. But the Bishop ordered a formal enquiry to be made, and directed a Commission to the Treasurer, Richard Hals, and to William Hunden, Archdeacon of Totnes, for the settlement of the matter, in his own necessary absence (2 July, 1408), ii, 231b.

Pancraswyke, the "Ordinacio" of the Chapel—"Sancti Pancracii de Prankardeswyke (sic),"—

The Bishop having been informed by the parishioners of this Chapelry (which was attached to Bradworthy, belonging to Torre Abbey), that it was a separate parish as to population and boundaries, possessing its own baptistery, and all things pertaining to a parish except the right of sepulture; that the roads and streams between them and the Mother-Church were dangerous for funerals, and therefore they prayed the Bishop to dedicate the said Chapel, and the adjacent ground for a Cemetery; he issued a Commission, directed to the Religious of Torre Abbey and to John Dalkyn, V. of Bradworthy, to make enquiry as to the facts. The result being favourable to their petition, the Bishop summoned the Abbot of Torre and the Vicar, on the one part, and the parishioners, by their proxies, Robert atte Wode and Richard Heyne, on the other part, to appear before him at Chudleigh, 8 Nov., 1403, for the determination of this business. The prayer of the parishioners was granted, saving the rights of the Mother-Church; to which they were all bound to repair once a year (on the Sunday next after the Feast of St. Pancras), and offer one obolus; but they were to make their oblations at their own Chapel on all Saints' Days and at Christmas and Easter; the chaplain to be withdrawn to the Mother-Church in case of default or attempt to evade these conditions (8 Nov., 1403), i, 68.

[Breve Regium]—Prohibition to admit pending the settlement of the dispute as to the patronage between Wm. Durneford and Alice his wife, and Thomas Beaumont, John Bydewyll, Henry Crosse, and John Foke (dated at Bristol, 12 March, 1397-8), ii, 307[b]. The said John Fouk (sic) was inst. 17 June following (ii, 12[b]); he was only in subdeacon's orders, and within a year (17 April, 1400), obtained a dispensation (to study at Oxford) for seven years; i, 36[b]. He did not live so long, but died in 1406, ii, 92. Letters Dimissary had been granted to him, 21 Jan., 1402-3, to enable him to proceed to deacon and priest's orders, i, 62[b]. Richard Graynevyll, LL.B, his successor, was inst. 7 Oct., 1406 (ii, 92); and, 21 April, 1407, was licensed to celebrate in all chapels and oratories in the Diocese, i, 82. But, as with his predecessor, his parishioners did not see much of him: on 3 June, 1410, he obtained licence of non-residence for one year, i, 97; also, from 22 Oct., 1411, i, 137[b]; from 31 Oct., 1413, to Michaelmas, 1414, i, 187[b]; from 18 Oct., 1414, to Michaelmas, 1415, i, 203; from 20 Oct., 1415, to Michaelmas, 1416, i, 213[b]; from 7 Oct., 1416, to Michaelmas, 1417, i, 226[b]; from 10 Dec., 1417, to Michaelmas, 1418, i, 237; and for a year from 10 Oct., 1418, i, 243; see, also, ii, 236.

Pyworthy [Pyworth, MS.], John Flemmyng, R.—

It had been represented to the Bishop that he was notoriously unfit to discharge his duties, being weak of body and enfeebled in mind; he was also, nearly blind. The Bishop accordingly appointed John Sergeaunt, R. of Milton Damarel, to take care of both Flemmyng and his parish, and Flemmyng consented to the arrangement; but the Bishop reserved to him an allowance for victuals and clothing, and made due provision for the services in the parish-church, and for the repair and maintenance of the Rectory House and the other buildings; and he stipulated that the afflicted Rector's convenience should be consulted in every way, and all annoyance to him avoided; requiring, moreover, that to him, or his assigns, a due account should be rendered (27 June, 1402), ii, 22.—Nevertheless, in the following year, Flemmyng was permitted to exchange this Benefice for Inwardleigh, having been found, after an inquisition, to be sound in mind and body (27 Jan., 1402-3), ii, 228[b]. He lived for some years, resigning in 1409; ii, 108[b]. But see Inwardleigh, i, 74. St. German's Priory, John Averay (Aneray, Oliver), Prior of,—

The Bp. visited St. German's in this Prior's time, 3 Sept., 1400, and found that John Pengelly, Nicholas Julyan, John Brystowe, and Burnard Page (alias Skelly), canons, had been guilty of scandalous and immoral conduct. He commanded each of them to be put to open penance. Pengelly was to sit on the floor in the middle of the Refectory, at meal time, and have nothing but bread and water, once in the day, every Friday for seven weeks ; for a whole year he was to confine himself strictly to the choir and cloister, and not to walk about the nave or speak to any women (whether of doubtful character or not), unless he had a trustworthy Brother in his company : he was not to undertake any manner of office within the said Priory throughout the year : and he was to forfeit out of his allowance for clothing one noble, to be expended on the fabrick of the Church : should he rebel, the Prior was to shut him up in ergastulo ipsius Prioratus for eight days, and allow him no flesh meat. Julyan was also condemned to sit on the floor of the Refectory "duabus sextis feriis, inchoando die Veneris proximo post festum Sancti Michaelis Archangeli," and to have only bread and water once in the day ; for a quarter of a year "a festo Sancte Fidis ;" he was to be confined to the cloister and choir ; and to forfeit 40*d.* out of his allowance for clothing, to be applied to the fabrick of the Church ; moreover, he was to sleep in the common dormitory. The same penance was assigned to Brystowe ; and Page was to abstain from fish and wine for two successive Fridays, and contribute 40*d.* to the fabrick-fund. The Bishop wrote to the Prior (from Launceston Priory), 18 September, requiring him to see to the execution of the sentence in each case, "in virtute obediencie nobis prestite," i, 48.

This Prior was collector in Cornwall of the moneys granted, 2 March, 1397-8, by Convocation to the King: the Bishop threatened the contumacious with excommunication (3 Feb., 1398-9), ii, 222b.

The Priory being vacant, by Averay's death, 8 Sept., 1404, the Sub-prior and Convent, on the 11th, obtained the Bishop's licence to elect a successor. Noel Patreda, the Bishop's steward in Cornwall was made guardian of the Temporalities ; and on the 23rd John Pyper, one of the Canons was elected. John Waryn, V. of Liskeard, was commissioned to proclaim the election in due form and to certify accordingly on the 27th. Pyper had been accused of adultery, and was required to attend, and purge himself from the said charge, in the Cathedral, on the 1st Oct., before Hugh Hyckelyng, Precentor, Rob. Rigg, Chancellor, and John Lideford and John Schillyngford, canons ; this he did, and his election was confirmed at Coventry,[1] ii, 78b. Six years later (2 July, 1410), a Commission was directed to Archdeacon Hunden, Chancellor of the Diocese, to receive him in Liskeard Church, that he might purge himself from certain charges brought against him, ii, 232b.—On 17 Sept., 1410, he was found in heavy arrears to the Pope's Collector, i, 105.—Licensed, 5 Oct., 1411, to celebrate in private oratories, within all manors etc. belonging to the Priory, i, 135.

David Noy, chaplain, of this Priory, was a Penitentiary in the Deanery of East, i, 217, 238, 245b.

The Prior and Convent presented to Gulval, ii, 4b, 153b ; to Landrake, ii, 10b ; to Morval, ii, 74 ; and to South Petherwin, ii, 123b.

to the pollution of the cemetery there, with bloodshed, by Ralph Collurian and John Ewty, a minor, on the one part, and John Penhalow on the other, ii, 264. On 3 March, a commission was directed to Bryt, and to Wm. Pensans (V. of St. Breage), to reconcile the same. In the latter the names are Ralph Collurian, John Wyse, John Ewty de Margaiov [? Market-Jew—Marazion], Warin, a servant of the said Ralph, and John Penhalow ; ii, 264b. See, i, 314b.

Inquisition as to dilapidations caused by his predecessor, Thos. Cotteford (30 April, 1397), i, 12 ; ii, 316.—John Barell, R., i, 88b ; ii, 125.

This R. complained to the Bp. that, (although the right of appointment to the office of aquebajulus pertains to the R. or V. of a Church), on his appointing one Thos. Trescuerd, clerk, to the said office at St. Illogan, when he had enjoyed the same peaceably for a month and more, certain persons, to wit Thos. and Ralph Carnarthur, Rob. Hunte, and Rd. Bre, had not only removed the said Thomas from his benefice but also had intruded one John Carnarthur into the same. The Bishop satisfied himself as to the facts, and wrote to the Dean of Penwith, to John Chyvarton and John Hoggekyn, chaplains, and to Rd. Penpons, clerk, directing them to warn the offenders, and the intruder also, to desist from their wrong-doing, and not to molest Trescuerd, under pain of excommunication (16 March, 1410-11), i, 120b.

Brev. Reg.—(1.) Prohibition to admit, pending settlement of the dispute as to the patronage between John Basset and the Bishop, Henry, Prince of Wales, Sir John Arundell, and John Barell, clerk, 28 Sept. : 1403, ii, 314b.—Also (2) [MS. here, "Seynt Lugans], 12 Oct., 1403 ; ii, 315.—(3.) Prohibition suspended, 10 Nov., 1403, ii, 315b. (4.) Forbidding the Bishop to present by lapse "jure ordinario," 12 Feb., 1403-4 ; ibid.—(5.) John Basset had appeared at Westminster, in Hilary Term ; and it was alleged, on the King's behalf, that Sir Wm. Basset, 'chivaler,' was seized of Tehidy [Tihidy, MS.]—to which the advowson of this Church belonged—and held the same of K. Richard II., as of the Duchy of Cornwall, by military service ; that he presented one Thos. Cotford to the said Church, who was inst. in time of peace, in K. Richard's time ; and that, later on, the said Wm. Basset conceded the said Manor, but not the said advowson, to Thos. Chambernon, Otho Bodrigan, John Colyn, Thos. Cotford, and Jas. Gervays, for the term of their natural lives, with reversion to Wm. Basset—his heirs, &c. ; that the said Wm. Basset died, and so the reversionary right on the death of the persons above-named, together with the advowson, had descended to John, the said William's son, a minor ; so that the King [Richard II] was seized both of the body of the said minor and of the said advowson during his minority ; that, afterwards, the Church became vacant, on the death of Thos. Cotford, while John Basset was still a minor, and the King thereupon presented Wm. Styward, who was duly inst. ; that, soon after, Styward also died, and the right to present was claimed by the King [Henry IV.] John Basset traversed these pleas on various grounds, and claimed judgment in his favour (8 May, 1404), i ,315b.—See "Institutions."

St. Issey:

This parish was antiently called "Egloscruc;" by which Oliver supposed that the parish of "Egloskerry" was meant (Monasticon, p. 438); and he identified "Eglosros" with St. Issey in one place (p. 438), and with Philleigh in another (p. 439); whereas it is, undoubtedly, the antient name of the latter parish, which is, in "Roseland," and of that only. The references which he gives from the Registers of Brantingham, Stafford, and Vesey, belong not to Egloskerry but to St. Issey; and so, of course, does the Dedication "Sanctorum Ide et Lyddy de Egloscruc," or, simply, "Sancta Ida." It may be expedient, therefore, to give in full the two documents referring to this parish which are found in Bishop Stafford's Register: -

I. "INDULGENCIA": -"Universis Sancte Matris Ecclesiæ filiis, ad quos presentes litere pervenerint, Edmundus, miseracione divina Exoniensis Episcopus, salutem in Eo per Quem fit remissio peccatorum. Et quid in premissis feceritis nos hujusmodi negocio expedito debite certificatis, per literas vestras patentes, harum ac tocius processus vestri in hac parte habendi seriem, sigillo vestri officii consignatas.—Dat. in Manerio nostro Criditonensi xv^to^ die mensis Julii, Anno Domini Mill^mo^ Quadringentesimo, et nostre Consecracionis Anno Sexto.—ii, 227^b^.

There is no record of his institution, but it seems that it was accidentally omitted; for at ii, 48^b^, in the margin, I find the following memorandum :—"Hic deficit Institucio Vicarii de Egloscruk."[1] The date must have been 23 July, 1400; and Henry Nanskelly was, doubtless, intended; but he is not mentioned by name. John Nanskelly, the resigning Vicar, was instituted, by Bishop Brantingham, 26 April, 1382; he was V. of Launcells, and exchanged with Rd. Doty, who is described as Vicar of the Church "Sanctorum Ide et Lydi de Egloscruk."

St. Kea [Landege, MS.]—

A question arose as to the taxation of the Vicarage of this Church, and the Bishop caused the Register of Walter I. (i.e. Bronescombe) to be examined:

[1] It is curious that the next entry (ii, fol. 228) is the subject of a like accidental omission in the regular Record of Institutions.—"Item, eisdem die et loco, emanavit consimilis Commissio Johanni, Priori Prioratus de Plympton directa, ad admittendum Gilbertum Baker, capellanum ad perpetuam vicariam ecclesie parochialis de Bokelond, Exoniensis Diocesis, per liberam resignacionem Domini Willelmi Grym, ultimi Vicarii ejusdem; ad presentacionem Religiosorum virorum Abbatis et Conventus de Bokelond, Cisterciensis Ordinis, ut in forma superius annotatur." But at fol. 49 I find only, in the margin, "Hic deficit Institucio Vicarii de Bokelond."

it was found that that Prelate "die Jovis post Festum Assumpcionis Beate Marie, 1270," assigned to the V. the whole altilage of the Mother-Church, and of the Chapels of Kenwen [hodie Kenwyn] and Tregeufedon [Tregavethan ?], "exceptis decimis fabarum et pisorum in campis crescencium." He was, also, to have all the buildings, with the whole "sanctuary," pertaining to the said church and chapels; to pay £3 yearly to the Canons of Glasney, and to bear all burdens whatsoever (10 Nov., 1416), i, 228.

St. Keverne [Sancti Kierani, MS.]—

The Bishop licensed (13 May, 1403), the Chapel of St. John Bapt. at Lesteuder [hodie Lestowder], for celebrations on the Feasts of that Saint's Nativity and Decollation, i, 64b. [Breve Regium—12 Feb., 1416-17].—Wm. Bray, V.; Mandate to appear before the Barons of the Exchequer at Westminster, to make answer concerning certain goods and chattels of his—viz., 1 portiforium, worth 40s.; 2 horses, worth 10 marks; 3 beds "cum capitalibus," worth 30s.; 3 pairs of "blankettes," worth 20s.; 4 pairs of sheets (linthiaminum), worth 26s. 8d.; 3 togas, worth 60s.; 2 baselardi harnesiati in silver, worth 5 marks; 2 silver belts, worth 40s.; 3 bankers; 6 cushions (quyssons), worth 13s. 4d.; 2 tables (tabule mensales), and 2 pairs of trestles (trestularum), worth 10s.; 3 forms with one chair (cathedra), worth 5s.; 3 table-cloths (mappe mensales), and 3 napkins (manutergia), worth 20s.; 2 washbasins (lavatoria) with 2 ewers (pelves), worth 10s.; 3 brazen pots (olle) and 3 small dishes (patelle), worth 30s.; 20 plates of tin, worth 6s. 8d.; 1 silver cup (ciphus), worth 20s.; 12 silver spoons (cocliaria), worth 26s. 8d.; 3 chests, worth 13s. 4d.; and other goods and chattels and divers utensils for household use to the value of £10, all forfeit to the King, the said Wm. having been outlawed 29 Sept., 7 Henry IV. (1405), at the suit of the Abbot of Beaulieu. Also, concerning all the revenues of the Vicarage from the said 29 Sept., ii, 360b. [Breve Regium—28 April, 1417]—Mandate to the Bishop, to relax the sequestration of the said goods and chattels, ibid.

Commission to enquire as to the interdict laid on this church and on that of St. Neot's certain persons having been permitted to preach therein, who had no authority or licence from the Bishop (17 May, 1412), ii, 246. It appears (i, 161b) that John Burgh, chaplain, was the irregular preacher at St. Kew, and (i, 161) Walter Treyngoff, M.A., at St. Neot's: both interdicts were relaxed, 11 June, 1412.—See Bokelly and Helygan (Oratories).

[1] This is very curious. A Sanctus Docwinus founded a Monastery in Llandaff (See Rees' Welsh Saints, 183, and Index), and these Welsh Saints frequently appear in Cornwall. Another name of St. Kew is Landoho or Lanehoc (Domesday) or Lantloho, i.e. Lan-doc (Docwinus), softened afterwards into Lannow. Rees identifies Docwinus with Cyngar, and says that his church in Glamorganshire is Llandoch. In Prynne's Records, iii, 718, "S. Landoco" actually occurs. —C.W.B., Ex. Coll. Oxon.

[2] He was V. in 1388 (as we learn from Bishop Brantingham's Register), and was living as late as 1418-19 (i, 245b); only his Christian name is given in Stafford's Register.

St. Madron [Sancti Maderni, MS.]—

Chapel of St. Bridget, licensed 22 Sept., 1400, i, 49; Chapel of St. Morwetha, licensed [the Bishop was staying at the time "in domo habitacionis Willelmi Tregilliowe apud Marchiow (Marazion)"]; for Rd. Reche, chaplain, "absque prejudicio matricis ecclesie, dum tamen eorum quorum interest accedat consensus ..... proviso quod parochianis dicte vicarie Sacramenta et Sacramentalia sine licencia vicarii, sive procuratoris sui, nullo modo in eadem capella ministret," 17 April, 1409), i, 89.—Questions having arisen as to the taxation of this Vicarage, the Bishop caused the Register of Walter de Stapeldon to be searched. It was found that Nicholas Arthur, of Tintagel, had been presented to the said Vicarage by W. de Tothale, Prior of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in England, and that he had been duly admitted and instituted. That Bishop, at the same time, determined the Vicar's portion; giving him the entire Sanctuary, with the house of residence thereon, and also the whole altilage cum decima piscarie. He was to entertain in the said house the Prior, and any of the Brethren who might visit the parish; but at their own expense. The Vicars were to pay procurations and Synodals, and keep up the books, vestments, and other ornaments of the Church pertaining to the Rectory thereof, as well as the glass of the windows in the chancel and the chancel roof, after they had once for all been put in thorough order by the said Religious, who were to bear all other ordinary and extraordinary burdens in connection with the said chancel. At Pentecost and at All Saints, the Vicar was to pay, yearly, to the said Religious in the said parish-church a pension of four marks, in equal sums; the Vicar above-mentioned having sworn, after his institution, that he would faithfully pay the said pension. The Bishop reserved to himself and his successors the right to augment, diminish, or vary the Vicar's portion, at discretion. This Taxation is dated London, 3 Id. Marcii, 1309; and Bishop Stafford's "Scrutinium," 12 March, 1414-15; i, 208b.

Commission, directed to the Archdn. of Cornwall (31 July, 1410), to enquire as to the patronage of this Priory; Henry, Prince of Wales, had presented Wm. Lambert, monk, ii, 233,— [Breve Regium—Sancti Michaelis de Monte Tumba in Cornubia," MS.],—The King requires the Bishop to certify him as to the names, etc., of all Priors inst. there from the time of Edw, [I], son of Henry [III]; 5 Feb. 1410-11; ii, 338.—The Bishop received it 26 March, and certified, 9 April, as follows :—He had caused the Register to be searched for the period indicated, and had found (I.), in the Reg. of Walter I [i.e. Bp. Bronescombe], that on the day of St. Thomas Apost. [21 Dec.], 1266, in London, that Bishop admitted Ralph de Cartaret, on the presentation of the Abbot of St. Michael's-in-periculo-maris ; also, that 3 Id. Apr. [11 April], 1275, at Flokeston, he collated Rd. Perer, monk of St. Michael's-in-periculo-maris, by lapse. (II.) in the Reg. of Walter II [i.e. Bp. Stapledon], 12 Sept., 1316, at Paignton, Brother Peter de Cara Villa, monk of St. Michael's-in-periculo-maris, was admitted on the resignation of Brother Geoffrey de Gernon, [who had been inst. 9 July, 1283 (patron, the same)] ; also (III.) in the Reg. of Bishop Grandisson, that, 3 Oct., 1349, at Clyst, that Prelate admitted Brother John Hardy, priest, monk of St. Michael's-in-periculo-maris, patron, the same ; and 24 April, at Chudleigh, Brother John de Volant, monk and priest, on the death of Brother John Hard (sic), patrons the same ; (IV.) In the Reg. of Thos. Brantingham, that 7 Dec., 1385, in London, that Bishop admitted Brother Rd. Auncell, monk of Tavistock, on the presentation of K. Richard II., on account of the war with France : (V.) in Stafford's own Register that, 21 Oct., 1410, at [Bishop's] Tawton, he had admitted Brother Wm. Lambert, monk of Tutbury (Dioc. of Lichfield), on Auncell's death ; K. Henry IV. presenting.—ii, 338b. [Two Priors are omitted in this List, viz., Nicholas Isabel, inst. 24 Sept., 1312, and Rd. Harepath (see Brantingham's Reg., ii, 91).]

[Breve Regium.—24 Nov., 1413] ; the King to be certified, as to the Priory being "conventualis necne," ii, 347b.—The Bishop's Certificate to the King :—He had caused diligent search to be made in the Registers of his predecessors, with the following result :—(I.) Reg. of Walter I. ; on 3 Id. (i.e. 11) Apr. 1265 (sic), at Flokeston, the Bishop collated by lapse, Rd. Perer, monk of &c.—(II.) Register of Peter [Quivil] ; on 7 Id. (i.e. 9) Jul., 1283, at Legh Canonicorum, he admitted Geoffrey de Sernon (sic), on the presentation of the Abbot, &c. of St. M.-in-peric.-maris.—(III.) Register of Walter II. ; there was found therein an "Ordinacio" of the Vicarage of St. Hilary, appropriated to St. Michael's Mount (which is recited at large)—(IV.) Register of John de Grandisson ; wherein is recorded that 7 Non. Dec. (sic), 1329, at Chudleigh, Robert de Talvargh was admitted to the V. of St. Clement de Moresk, on the presentation of the Prior of St. Michael's Mount ; also that 18 Jan., 1342-3, that Bishop admitted Ralph de Restalek, priest to St. Hilary V. ; patrons, the same.—(V.) Register of Thos. Brantyngham ; wherein it was recorded that, in London, 7 Dec., 1385, was admitted Brother Rd. Auncell, monk of Tavistock, on the presentation of K. Rich. II. (because of the war with France). (VI.) Bishop Stafford himself admitted, at [Bishop's] Tawton, 21 Oct., 1400, Brother Wm. Lambert, monk of Tutbury, on Auncell's death. [17 March, 1413-14] ; ii, 348b. See, ii, 105.—Bequest to the Chapel on the Mount, i, 314b.

St. Minver [Sancte Minerve, MS.], John Coulyng or Cowlyng, V., i, 107b ; a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Trigg-minor [Sancte Minfrede, MS.], i, 143b, 174, 194b, 207b, 217, 231, 238, 245b.

St. Perran-Uthno[1] [simply "Sancti Perani," MS.], Chapel of St. James ;—

Licence to John Andrew, a layman, to erect the same with an Indulgence to the faithful who should assist in the work (12 Sept., 1400), i, 47.—Licence was granted, 28 June, 1403, to Wm. Mayov, R. "de Udno Peryn," to celebrate, during pleasure, "in capella Sancti Jacobi juxta Petrys met infra parochiam de Udno," i, 67.—Renewed for 2 years only, "Rectori ecclesie parochialis Sancti Pirani" (17 April, 1409), i, 89.

St. Perran-[Zabulo] "ecclesia Sancti Pyrani,"

The Bishop had occasion to examine the Register of his predecessor, Walter Bronescombe, as to this Benefice, and found that die Martis next after the Feast of St. Laurence, 1269, being at St. Newlyn, that prelate had collated thereto, by lapse, one Drocus, described as de eadem [ecclesia] presbiter, assigning to him all the altilage of the Mother Church and of the Chapel, as well as all obvenciones de turnis reliquiarum provenientes ; the said Vicar to pay 6 marks annually to the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and undertake all burdens (15 March, 1413-14), i, 195.

St. Petrock's, Exeter, John Westecote, R. ; Commissioner in the election of Matilda Talbot, Prioress of Polslo, ii, 76.

St. Pinnock, R.—

[Breve Regium]—In the suit, pending and undecided between K. Henry V. and Rd. Trevaga, Thos. Treȝethyan, Thos. Colyn, Michael Langakre, Isabella Penalugan, and John Stephyn, chaplain, the King requires the Bishop to examine the Registers and certify him whether Walter Lewer, clerk, temp. Ric. II, was inst. on the presentation of Sir Wm. Botreaux, knt. (as Thos. Covele, on the King's part, asserted), or not ; 12 Nov., 1414 ; ii, 350[b].—The Bp. certified that he had examined the Register, and found that Henry Bishop of Worcester, at Whethyngdon, 21 May, 1389, commissioned thereto by Thos., late Bishop of Exeter, admitted Walter Lewer to the said R., void by the resignation of Thos. Elwel, in a case of exchange with the said Walter Lewer, R. of Cold Aisston (Dioc. of Worcester), the patrons of St. Pinnock, on that occasion, being Sir Wm. Botriaux, knt., John Kyldreynek, John Bury, Rd. Trevaga, Thos. Trethyan, Thos. Colyn, and John Churchehulle (12 Jan., 1414-15), ii, 351.—[Breve Regium de quare impedit—16 April, 1415], in the same case, ii, 351[b] ; and the Bishop's certificate (30 April, 1415) to the same effect, ii, 352.—Later on, the Bishop issued a Commission of Enquiry on the presentation of Rd. Knokya, chaplain, by Sir Wm. Botreaux, knt. (22 July, 1419), ii, 268.

St. Probus, Wm. Noe, V., a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Powder, i, 49[b], 93[b], 115[b], 143[b].—Clement Wylle, V., the same, i, 174, 194[b], 207[b].—Roger Smyth, Preb. of, i, 56[b].—See Trenewyth (Oratories), i, 72[b].

St. Ruan [Sancti Romoni, MS.], Stephen Gerveys, R. ; licence of non-residence, for 2 years, from 29 Jan., 1398-9, i, 24[b].

St. Sancreed, or Sancreed [Sancti Sancredi, MS.]—

A special licence of non-residence was granted, 29 March, 1398, to John

[1] Almost certainly not "Zabulo," as suggested at p. 5 antea ; see Andrew, John (who was a layman), and for "celebrate" read "build."

Mychel, V., for one year (to study at Oxford.) He was admitted to this benefice, "absque juramento de personaliter residendo"; and he was permitted to enjoy the entire revenues thereof, due provision being made for the cure of souls and for largess to the poor; i, 16b.

St. Stephen's-in-Brannel [Sancti Stephani de Branell, MS.],—Thos. Cornevayll, LL.B., R.; licence of non-residence for a year, from 9 July, 1408, i, 86: also [Sancti Stephani in Burnall, MS.], from 14 Aug., 1409, i, 89b.

The Bishop writes (3 Oct., 1410), to the Dean of Powder and to all Curates in that Deanery, with reference to the complaint of this Rector that, whereas his Chancel was in a very dilapidated State—in ipsius coopertura defectus paciatur enormes—and he was responsible for its repair, and had hired workmen and procured materials for the purpose, certain iniquitous persons, chiefly layfolk, who had no legal right to interfere, had threatened both himself and his workmen, preventing their bringing ladders and other necessary implements into the cemetery, and effectually putting a stop to the work. The Bishop ordered the offenders to be warned that they desist from their unlawful proceedings on pain of excommunication, i, 106; and 28 Nov., he granted to Thos. Cornewayll licence of non-residence till the ensuing Michaelmas—"dum tamen cancellum ecclesie tue predicte interim in coopertura et meremio de novo construes, seu construi, ac in muris ejusdem, fenestris, et ceteris suis defectibus, competenter eundem repares, aut facias reparari," i, 109b. This licence was renewed for a year, 21 Sept., 1411; i, 135.—His successor, John Treverbyn, was a Penitentiary in the Deanery, i, 143b, 174, 194b.

John Crukern was inst. to this V., 30 March, 1398 (ii, 36b); on 7 Nov., the Bishop commissioned Dean Tregrisiow to enquire "an Johannes Crukern intrusit se in vicaria de Saltassch;" ii, 220b. The result is not recorded; but he held the benefice till 1408, in which year he resigned. At i, 33, I find the following document:—"Reverendo in Christo Patri ac Domino, Domino Lodowico, Dei et Apostolice Sedis Gracia Episcopo Wlteranensi, ejusdemque Sedis Nuncio et Collectori in Anglia, Edmundus, Ejusdem miseracione Episcopus Exoniensis, salutem et fraternam in Domino caritatem. Quia dilectus nobis in Christo filius, Dominus Johannes Crukern, perpetuus Vicarius ecclesie parochialis de Saltassch, nostre Diocesis, in quodam negocio perjurii et fidei lesionis ex officio vestro et ad promocionem Domini Thome Butiller Decani, sive Custodis Collegii, sive libere Capelle Regie, infra Castrum de Wyndesore, Sarumensis Diocesis, situati, ac Collegii predicti, prefate ecclesie de Saltassch proprietariorum, contra eundem Dominum Johannem Crukern, vicarium antedictum, coram vobis mota et indiscussa pendente; vestram in ea parte jurisdiccionem sua mera, libera, et spontanea voluntate, ut intelleximus, prorogavit,—Nos hujusmodi prorogacioni, quatenus de jure possumus, nostrum prebemus assensum, ipsamque prorogacionem prout ad nos attinet ratificamus, et tenore presencium approbamus, corona, dignitate et juribus regiis in omnibus semper salvis. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum nostrum presentibus est appensum. Datum in hospicio nostro Londoniensi, xxvto die mensis Novembris, Anno Domini Millesimo CCCmo, nonagesimo nono, et nostre Consecracionis Anno Quinto."—Wm. Yonge was inst., on Crukern's resignation, 8 July, 1408 (ii, 102), and seems to have, shortly afterwards, committed an outrage against his predecessor, who contined, apparently, to reside in the parish. [Breve de venire facias, 20 Nov., 1410]; Mandamus to the Bishop,—William Yong, chaplain, to appear before the Judges at Westminster, in the Octave of St. Hilary, to shew cause why he, and several others with him, to wit Rd. Sheborne, chaplain, John Smyth of Saltash, John Sampson, Thos. Thyngden, Wm. Buttesyde, Thos. Everell, Peter Salomon, Roger Hervy "de Ayssh," Wm. Pyers, Simon Marcheford, chaplain, and Rd. Baker of Saltash, did "vi et armis" break into the closes and houses of John Crukern, clerk, at St. Stephen's and at Saltash, and at St. Stephen's did assault and beat him (treating him so shamefully that he despaired even of life), and carried off 2 horses, 5 steers, 3 pigs, and 30 sheep, his property, worth 18*l*, as well as 30 geese and 30 capons worth 40*s*., and goods and chattels to the value of 20*l*., besides committing other enormities and inflicting on him serious loss. ii, 336.—The "execucio Brevis" was committed to the Dean and the Curates of East and to Walter Dollebeare, Apparitor-General, and John Peatte (24 Dec., 1410), ii, 336b.

St. Tudy [Sancti Tudii, MS.], John Welyngton, R., licence of non-residence for a year, from 15 March, 1402-3, i, 63.

He is called "John" here—a clerical error; for he is called "Richard" elsewhere in this Register, and also in the Registers of Brantingham and Lacy. His institution was not recorded; but he is mentioned, as R. of St. Tudy, as early as 1380, and as late as 1424, when he appears to have resigned (Maclean.) His benefice was under sequestration on account of his non-residence without authority, in 1410, on 14 Oct., in which year the sequestration was taken off, i, 108.—On 16 June, 1412, Rd. Aldryngton, R. of Lanteglos-by-Camelford, obtained a relaxation of an interdict under which his Church had been placed in consequence of Rd. Welyngton, R. of St. Tudy, having preached therein without licence, i, 161b. He was frequently appointed a Penitentiary in the Deanery of Trigg-minor, i, 243b, 174, 194b, 207b, 217, 231, 238.

Election of Rector: It was notified to the Bishop, at Crediton, 22 May, 1410, (by John Schete, V. of Paignton, one of three proxies herein—the others being Peter Holdych, Minister of the said Chantry, and Wm. Floyer, chaplain, on behalf of Wm. Coote, Sacristan, Thomas Ferrour, senior, John Myldebyry, priests, Arnulph Langarygge, Thomas Ferrour, junior, Richard Chanparnon, and Thomas Taylour, clerks, all of the said Chantry), that John Bouryng, priest, had been elected. Walter Danyel, the late R., died 16 March, 1409-10, and was buried the day following. The patron, Robert Lovel (Lord of the Manor, by right of his wife, Elizabeth, grand-daughter of Guy de Bryan), having given the Community licence to elect, they met in the Chapter-House, 2 May, 1410, and appointed the 5th for the election, which took place accordingly, in the presence of John Twyford, notary-publick, and other witnesses, to wit, Rd. Olyver, R. of [East] Allington (who presided), and John Comb, R. of [North] Huish. The Bishop's Mandate for the proclamation (dated at Crediton, 23 May), was directed to the said John Comb and to John Ulveston, V. of Stokenham, who complied therewith on Sunday, 1 June, in the Chapel of the said College, and in the parish-church and village of Slapton, and certified the Bishop to that effect on the day following. The election was confirmed, and the Bishop's Mandate for Induction and Installation issued, 3 June, 1410; ii, 111—114b.—See Bouryng, John, i, 131, 132. Smale, John, i, 332.—

A Commission was directed (1 Oct., 1396) to Dean Tregresiow and Chancellor Bosoun, in the matter of John (son of Nicholas) Smale, clerk. He had been, it seems, maliciously indicted, before Wm. Rykhyll and Wm. Brynchele, Judges, for that, having been imprisoned on account of a certain alleged felony, he had feloniously broken out of gaol, by night, on the Feast of the Epiphany, 18 Ric. II., and made good his escape. "Unde idem Johannes, occasione cujusdam Inquisicionis juratorum laicorum, per prefatos Justiciarios tanquam reus criminis predicti dampnatus, privilegio clericali se protegens juxta Ecclesiasticam libertatem et Regni Anglie consuetudinem, nobis et carceri nostro Exoniensi extiterat liberatus." It was asserted that he was innocent, and on his humble petition that he might be permitted to clear himself of the charge the Bishop issued this Commission. Full enquiry was made, both in the neighbourhood, the prison, and at his birthplace ; and trustworthy persons, who knew him well, testified that from the day of his birth, and especially at the very time when he had been charged with the said offence and thrown into prison, his life and reputation, his manners, and his conduct, were and had been uniformly good, and the Commissioners pronounced him innocent, "juxta modum et formam canonice purgacionis," and certified the Bishop accordingly (28 Oct., 1396); i, 10b.

On the 4th of Oct., 1410, the Bishop issued a Commission of Enquiry directed to the Archdeacon of Barnstaple, on the complaint of this R. as to the grievous dilapidation of the chancel, books, etc., etc., caused by the neglect of Wm. Peion, his predecessor; ii, 234.
On 5 Oct., 1410, the Bishop wrote to the Dean of Molton and the Curates of that Deanery, and to Matthew Stoke (R. of St. Leonard's by Exeter), on behalf of this R., setting forth that whereas all ecclesiastical property is, by law, protected against waste and depreciation, and offenders are liable to the greater excommunication, "quidam iniquitatis filii, quorum nomina ignorantur pariter et persone, sepes et fossas clausurarum, necnon ostium cujusdam columbaris Rectorie predicte ingressi temere et dolose, cuniculosque in eisdem clausuris ac columbas in columbari predictis, in multitudine copiosa ex consuetudine existentes, firmato primitus per eosdem et cooperto foramine ex parte superiori ejusdem columbaris, per quod columbe ejusdem evolare et revolare consueverant, ceperunt, occiderunt, asportarunt, et destruxerunt; mansum insuper et domos Rectorie predicte intrarunt, trestellosque et tabulas, cistamque pro panibus conservandis, situlam, ac alias res diversas per Rectores quondam Rectorie predicte, dum in rebus agebant humanis, successoribus suis quibuscumque canonice intrantibus donatas, legatas, et eisdem successive sine alienacione perpetuo remansuras, abstulerunt, contrectarunt, occuparuntque injuste, et occupant in presenti, preter et contra voluntatem Rectorum Ecclesie predicte qui pro tempore fuerant, et magistri Johannis Park, ecclesie predicte nunc

The Bishop directs their excommunication to be publickly proclaimed in Southmolton church, and in all churches in the neighbourhood, and that enquiries should be instituted with a view to their detection, i, 106b.—A licence to hear the confessions of his parishioners was granted 10 April, 1416, to John Park; then, also, Canon of Exeter, i, 220.

The Chapels of St. James and St. Bartholomew in this parish were licensed, 26 April, 1396, for Rd. The parishioners having represented to the Bishop that their parish-church had been dedicated on the 2nd Sunday in Lent, and consequently that it often happened that the Feast of Dedication could not have its proper Services, he acceded to their request that the Feast might be transferred to October 10, and granted an Indulgence to the parishioners who should frequent the services on the new Feast Day (27 Sept., 1417), i, 234b.

Langedon, and Elinore, wife of Robert Tremayle, and caused enquiry to be made; subsequently he issued a declaration that no pollution had taken place, and that the Church was to be used again for Divine Service immediately (29 Nov., 1417), i, 237.—The Commission herein was dated 19 Nov.; ii, 263b.

South Pool [Pole, MS.]; relaxation of an Interdict:—

The Bishop wrote to the Dean of Woodleigh and to the Curate of the parish, and the chaplains serving in the parish-church (8 Oct., 1410), to the effect that, whereas the said Church lay under an Interdict, on account of a sermon having been preached therein by a certain secular chaplain, name unknown, who had no cure of souls there, but had been brought in by certain of the parishioners (not out of contempt, but in ignorance), though he had neither mission nor licence from the Bishop, the said Interdict was taken off, the Bishop desiring to temper rigour with mercy, and, also, to comply with the desire of the noble Lady, Margaret Peverel (a parishioner), and the Bishop directed proclamation of the said Relaxation to be made in South Pool Church, and in the neighbouring churches; i, 107.—Canon Wm. Hunden's bequests to, i, 325; Precentor Haukyn's ditto, i, 333.

The "Ordinacio" of his Chantry in the Cathedral:

The Bishop addressing all sons of Holy Mother Church to whom these presents should come, refers to the uncertainty of life, and to his desire to prepare for the last days of his pilgrimage. King Henry IV., by his Letters Patent had granted a special licence to William Ekerdon and Edmund Elyot, clerks, and to Robert Grey, enabling them to convey to the Dean and Chapter of Exeter the Manors of Wynterborn Wast, Bokhampton, and Swanwych, in the County of Dorset, and the advowson of the Church of Winterborn, to find 3 chaplains to celebrate daily in the Cath. Church for the King himself and his sons in life, and for their souls after death, and also for the Bp. himself, and Sir Humphrey de Stafford, knt. his kinsman, and for all the faithful departed. Subsequently, the said Wm. Ekerdon, Edmund Elyot and Rt. Gray, conveyed the said estates accordingly; and the Bishop proceeded to this ordinacio—which provided (1) that the Dean and Chapter with the revenues of these estates (which he had purchased "in rei veritate nostris industria et laboribus mediantibus, de et cum bonis patrimonialibus et de peculio nostro ad utilitatem nostram") should provide 2 fit priests to be called the annivellarii of Edmd. Stafford, Bishop, who should hold no other benefice or receive other stipend, and should serve continually at the altar of St. John Evan., adjoining the Lady-Chapel, for the Bishop himself, and for Sir Humphrey de Stafford and Elizabeth his wife; also for Sir Rd. de Stafford, knt. and Isabella Stafford, the Bishop's father and mother, and for his uncle Ralph de Stafford, Earl of Stafford; and, lastly, for King Henry IV.,—for all these whether living or departed, and for all the faithful departed; the said priests to do their duty well, or be punished for their negligence. They were to be subject to the Dean and Chapter. Rules were laid down to provide for vacancies. Each priest was to receive annually 100s. in quarterly payments and a share in the obits. The Dean and Chapter were to find and keep up the missals, chalice, vestments, and the ornaments of the altar; also bread and wine and lights; except in the first instance, when the Bishop himself would provide what was necessary; and the priests, at their admission, were to give security for the safe keeping of all such things. Having regard to the fact that in his Cathedral Church of Exeter there were fewer obits kept about the time of the Feast of St. Lambert than at other times, he ordered that these obits should be kept on that day. He ordered that the Dean and Chapter should pay to every Canon who should be present thereat the sum of 12d.; to every vicar, 6d; to every annuellar priest, 3d.; to every chorister boy, 2d.; and like sums to sundry other officials; to the Treasurer, also, for wax candles and other lights, 8d. It was further provided that during the lifetime of the Bishop and others named above who were still alive, a Mass of the Holy Trinity should be said on St. Lambert's Day, and the same payments made to those who should assist as in the case of the obits. The Dean and Chapter were to be held harmless in case of losses from any cause except their own negligence. The Bishop states that the advowson of the Church of Winterborn Wast had been purchased by Sir Humphrey de Stafford, and he decreed that as soon as the Dean and Chapter came into quiet possession of the revenues thereof, they should, after paying a competent stipend to the vicar, provide a third chaplain, to be called Humphrey de Stafford's, and to serve at the same altar, in like manner, for the whole state (living or departed) of the Bp. himself and of the said Humphrey and of the Bp.'s relatives, Ralph and Hugh de Stafford, formerly Earls of Stafford, and of Sir John and Margaret de Stafford the parents of the said Humphrey; for the king, and for all the faithful departed — and payments were to be made, as above, to those who should assist at these obits. The Treasurer was to provide two lights for the tomb of Sir Humphrey, if he were buried in the Cathedral, if otherwise, then circa formulum (covered with a pall), to be placed on the pavement near the Bishop's tomb, in his memory. In case the said revenues from the Church should fail no deduction was to be made from the stipends of the two former priests for the benefit of the third. The priests were to have a copy of this "ordinacio" to be written on the fly-leaf at the beginning or end of the missal. Three copies were also to be made for (1) the Dean and Chapter; (2) the Bishops of Exeter ; and (3) Bishop Stafford's heirs. Dated at Crediton—1 Oct., 1408 ; ii, 281b-284.

Brere Regium,—The Bishop to examine the Registers from 1199 (sic) and certify the King as to all presentations thereto ; 20 Nov., 1416, ii, 357.—A similar Breve Regium, dated 24 Nov., 1416, ib.—The Bp's. certificate, as follows :—He recites the report of the Inquisition at Kingsbridge (by the Archdeacon of Totnes), to whom he had written, informing him that Thos. de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury and Lord of Monthermer, had presented Edw. Prentys, clerk, and requiring him to convene the Chapter and certify in the usual way [Dat. Clyst, 14 Oct., 1416]. The Archdeacon, etc., met in full Chapter, in the Chapel of St. Edmund the K., Kingsbridge, and on the 26th day of October, inst. ; present—Rectors : Rd. Olyver of Alyngton [i.e., East Allington] ; Thos. Tremayn, of Aveton Giffard ; Wm. Breyrlegh, of Woodleigh ; John Wynterborne, of Charleton ; John Carwarch, of Pole [So. Pool] ; Roger Bacheler, of Chyrstow ; Rd. Tryby, of Dodebroke ; Rob. Benet, of Thurleston ; John Bykebery, of Bykebery [Bigbury] ; Vicars : Wm. Cote, minister of Slapton ; John Wolston, of Stokenham ; Simon Paule, of Alwyngton [West Alvington] ; and Peter Holdyche, of Loddiswell. Evidence having been taken, it appeared that the Church of Stokenham became vacant, 1 Oct., 1416, by the death of Rd. Prentys ; the true patron was Thos. de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury ; but on the last occasion King Henry IV. presented: the right belonged to the said Earl for this turn, and was hereditary: two presentations had been made, (1) by the said Earl, (2) by Matilda, Countess of Salisbury ; apart from which there was no legal question involved. No pension or portion was charged on the living. It was taxed at £33 6s. 8d. The said Edw. Prentys was fit in every way, in priest's orders, and more than 40 years old, and well beneficed elsewhere, being Archdeacon of Essex [Estsex] in the Cathed. Church of St. Paul's, London. Nothing was known against patron or nominee.—Here follows a copy of the Bishop's letter to the Archdeacon, dated Clyst, 15 Oct., 1416, informing him of the presentation of Adam Davenport, clerk, by the Countess of Salisbury, and demanding enquiry and report. This, also, was laid before the Chapter at the same time. The Chapter found that the true patron was Thos. Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, by hereditary right, etc., etc., the said Adam Davenport was in priest's orders and over 60 years old, and (as was said) with no other benefice. He was not himself objected to, but it was objected that Matilda, the said Countess, was not the true patron. The inquisition, duly sealed, was dated in the said Chapel of St. Edmund, on the said 26 Oct., ii, 357. (5) The Bishop's certificate as to the examination of the Registers. He had found that Walter de Stapledon, 6 Idus July, 1315, i.e. 10 July (at Pruteston, i.e., Preston, juxta Loddiswell), admitted Thos. Nynsom, priest, by R. de Coleton, his official and commissary, on the resignation of Nicholas de Lovecote, and on the presentation of Sir Ralph de Monthermer.—Also, that Bishop Grandisson, 6 Idus (i.e., 8th) Sept., 1328, at Chudleigh, admitted Thos. de Schirrigg, clerk; patron, Sir Thos. de Monthermer, and that on 6 Dec., 1357, the same Bishop collated at Chudleigh, Henry Blakebourne, priest (by lapse), and that he had himself, 22 July, 1399 [in MS., 1499], admitted, at Wallingford, Thos. Montagu, on Blakeborn's death, patron, John de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, and on 14 July, 1404, at Clyst, he admitted, on Montagu's death, Rd. Prentys, chaplain, patron, King Henry IV., for that turn; and 28 Oct., 1416, at Clyst, Edward Prentys, on the death of Rd. Prentys, on the presentation of Sir Thos. de Montacute, Earl of Salisbury, and Lord of Monthermer.—Dated Clyst, 14 Dec., 1416, ii, 358.

Townstal [Tunstalle, MS.], the "Ordinacio" of the Vicarage,—

The Rectory was appropriated to Torre Abbey; and the Bishop, with the consent of the Abbot and of Rd. Bradeworthy, V, made order as to the endowment of the Vicarage as follows:—The V. and his successors to be paid 20 marks annually, in quarterly payments (under a penalty of forfeiting 20s. to the Bishop, in case of default for 15 days after each quarter-day), and to have, by way of manse, the houses, garden, and curtilage in his occupation at the time, and so used time out of mind; also, from the funeral offerings one penny (only) for every burial in Townstal parish-church and in the Chapel at Dartmouth thereto depending, or in the cemeteries thereunto annexed; and the same on every anniversary; also, the tithe casei, butiri, et lactis, aucarum, et porcellorum. The Vicars were to be liable for the repair of the desks in the Chancel and the office-books (as if they were Rectors), and to serve the office of Dean-Rural in their turn [ac officium Decani Ruralis quociens pro dicta ecclesia juste fuerit subeundum]; they were to pay the procurations canonically due to the Archdeacon, also synodals, etc., and "Peter's Pence" [Sinodaticum et cathedraticum, cum denariis Sancti Petri]. But for all other like burdens the Abbey was to be liable. Dated at Crediton, 4 July, 1405. Signed and sealed by the Abbot, 27 July; by the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, 31 July; and by the Vicar (who used the seal of the Bishop's Official-Peculiar in Devon—quia sigillum meum pluribus est incognitum), i, 75b.

Turks, the,—

The Bishop writes to the King [Henry IV.], acknowledging receipt of a Breve Regium, dated Westminster, 11 Jan., 1400-1, in which—referring to the danger of Constantinople being taken by Bajazet, and to the Indulgences granted by the Pope to those who should help the Emperor Manuel—he commanded the Bp. to certify him as to the names of the Commissioners and their Deputies in his Diocese; also of all who held keys of the chests and coffers which contained the contributions of the Faithful, and of the places where such chests, etc., were kept. The Bp. replied that there was one such chest or coffer in Exeter Cathedral, of which Wm. Overby, chaplain, held the key, who, with Rob. Northale, of the Dioc. of Norwich, and John Knyght, of Bridport, had gone round the Diocese collecting money, which they still had in their keeping. They had left the Diocese; and he could not answer for their readiness to obey the summons to appear in the Court of Chancery at Exeter.—Dated 12 April, 1401, ii, 312[b].

Wyt, Wm., R. of All Hallows-on-the-Walls, Exeter (deceased), ii, 44b.

Wytbery, Henry—
Eldest son of John Wytbery, jun., when a child, under 11 years, had been handed over against his will to the Friars Minors at Exeter, by his father, in order (as was supposed) to exclude him from succeeding to his inheritance; and, fearing his father's threats, he had actually assumed the habit and tonsure before his 11th birthday. The Friars themselves were in some difficulty, fearing that he might escape to his friends; so they kept moving him about "like a vagabond" for six months or more, and at length conveyed him into Wales to their house at Carmarthen. Here he told his story to the Superior, and begged to have his ordinary clothes returned to him, with permission to return to the world, even though he went naked. But the Superior was angry, and shut him up closely till the end of his year of probation. Then the said Superior summoned him to his presence, and endeavoured to persuade him to profess, when he declined to do so, and again begged for leave to return to the world. But the Superior threatened to punish him with the utmost severity if he deserted the Order, and kept him shut up more closely than ever, not delaying to put his threats into execution, and at last resorting to a stratagem to effect his purpose. Henry did not understand Latin, and the Superior, knowing this, gave him the "Profession" written in Latin to read, and compelled him to do so, though he was most unwilling. On the strength of this device they announced that he was a professed Minorite, and when he was in his 15th year, by threats of imprisonment and by bodily tortures, they forced him to take the Order of Sub-Deacon against his will. Nevertheless, Henry never ceased to protest against the treatment that he had received, and to declare that he would seize the first opportunity of returning to the world. This he at last succeeded in doing, and petitioned the Pope for redress and remedy. The Bull of Alexander V., reciting the above facts, is given at length; therein the Pope commands strict enquiry to be made into the circumstances, and that Henry, if his story turned out to be true, should be permitted to return to the world, and also to marry if he pleased. This is followed by a copy of a 2nd Bull, of the next Pope, John XXIII., reciting the 1st Bull, and stating that (in consequence of the death of Alexander) the latter had never been executed. Henry, however, had renewed his petition, and Pope John granted his request. He appeared in person before the Bishop, at Crediton, on 20 August, 1411, and presented both Bulls, and on August 25, Stafford issued a Commission to the Archdeacon of Exeter, to Thos. Noel, LL.B., Sub-Dean in his Cathedral Church, Rd. Olyver, Judge of the Consistory Court, and Walter Robert, Canon of Glasney, to make inquisition in the matter, and to act accordingly with his authority, in consequence of his own absence on urgent business making it impossible for him to do so.—i, 131b.

WILLS.

I. Wm. Falewell, Rector of the Mediety of the Church of Ermington; Canon of Windsor. i, 300.

Executors: John Bremesgrave and John Busch, chaplains.

Proved 30 May, 1397, before the Bishop.—[The will itself is not given.]

II. Rd. de Raundes, R. of Northmolton; Canon of Windsor.

Dated at Windsor Castle, in testator's house there, 23 March, 1398-9. i, 300.

He commends his soul to Almighty God, Blessed Mary, and All Saints, and orders his body to be buried in the Church of St. John Baptist, Windsor, if it can be done conveniently; and if not, then in the church of the parish where he may happen to die. For the fabrick of the nave of such church he leaves 20s.; and for masses for two years, to be said therein for his soul, and for his parents and benefactors, £10 13s. 3d.; also for 4 trigintalia[1] for his own soul, 10s. For the poor, on the day of his funeral, 40s.; for prisoners, 20s.; for poor bed-ridden folk, unable to make their living, 20s.; for all other expenses on the occasion, 40s. Not more than five wax lights to be burnt around his body. To the nave of Northmolton Church he leaves 40s: and believing, on his conscience, that, after all he had laid out on the repairs of his church and manse, the sum of £10 ought to content his successor, especially as he had not received a penny from his own predecessor on account of dilapidations, he leaves that sum to the next Rector, but solely on condition that he gives a full discharge therein to his executors, and makes no further claim upon them. To the poor of Northmolton he leaves 40s. To the ministers of All Saints', Derby (to keep his exequies), 20s. To his sister Matilda 40s, and one of his best garments. For the fabrick of the nave of Raunds Church, 40s. For the poor there, 40s. To Thomas Aynho 20s. The residue of his estate, after paying his debts, to be devoted to pious uses.

Executors:—Thos. Marton; John Massyngham; and Thos. Laurence (to each of whom he leaves 40s. over and above their necessary expenses).—Witnesses:—The said executors ["Lorence" here in MS.], and John Page, John Chiselet, John Hull, and others.—Proved 8 February, 1399-1400, before the Dean of Windsor, in the Chapter House there; registered at Clyst, 14 April, 1400. The Bishop's seal was affixed, at Crediton, 19 August.

III. John de Dodyngton, R. of Crewkerne, Can. of Exeter and Preb. of Crediton.

Dated 26 March, 1400. i, 301.

He commends his soul to God, the Blessed Mary, the Blessed Apostles Peter and Paul, and St. Bartholomew (his patrons), and to All Saints; and directs his body to be buried in the Cathedral, before the altar of St. John, by the side of Canon William Dounebryge—"magistri mei, dum vixit." He leaves 1d to every poor person asking an alms in God's name, on the day of his burial; and for the funeral rites and his obit £26 13s. 4d.—To his mother, should she survive him, £20. To the Bishop his large Missal (if his other effects sufficed to pay his debts and legacies without selling it).—To each of his two sisters, 100s. To Otho Chambernon the gilt cup, (ciphum) which the Bp. had given him, and 40s. To the said Otho's wife, for the good of testator's soul, and the soul of Rd. Hydon, her former husband—"secundum velle suum"—100s. To Master Rob. Rygge, a cup "de testa ovis vocate Gripe."[2] To Laurence Haukyn, his little Missal and one Antiphonar, on the condition already stipulated. To each of his servants, "commoranti in hospicio meo, portanti vestem armigerorum sive clericorum ejusdem secte," 40s., and to each valet, 30s. To each serving-man, 10s. To Wm. Clyve, 60s.; to John Beston, 100s.; to his sister Agnes, 100s.; to his sister Amisia, 40s. To Nicholas Fitz Herbert a silver cup worth 40s. and his second-best horse. To Wm. Hydon his best horse and 20s. To the Anchorite of St. Leonard's, 40s. (to pray for their souls). To Thos. Spore, 40s. ; to Geoffrey Boterell, 20s. ; to Thos. Cook, 20s. ; to Matthew Stoke, a cup with its cover, formerly the property of one Stephen, a recluse.—To each of his executors, accepting administration, 5 marks.

He directed that his obit and that of William Dounebryg, should be observed at Exeter for 20 years, and that two chaplains should say mass for his soul, and for Margaret de Courtenay, William, the late Archbishop, William Dounebryg, Stephen the recluse, and Henry Blakeborne, at the discretion of his executors, with any residue derived from the proceeds of his benefices. His best vestment and his large manual to be given to the church of Crewkerne, if testator were R. at the time of his death.

Executors :—Laurence Haukyn, Nich. Fitz Herbert and Wm. Clyve ; Rob. Rygge and Otho Chambernon to be overseers. They were to pay all his debts, a list of which he left in his own handwriting.

At the end the following legacies are added :—

To Wm. Hayford three tricennalia ;[1] to John Dene, the same ; to Richard Philep, two tricennalia ; to Wm. Reche, 13s. 4d. ; to John Wyllyng, 10s. ; to Rd. Spryngolte, 10s. ; to John Crede, 6s. 8d. ; to the Hosp. of St. John, Exeter, 20s. ; to Friar John Gryndel, for his own use, 6s. 8d. ; and to the Friars, Preachers and Minors, at Exeter, de panibus meis canonicalibus, at the discretion of his executors.

Proved, 20 April, 1400, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

IV. William Trenowyth ; of St. Cleer, Cornwall.

Dated, 15 April, 1400. i, 301b.

He commends his soul to God, and his body to holy burial.

He leaves to the V. of St. Cleer, 12d. for tithes forgotten. To John Lanrek. chaplain (for his soul), 2s. To the Friars of Truro [Truru, MS.], 2s. 6d. To John Grene, chaplain, 2s. 6d. To the store (stauro) of St. Cleer, 3 sheep. To the Friars of Bodmin, 2s. 6d. ; to the Carmelites of Plymouth, 2s. 6d. To the store (instauro) of St. Mary, in St. Cleer Church, 2 sheep ; to the store of the Holy Cross therein, 1 sheep, and the same to the store of St. James. To Udelina, his sister, 1 cow and 12 sheep. To Cecilia Philipp, 1 brazen pot.

The residue to his executors, for his funeral rites and for the good of his soul ; they were to reimburse themselves, in reason, for their trouble and expenses.

Executors :—Rd. Bray and Wm. Bray, his sons. Proved, during the Bishop's Visitation of the Archdeaconry of Cornwall, before Rd. Hals, his Commissary, at Clyst, 24 April, 1400.

V.—John Gardyner, R. of St. Martin's, Exminster.

Dated, 20 May, 1400. i, 301b.

[1] Officium 30 Missarum ... vel obventiones quæ obveniunt sacerdotibus ratione ejusdem Officii.—D'Arnis.

He was moved to make his Will on finding himself in imminent danger of death. He commends his soul to God, and directs that his body be buried "in ala Beati Petri de Modbury."[1]

He leaves 100s. towards certain works in progress in Modbury Church, on condition that the parishioners either buy (or engage to buy within two years) a complete set of vestments; otherwise the money was to be applied to the tabula recently bought for the High Altar there. He leaves to his wife, Elizabeth, a horse, called Bayerd; and to his daughter Thomasia all his pearls. The residue of his estate he directs his executors to use for the good of his soul.

Executors:—His wife, Elizabeth; his daughter, Thomasia; John Copleston; John Ralegh, of Fardell [Furdell, MS.]; John Dyghte; and Roger Berd, chaplain. Proved, 7 Aug., 1403, before the Bishop, at Crediton.

VII.—Walter Trote, Can. of Exeter, and R. of St. Kerrian

Dated, 4 November, 1399. i, 302b.

He commends his soul to God, Blessed Mary, and All Saints; his body to be buried in the Cathedral. He leaves to every Canon present at his funeral 2s. To every Vicar, 12d. To every Annuellar priest, 6d. To each of the Secondaries, and to each chorister, in like manner 3d. He orders six torches to be burnt when his body is carried into the Cathedral, on the night of his exequies and on the day of his funeral; each weighing 13 pounds of wax and 6 pounds "de Rosyn," with the wicks thereto (cum lichinis ad eosdem). To 6 poor men to carry the said torches, a cloak apiece (made of grey cloth, with hood); and for the good of his soul he orders 1d. to be given to every poor person attending his funeral. To the chaplains of St. Mary's Chapel in the Chantry at Slapton, 3s. 4d. each, to say and sing Placebo and Dirvge on the night of his exequies, and Mass on the day of his burial. To two secondaries in the said Chapel, 2s. each. To two boys, 12d. each. To the said Chapel a missal and an antiphonar; and, for the use of the chaplains there, 24 silver spoons and 6 silver cups, with the arms of Sir Guy Bryan, knight, thereon, to remain for the store of the chaplains for ever. To the Hosp. of St. John Baptist, Exeter, 13s. 4d.; to each poor scholar thereof, 12d.; to the poor men therein 3s. 4d. To be distributed among the poorer tenants of the Manor of Slapton 15s To the prisoners in the King's prison at Exeter, and in the Lord Bishop's 4d. each. To the Friars Preachers of Exeter, 6s. 8d. To the Friars Minors there, 6s. 8d. To the men and women in the Leper's House of St. Mary Magd. by the West Gate, Exeter, 3s. 4d.; to the Leper's House at Barnstaple, 12d. To every man or woman lying in novo redditu Simonis Grendon[2] over against testator's house, 3d. For Barnstaple Bridge, 10s. For Bideford Bridge, 13s. 4d. For Cowley [Covlegh, MS.] Bridge, near Exeter, 3s. 4d. To his Ch. of St. Kieran he leaves a gradual, and for its High Altar one tualla, with a green frontal, and a frontal of the same colour to hang above the Altar, with two curtains to match, and one frontal of the same colour to hang before the Altar, also a chasuble with its parures.[3] To John Whyte he leaves 5 marks. To Andrew, his servant, 13s. 4d. To Rd. Anslade, 13s. 4d. To Walter Cook, lately his servant, 10s. The residue to his executors, to be devoted to pious uses, for the good of his soul.

Executors:—John Combe, Minister of the Parish Church of Slapton, in the Chantry recently founded there; Nicholas Wake, R. of Torbrian; and Thos. Losquyt, chaplain.—Proved, 12 March, 1403-4, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

[1] The (north) transept, is still called the "Orcherton aisle." In its north wall the mutilated effigies of Sir John Prydeaux and Elizabeth his wife repose under a very beautiful canopy, which has recently been restored at the cost of Mr. Prideaux-Brune, of Prideaux Place, Cornwall (under the direction of the R. of Ringmore.) It is the custom, now, to call the church "St. George's," but wrongly: it was dedicated to St. Peter.

VIII. Henry Brokelond, Can. of Exeter and R. of Moreton.

Dated, 15 January, 1403-4. i, 303.

He commends his soul to God, and his body to sacred sepulture. He leaves £20 for his funeral expenses, and for the poor who should attend; also 20s. for his poor parishioners at Moreton, and the same for the poor of Tiverton on the same day. To Moreton Church he bequeaths a set of vestments, a chalice, a corporal and tuallum, with a frontal displaying the arms of the late Countess [of Devon]; also a super-altar, with two cruets (phiolis) from his Chapel at Exeter. To the Hosp of St. John Bapt. at Exeter, 20s. To the Cathedral a new large Psalter, not quite complete (but to be completed by his executors, and chained to his own stall in the choir); also a Manual. To the Church of Crediton he leaves his Missal; his cousin, John Snape, to have the use of it, whenever he pleases, within the said Church, but not to carry it out; also, his second Psalter. To the Prioress of Polslo, a small chest (ypent')[1] for her use, and that of her successors for ever. To the Cathedral aforesaid, a great coffer, cofferam de Flaundris, to keep vestments in. To the Convents of Polslo, Canonsleigh, and Cornworthy, 6s. 8d. each. To the Friars Preachers of Exeter, 6s. 8d., and the same to the Friars Minors there. To sick men at St. Mary Magdalen's, near Exeter, 3s. 4d.

To John Snape, his cousin, he leaves a Breviary (given him by one John Martyn, who desired his prayers); but Snape was not to sell it, but leave it to some good priest, who would pray for testator and for the said John Martyn. Another Breviary that he had lent him is to be given up to his executors; and he leaves him a book containing the matins of the B. V. M., Placebo and Dirige, and the visitation of the sick; also, an old set of Decretals, and another book of Decretals; also, 2 beds complete, with one pair of bed-curtains (Redelles), crimson; also, 1 par pellium de latyn which testator had from the Countess, and a large chest which belonged to his father; also, two silver cups, given him by Snape's father, and twelve silver spoons, six of which were already in his keeping; also, two coats, trimmed with rich fur (furratas cum pellour—"pelury"), and two hangings (dorsters) of tapestry, six cushions, and three bench coverings (bankers) to match. To Walter Marker, chaplain, he leaves 6s. 8d. To Rob. Colyn, chaplain, the small Breviary, quod est in sacello positum. To John Pruet, chaplain, the Breviary in John Snape's possession and 20s. To Magota Sourapeldore 20s. and an old cloak, (armilausam-duplicatam de rubeo et bockehorne). To Joan, wife of Thomas Cornwale, 5s. and a cupboard (unum almary) already in her possession. To Henry Milforde, his servant, 20s. To John Boldebury, another servant, his third best bed, with all its furniture, (cum toto apparatu sive Rydellis) also, two small-sized brazen pots and two brazen dishes, one of the better sort; also 40s. To another servannt, Thomas Ellomede, 10s. To Wm. Boldebury, 13s. 4d.; and a book of the matins of the B. V. M. To John Batyn, another servant, goods to the value of one mark. To Thomas Estmond, another servant, 40d. To another servant, Rd. Favel, 40d. As to the legacies in money, those who so wished might select any of his movable goods of the same value, at the prices assigned in his Inventory. The residue he leaves to his executors, to be used for the repose of his soul.

Executors:—John Snape, Rob. Colyn, and John Pruet, priests. They were to administer jointly, and none of them separately without the consent of his colleagues; but all together and with one mind. Proved 10 July, 1404, before the Bishop at Clyst.

IX.—John Langelegh, Minister of the Collegiate Church of St. Mary at Ottery.

Dated, 17 July, 1404. i, 304.

He commends his soul to God, and orders his body to be buried in the cemetery there, outside the west door, before the image of Blessed Mary. He leaves to every Canon attending his funeral (unless engaged in duty elsewhere in the Church), 8d.; to a hundred poor persons 100d., or bread to the same value, if his goods admit. To John Langelegh, his brother, six silver spoons. To Henry Clement a Breviary and a manual ; requiring him to pray for his soul as long as he lived, and to bequeath the books to another priest, so that they might never be sold. To the Vicars, among them, for thirty Masses (for the rest of his soul, and for Wm. Slade), 2s. 6d. To Geoffrey Warre, a book containing the Common of Saints. To Wm. Skyrdon, a cloak coloris de Storion,[1] with a hood of the same colour. To Joan Skyrdon, his wife, unam jupam blodii coloris mixti penullatam cum pedibus agnorum nigri coloris. To Juliana, testator's sister, a dress of red colour, cum una pellicia [pellisse] and its hood. To Sibella, his stepmother, a dress of red colours, mixed, trimmed with fur, with its hood. To the daughters of the said Sibella, 12d. each. To her sons, after the girls (post illas) 4d. each. To Wm. atte Stone a short doublet. To the sons of his sister Juliana, 4d. each ; to Magota, her daughter, 12d. To Joan, wife of John Redclyf, a dress of green colours, mixed, with hood ; and 11d. to pay for the making. To Wm. Cotyn and his wife 3s. 4d. To the Church of Ottery unum quaternum optimum de organis'. To Alice, wife of his servant John, a crimson dress trimmed with white. To John Kye, an oak table et unum kerchef pro amictu suo. To Alice, wife of John Twyford, two wineskins, each containing quartam lagene. To Thos. Bateman, 3s. 4d.

Executors :—Henry Clement and Geoffrey Ware (sic), who were to dispose of the residue of his estate for the good of his soul, with leave to buy any article not bequeathed, if they paid as much as any other person would have to pay, so as not to defraud his soul. Witnesses :—Rob. Alkebourn, Nicholas Oterford, John Metton, John Smyth, and John Coke. Proved, 19 July, 1404, before the Bishop at Clyst.

X.—Maurice Burgh, "Domini dum vixit familiaris."

Dated, 2 Jan., 1404-5, in the town of Crediton. i, 304b.

He commends his soul to his Creator and to Blessed Mary, His Glorious Mother, and all the saints, directing his body to be buried in the parish where he may happen to die. He leaves 5s. among sixty priests to say sixty Masses on the day of his burial (if it can be managed), or as soon as possible afterwards ; of these Masses 15 were to be of the Holy Trinity, 15 of the Holy Ghost, 15 of the Holy Cross, and 15 of Blessed Mary, Mother of God ; for his soul and for all the faithful departed. Also, £30 to two chaplains to say divine service and celebrate daily, in the church of St. Mary at Clyst, for the three years immediately following his death, for his soul, and for Edw. III., the late King ; also, for Wm. de Mulsow, for his parents, for their benefactors, and for all the faithful dead ; every chaplain to receive yearly, for his service 100s. Also, he leaves his chasuble of white and crimson silks, an alb, an amice of white linen, a stole, a maniple (phanonem), and apparels to match (or of other like material, as near as possible in colour to the chasuble), for perpetual use in the said church, to be worn by the aforesaid chaplains while discharging the abovementioned duties. And if they celebrate elsewhere, his executors are to provide a chasuble, alb, amice, stole, and maniple, and all necessary apparels, made of good materials, at their discretion. At the end of the three years these vestments to be given to the Church in which the Masses were said, to remain therein for ever. To the church of St. Michael, at Clyst, he leaves a chasuble (to be provided by his executors) of silk, embroidered with dogs, birds, and waves (undis) in divers colours, and, to wear with it, an alb, an amice of fine linen a stole, a maniple, and apparels to match the chasuble, or as nearly as possible of the same colour. To the sick and bed-ridden, and other indigent people, he leaves 100s., to be distributed immediately after his death: and 5 marks on the day of his exequies, every poor person attending to have 1d., and to pray for his soul, &c. To the Friars Minors, the Friars Preachers, and the House of St. John, in Exeter, he leaves 6s. 8d. each. To Walter Shoggere and Joan his wife, if he should happen to die in their house, 6s. 8d. each. To John Palmer, Wm. de coquina, John Warde, John Piers, John Yoxsale, John Clyston, Rd. Baron, John Derby, Wm. Thorp, and Walter Pulter, servants of the Lord Bishop, 3s. 4d. each. To Henry Wilde, 20s. and a gown, [unam govnam] made of green cloth, embroidered on the left sleeve with leaves of white cloth, sewn on. To Rob. Ogle, his chest called a 'Shipcoffre,' standing in the Bishop's manor-house at Clyst, and a gown of freize (frise) cloth, called "Mouster Villers," bought at Coventry. To John Gylbert 3s. 4d. and a gown of green cloth, with facings of black cloth. To Philip "de coquina" of the Lord Bishop 3s. 4d., his bench [sellam] and "brig,"[1] and a gown of worsted "particoloured in shades of crimson colour, govnam de worstede motteley partitam blodii et sanguinei coloris, and a doublet of worsted, striped in crimson and lead-colour, (barre blodii et plonketi coloris). To Joan Gardiner, then staying at Crediton, 6s. 8d., and a gown of scarlet cloth, with white serge, (govnam de skarleto cum blanketo duplicatam). All these bequests were subject to conditions which the testator proposed to convey to his executors by word of mouth. To William Grantelond (alias Portey), a gown of ray[2] sendre, the gift of the Lord Bishop, bordered with crimson cloth, (partitam cum panno blodio mixto, cum agnellis albis furruratam. To Thomas de la Chambere, a gown of green ray, (de Ray viridi cum panno de plunket partitam) To any poor bed-ridden or indigent person, one of his bed-quilts, of divers colours of wool-work, and one of his blankets; and to some other poor person a tester of the same suit (testeram de secta dicti lecti) as the said bed, and one of his woollen blankets. Also, to Colkyn (sic), living with the Lord Bishop, a gown, his Lordship's last summer gift (de liberata ultima estivali dicti Domini mei Exoniensis). To Rob. Alkebarowe and John Matheu, chaplains, 20s. each, that they may be willing to administer. His two silver-mounted daggers [baselardi], and his three silver girdles he orders to be sold to the best advantage, and the money expended on works of piety for the good of his soul, &c., as well as all legacies which might lapse by reason of death. The residue to be divided among the chaplains, who should say the masses for his soul, among the poor and wretched, and in other like works of piety.

Witnesses:—John Simon, Rob. Shogger, (of Crediton), Wm. de Wyke and others.

It is added that testator, after this will was made and sealed, bequeathed certain goods to certain persons, by name, as follows:—First to the Guild or Fraternity of the B.V.M. recently established (inchoate), in the Ch. of the Holy Cross at Crediton, 26s. 8d.; towards reglazing a window (in adjutorium operis unius fenistre (sic) de novo vitriande) in the said Church, 40s.; to "Arwehedmaker," of Exeter, 13s. 4d.; to Philip, in the Lord Bishop's kitchen, all his shirts, breeches, boots and shoes (camisias, braccas, calciamenta, et sotulares; to Katherine, wife of Rob. Ogle, 3 cups de Warre; to master Wm. de Langeton a girdle; to the said Rob. Ogle a small knife, called a "Wodeknyf"; to Joan, wife of Rob. Shogger, a mattrass (unum materasium de carde). Also he left 4 ells of material to make 2 towalia, one for the Church of St. Mary at Clyst, and one for the Church of St. Michael at Clyst; to Stephen, chaplain of the aforesaid Guild, a small knife, with a handle of maple, ornamented with silver, in a sheath with a silver hooke (chape); to Wm. Fyssh 1 quaternum pergameni de Curie. The provision made in his will (ubi testamentum canit quod voluit) that two chaplains should say masses for his soul in the Church of St. Mary Clyst, he changed in this codicil, directing them to celebrate, instead, at the altar of the aforesaid guild, in Crediton Church.

Proved with the codicil, 29 April, 1405, before the Bishop, at Crediton.

XI. John Wytloff, R. of Loddiswell. i, 305b.

He commends his soul to Almighty God, his Creator, to Blessed Mary, Glorious Virgin, and to All Saints, and orders his body to be buried in the church of the Friars Preachers at Bristol.

Paulet a bed called broydit bed. To Joan Halwyll (sic) 40s., a silver bowl and 6 spoons. To Rob. Halswyll, 2 spoons and a silver bowl. To John Alexander, 13s. 4d. To John Byke his greaves and spurs, a cloak, a coat of russet cloth, and a hood of scarlet cloth, a saddle and bridle ;[3] 13s. 4d., and a doublet. To Agnes, dau. of Thos. Credy, a bed with tapestry. To Joan, dau. of Adam Crydy (sic), one of his best beds, with 2 sheets and 2 blankets (the Lady Elizabeth to choose a bed for herself first) ; also 40s. To Wm. Serle and to John, his brother, 40d. each. To Wm. Halswyll unum scrinium longum. To Joan atte Yeate, 6s. 8d. and 4 yards of cloth (quatuor virgas de panno). To Wm. Credy 20 marks. To Joan Halswyll an ewer and wash-basin. To Adam Credy, his brother, he leaves a hanging (doser), with a bench-cover (banker) and 6 cushions (cussynys) ; also 12 new plates of tin. To Dionisia Braunscombe 20s. To Wm. Halswyll a long coat of worsted. To the Lady Elizabeth Poulet he bequeaths a mare (unum jumentum). To Thos. Poulet a colt out of the said mare (unum pullum equinum ejusdem jumenti.) To his brother, Adam Crydy (sic), his colt, then at Womberley, and a chaldron (unum cacabum). To the Lady Elizabeth, his sister, a wagon, bound with iron. To Ralph Crydy (sic) a cup, with cover. To Adam Credy all his lands and tenements, rents, reversions, etc., in Devon, belonging to him by hereditary right after the death of Wm. Credy, his father, and Thos. Credy, his brother ; to have and to hold, to the said Adam, and his heirs of his body, so that if he should die without an heir of his body, all the said lands, tenements, &c., should devolve on his sister, the Lady Elizabeth Poulet for the term of her life—after her death they were to pass to testator's nephew, Thos., son of Elizabeth Paulet (sic), and the heirs of his body ; failing which they were to pass to the direct heirs of his said sister, Elizabeth.

Executors :—Adam Credy, Ralph Credy, and Henry Crosse ; who are to act under the Lady Elizabeth, his sister.

Proved, 17 August, 1406, before the Bishop at Crediton.

XVII. John de Shillyngford, Can. of Exeter and R. of Ugborough. i. 308.

He commends his soul to God, and orders his body to be buried, if it can be arranged conveniently, in St. Katherine's chapel in the parish-church of Widecombe[-in-the-Moor], by the side of his mother ; that, to quote the testator's own touching words—"ubi habui primum salve ibi recipiam ultimum meum vale." And, as it had been his wont to spend too much time on the disposition of his worldly affairs, he bequeaths all that he is possessed of to his most dear and faithful brother, Baldwin de Shyllyngford, leaving him everything ; and if he should see fit to devote any portion thereof for the good of testator's soul and the souls of his parents, he was to do so in the way he thought best. And he makes the said Baldwin his sole executor.

Dated, in London, on the day after the Feast of the Annunciation, 1388.

Proved 16 October, 1406, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

the Chapel of St. Gabriel, at Clyst. He leaves to John Graunger (sic) his son, all his lands and tenements in the county of Stafford and 13s. 4d. To the High Altar of the aforesaid Chapel, 6s. 8d. The residue of his estate he bequeaths to Alice, his wife ; but she was to pay all his debts.

Executors :—Alice, his wife, and John Caulee. Dated, at Clyst, 31 October, 1406. On 24 February, 1406-7, the said John Caulee and Wm. Salle, husband of the said Alice, in her name, appeared before the Bishop, at Clyst, and refused to administer. The Bp. appointed Rob. Wastell "tanquam ab intestato," in their stead.

XIX. Isabella Daumarle.

Dated, 19 June, 1407. i, 308b.

She commends her soul to God Almighty and the glorious Virgin Mary, and orders her body to be buried in the Church of Aveton Giffard, to which church she bequeaths 100s. and her best set of vestments : to the church of Holbeton she leaves 100s. ; to [North] Huish 20s. ; and the like sum to the churches of Sydenham [Damarel], "Tavy," Lustleigh, and Gidleigh ; also to the Friars Minors and Preachers of Exeter ; and to the Carmelites of Plymouth : to the Minorites there she leaves 13s. 4d. ; to Cornworthy Priory 2 marks ; and to each of the houses for lepers in the county of Devon outside of Exeter, 13s. 4d.

For her funeral expenses, and for obits and trentals, to be observed for a year, she leaves £50 ; and £100 for the hire of two chaplains to serve for ten years, after her death. To John Grym, V. of Holbeton, and Rd. Brouste she leaves 40s. each. To Thos. Cook, Elys Webber, John Hyll, Thos. Gay, and Henry Schephurd, 20s. each. To Wm. Yeo and John Webber, 40d. each. To Walter Yeo and Rd. Northmore 6s. 8d. each. To William Gayne 40d. To Joan Gay 6s. 8d. For the repair of bridges £10. To Nicholas, her son, she bequeaths her Missal ; to her son Thos., her cloaks of "gris" (penulas meas de grisio) ; to her two daughters, Joan and Margaret, her other cloaks ; to her son James 50 marks. To Wm. Strange 10s. To Rd. Halswyll 40s. The residue of her estate she leaves to her sons Nicholas, Thos. and James in equal shares.

Executors :—Her said three sons. Witnesses :—John Grym, V. of Holbeton, Rd. Halswyll, and Roger Monk, chaplain. Proved 11 July, 1407, before the Bishop at Crediton, by Thos. Tremayn, one of the executors named therein.

XX. Elizabeth Lercedekne, ("in pura viduetate mea.")

Dated at Haccombe, 12 December, 1406. i, 309.

She commends her soul to God her Almighty Creator, the Blessed Virgin Mary, His Mother, and all His Saints in Heaven, directing her body to be buried in the choir of the Church of the Friars Preachers nearest to the place of her decease ; to whom she leaves 100s. that they may pray for her soul, and because of her burial in their church. Also, to the Friars Minors of Exeter, 13s. 4d., and to those of Plymouth, 6s. 8d. ; to pray for her soul. To the Lepers' Houses at Plympton, and at Exeter ; 3s. 4d. each. To the Hospital of St. John, Exeter, 6s. 8d. To the Lepers' House, at Totnes, 3s. 4d. To the High Altar of the Church of St. Blaise at Haccombe, in compensation for tithes and oblations forgotten, or kept back, 6s. 8d. She directs her executors to procure two priests, to celebrate for her soul and for all the faithful dead, continuously, in the said church of Haccombe, and to pay them as they may jointly determine. To Rob. Cary she leaves a silver-gilt cup, with cover, graratum cum ressents ypounsed cum rolles. To the Lady Alice Werthe 2 marks sterling, "de Corneworthy." The residue, after payment of her debts and execution of her Will, she bequeaths to her servants, to be divided among them all.

Executors :—Rob. Scobehill, Thos. Norys, and Gilbert Smyth.

Proved, 7 August, 1406, before the Bishop, at Crediton.

XXI. John Wythewyll, Precentor of Crediton.

Dated, 13 July, 1407. i, 309.

He commends his soul to God, and his body to holy sepulchure in the Lady-Chapel at Crediton. He bequeaths to the Vicars of the said Church a "portion," due to him from the Church of Lelant [Lanaunt MS. ; i.e. St. Uny Lelant, in Cornwall], and retained by John Innocent, alias "Nocent."[1] The residue he leaves to his executors, to spend for the good of his soul.

Executors :—Rd. Aldrynglon, Canon of Exeter, Wm. Trae, and John Bowode, clerks ; and Rob. Rowe.

Proved, 2 September, 1407, before the Bishop, at Crediton.

XXII.—John de Lydeford, Archdeacon of Totnes.

Dated on the Feast of St. Gregory, Pope (i.e., 12 March), 1406. i, 309b.

He commends his soul to God, his Maker and Saviour, beseeching Him Who bought his soul and the souls of all the faithful with His Precious Blood, to deal with it according to His Mercy, when it should have passed from this vale of misery, of His exceeding great kindness and goodness ineffable. He orders his body to be buried in the Cathedral, on the north side of the Choir, in a place selected by himself, and lately assigned to him by the Dean and Chapter. He leaves £20 for his anniversary, to be observed for 20 years continuously after his decease ; the money (which he desires should be kept in the Treasury of the Cathedral, or other safe place) to be distributed on each occasion among the canons, vicars, annuellars, secondaries, and chorister-boys, who shall join in saying Placebo and Dirige at night, and the Mass of Requiem on the morrow ; viz., to each Canon 4d. ; to each Vicar and Annuellar 2d. ; to each Secondary 1d. ; and to each chorister-boy ob. ; the clerk of the Treasury, each year, to have 4d. for his trouble in the distribution. If any portion of the sum allotted for the year remained over it was to be replaced, except some ten, eight, or six pence, to be reserved for the poor and needy mendicants present in the Church. Every canon and other priest, sharing in this distribution, to perform strictly the stipulated services. If any preferred to commemorate testator at their own Masses, they were to do so on the day of their proper turn, or on the nearest possible day. If his rules were infringed by the Stewards of the Treasury, or by any other person, the anniversaries were to be suspended, and the £20 applied to other pious uses. Immediately after his death, his executors were to engage two priests, of good conversation and reputation, and pay them a sufficient salary, to say Mass daily (apart from lawful impediment), for a year, for testator's soul, and for Rob. Herward and Edw. Loveworth, at the altar of St. John the Evangelist, on the north side of the Lady Chapel (with the sanction of the Dean and Chapter), and also the service for the dead, Placebo and Dirige, with the usual commendations. He leaves four trentals (trentella), for four priests, with the like intent. To the Church of Ide he bequeaths his chalice, gilt within and without (which he had been accustomed to use in his own chapel at Exeter) ; also his beautiful large noted Breviary, to remain there for ever, for the use of the parish presbyters and the parishioners ; the officiating presbyter and the parishioners, on Sundays and other Feasts, to make special mention of his name in the Mass among the benefactors ; also, his third set of vestments, with a chasuble of crimson cloth de Blodio stragulato ; on condition that the executors are, first, promised that testator's condition will be fulfilled. To the poorer parishioners and his tenants there, he leaves 40s., to be divided at the discretion of his executors ; and to Matthew Stoke the same sum, and his new long crimson coat, furred with pelury (cum pellura furratam), and a large hood of the same suit, well furred. To James Carislegh, his clerk, £10 to help him in his scholastick studies. To John Holeway, his clerk, 12 marks, and a bed suitable to his station, viz., the bed with tapestry which testator bought of Robert, his Vicar. To Sutton, his cook [coco meo] 60s. ; to Thos. Walter, 60s. ; to Wm. Carislegh, 40s. ; to John Page, 40s. ; to John Langman, 20s. ; to his dear friends, John Gorewyll, LL.D., and his brother, John the younger, Mauger Parys, Rd. Mark, Rob. Lyngham (R. of St. Mary [Major] at Exeter), John Holond (R. of St. Pancras), John Govys, Rob. Langman (his Vicar), Rd. Marschell (his chaplain), Peter Hopere, Wm. Hayford, John Deyman, and John Beawfys (chaplains), 20s. each ; entreating them all to remember him in their Masses, etc., and trusting in God to deliver him more speedily and easily from Purgatory by reason of their prayers and merits. To the Friars Preachers of Exeter (to which Order he had himself been admitted), 40s. To the Friars Minors (to whom also he belonged), he leaves no money, but simply refers them to the engagement to pray for his soul and keep his anniversary, into which they had entered, according to their custom, when he was admitted; his executors to attend to the matter immediately after his death. To Rob. Lyngham, before mentioned, 20s. in addition to the former legacy, and his black cup of maple (de maserio note nuncupatum) gilt, with a cover silver-gilt (wherefrom testator had drunk much good wine); entreating him to pray for him, and to assist his executors. The residue, after paying his debts (que pauca sunt, ut spero) his executors were to bestow on his poor relations and other indigent persons; and he desires that their names should be ascertained diligently; also, that poor penniless people, bedridden, and confined to their huts and cottages (in lectis et tugurriis et casis suis cubantes), unless they were really able to work, should be remembered; and that frequent Masses should be said for his soul, by chaplains of good repute, and for his parents and friends, especially for Rob. Hereward (formerly Archdn. of Taunton), John Stapeldon (late Prior of Abingdon), and Edw. Loveworth (formerly a Vicar in the Cathedral), Nicholas, Rector of Crawley, and Thos. Rector of St. Maurice, Winchester; and for all the faithful dead, specially those who had done him service. He leaves £10 for the repair of the more necessary bridges and roads near Exeter. As to his funeral expenses, he charges his executors to do their utmost to keep them within reasonable bounds, avoiding superfluity and pomp and every kind of excess; and he absolutely prohibits all banqueting on the occasion, on the part of the Canons and other Ministers; only his executors and those actually engaged in the necessary work of burying him, and a goodly number of the very poor, chosen by his executors, were to be feasted; all customs to the contrary, when Canons of Exeter depart this life, notwithstanding; but he desires that priests attending his funeral, and celebrating then, or on the following day, shall have a repast and the sum of 3d. and no more. His executors were not to allow any exchanges, or re-arrangements of his legacies; but distribution was to be made as he had directed. He leaves to the poor and sick inmates of the Hosp. of St. John, Exeter, half a mark, and the same amount to poor scholars and clerks therein, to be faithfully divided by the Prior; and each of them is to say unum Psalterium ["Spalterium, MS."] for his soul.

Executors:—The afore-mentioned Rd. Mark, John Holond, and John Govys; to the first of whom he leaves 40s., besides his legacy of 20s.; also his fair Bible, and a silver cup de les plat pycys,[1] with cover; a long table cloth of Parisian work (de opere Parisius) and a long tuallum. To John Holond he gives 40s., in addition to the former 20s., his fair, new, Legenda Sanctorum et Temporalis in two volumes, and a silver cup de les plat pycys.[1] To John Govys he gives his red bed, embroidered, with tapestry, and canopy, and three curtains to match, in addition to the 20s. mentioned above, and a silver cup de les plat pycys,[1] and its cover; also a table-cloth and a tuallum of Parisian work, in middling condition, not his best; also six spoons of the small set and pattern, and a dozen (unum dosyne) new vessels of tin, garneysy. He hoped there would be no contention or quarrelling [briga] between them, but that they would do their best to carry out his Will and certain directions written on a separate sheet of parchment for their guidance. He concludes with an Anathema on those who should change or hinder his directions, and Benediction for those who fulfil them.

Proved, 13 December, 1407, before the Bishop at Crediton.

[3] "Marcii" is written on an erasure.—Note by B. W. Greenfield, Esq. (4 Cranbury Terrace, Southampton):—"As Probate of this Will was—by virtue of a Commission from Abp. Arundel—granted, at Exeter, under the seal of the Archdn. of Barnstaple, on 18 April, 1408, and registered, accordingly, at Lambeth [Arundel, I. 253], it is probable that the Probate taken before the Bp. of Exeter was the prior act of the two; in which case its precise date would correspond with 24 March, 1407-8, if the month is correctly given."

[4] Oliver (Monasticon, page 404) adopts this later date, without question. I suspect that the scribe, when he corrected the month forgot to correct the year.

the poor on the day of his death, 20s. To buy a new bell for Gittisham Church, 40s. To John Tycon, his servant, he leaves a cow. To Alice, wife of John Forneauxs, a heifer worth 6s. 8d. To Wm. Radeslo, his chaplain, 8 marks, to say Mass for his soul, wherever he pleases. To Elizabeth Walshe, a heifer, worth 8s. To Stephen Walshe, 3s. 4d. To John Walshe, 3s. 4d. To John Gobe, his servant, 6s. 8d. To Joan Persey, 3s. 4d. To John Beseys two[1] [?] To his executors, for their trouble, he leaves 40s. each; and they are to dispose of the residue for the good of his soul.

Executors:—Wm. Radeslo, chaplain, and Henry Whytyng.—[There is no memorandum of this Will having been proved.]

XXV. Richard Tyttesbury, Can. of Exeter, and R. of the Mediety of the Church of Ermington, "in pura siquidem sinceritate Fidei Catholice existens." i, 313.

He commends his soul to God, his Creator, Who redeemed it with His Precious Blood, with the utmost intensity of devotion and with all his desire; his body to be buried wherever his executors, or one of them, direct. He leaves 40s. to be given to prisoners and other poor people within two days, and a further sum of 100s. to be dealt with in like manner within eight days, after his death. To Baldwin Tyttesbury, his brother, he leaves 100s., part of a sum already received by him, for which testator held his written and sealed acknowledgment. To Edmund, the said Baldwin's son, 40s.; to Katherine, his daughter, 20s.; to Isabella, his daughter, 20s.; to Margaret, his wife, one of testator's coats, without the fur, and 20s. To Isabella, testator's sister, 13s. 4d.; to Thos. Tyttesbury, his nephew, in partem exhibicionis sue ad jura regalia singulis annis ad tempus sex annorum, seven marks, as long as he shall so continue (unless testator, in his life time, should otherwise dispose thereof); and if within the said six years, he should inherit, or acquire by marriage, a good and sufficient fortune, or should die in the interim, the legacy was to lapse, and be devoted to pious uses for the good of testator's soul. To the same Thomas, he leaves all emoluments etc., arising from his own lands and tenements, held by testator as his guardian, from testator's death until the said Thomas's majority; the said Thomas to marry at his own discretion, without interference from his executors. To Alice, daughter of Thos. Hodysford, he leaves one of his coats, with the fur upon it. To his parishioners at Ermington, and especially those employed in agriculture, 10 marks. To the poor parishioners at Faringdon, Dioc. Winton, 10s. To the poor parishioners of Westbeare, Cantuar. Dioc., 10s. To the Anchorites of St. Leonards, near Exeter, of Marham Church, and of Bodmin, 40d. each. To Richard Graynevyll, for life, the use of the book called Pupilla Oculi, in the said Richard's own handwriting; to go, after his death, to Ermington Church for ever, to be used by the ministers of the Church for their learning, and never to be sold by the parishioners; and he leaves him the 24s. that he owed testator. To Wm. Brounyng, his clerk and executor, he bequeaths a book of Decretals, beginning (on the second folio) "juxta quod iste testatur," with the Sixth Book bound up in the same volume; also meum nigrum Quaternum; and the use, for six years, of his Books on Civil Law, with the exception of Cinus;[2] due security for their return being given to his executors. Edmund Tyttesbury to have them afterwards (or their value, to buy a Corpus Juris Civilis, if he addicted himself to the study of the same), for his life time; then to be sold for the good of testator's soul. To Roger Markedene, his clerk, 40s., and his little girdle of black silk with silver mounts; and, should the said Roger attain the priesthood, he is to be preferred to all others to say Mass for testator's soul, the executors to pay him a reasonable salary, notwithstanding the fact that he is an executor himself. To Thos. Rowe, V. of Ermington, he leaves his best girdle. To Joan More, of Hartland, 20s.

[2] Nicholas Morton, R. of this Collegiate Chantry, in his Will, dated 26 August, 1534, leaves 3s. 4d. "unto our Lady of Pitie."

He commends his soul to God, and his body to be buried in the Chapel of the Blessed Mary at Culmstock[1]; to which Chapel he bequeaths a set of vestments de plonket[2] and an old Missal, there to remain for ever; that they might pray for his soul, the souls of Wm. Prestecote, his father, and Joan, his mother, and for all the faithful dead. To the Church of Culmstock, he leaves his best set of vestments of red silk, and his large tablet of alabaster (alabaustre, MS.) to stand over the altar of the B.V.M. there, that they may pray for his soul, and for the souls of his wives, Joan and Margery, and all to whom he is bound. Also, to Culmstock Ch. he leaves two images of angels, with their brackets, to stand in the Chancel near the High Altar; also, his new Missal, to remain at Prestecote, for use in the Chapel, as long as his wife Margery resided there; after her death, or her departure therefrom, to be taken to Culmstock Church, to which he, moreover, bequeaths his Gradual, his Ordinal, and a book called a Manual; also a book called "Synod." To the Churchwardens of Culmstock he leaves 13s. 4d., for the soul of Thos. Rawlyn (late V. of Sidbury), towards the cost of the bells to be provided there; also 20s., to provide an oil lamp, to hang in the Chancel and be lighted every Sunday, and on all Double Feasts for ever, at Mattins and at High Mass (for his soul and his parents'); also his new gilt cross, to be carried to the church on the day of his burial, before his body, and then placed on the High Altar, there to remain on all Double (but not on other) Feasts. To the keepers of the store of the said Church he leaves two oxen, two cows, and twenty sheep "utriusque sexus," with 13s. 4d., to maintain his anniversary and those of Joan and Margery, his wives, and of Wm. Prestecote and Joan his wife, on one day, yearly, for ever, and to pay one penny yearly, for the said souls, aforesaid, at the Mass of St. John (ad Collectum Sancti Johannis.) He, further leaves £23 6s. 8d. for a chaplain, to say Mass, for five years after his death, in the Chap. of the Blessed Mary at Culmstock, for his own soul, and for Joan, his late wife; for John de Chivereston, knight, John Spycer (of Exeter), Wm. Sleghe (of Kenton), John Boys (of Halberton), and all the faithful dead; the said chaplain to receive seven marks yearly for his services. To the Churchwardens of Northalynton [hodie East Allington] he leaves an ox, six sheep, and also 6s. 8d., to keep the anniversary of John Boys atte Wode, there, for ever. To the Churchwardens of [West] Alvyngton an ox, a cow, and 13s. 4d., to maintain his anniversary and that of Joan his late wife. To the V. of Culmstock, for tithes forgotten, 13s. 4d. To the Canons, Vicars, and other Ministers of the Cathedral, 20s. for Placebo and Dirige, on the day of his funeral, before the Mass of Requiem. And in like manner, to the Canons, etc., at Ottery, 20s. To the Prior of Taunton, 6s. 8d., and to every Canon there 2s. To the Abbot of Torre, 6s. 8d., and to every Canon there, 12d. To the Abbot of Dunkeswell [Dounekeswyl, MS.], 10s., and to every monk there, 12d.; to the Abbot of Newenham, 6s. 8d., and to every monk there, 12d.; the same to the Prior and monks of St. Nicholas', Exeter; to the Prior, etc., of the Hosp. of St. John, Exeter, 13s. 4d.; to the Prioress of Polslo, his best silver cup—with cover, called "Franceys," to remain in that House for ever, and be called "Prestecote," in his memory; also, 10s., and to each nun, 2s.; for his soul and for his two wives: to the Abbess of Canonsleigh, 6s. 8d., and to each nun, 12d.; and the like sum to the Prioress and Nuns of Cornworthy. To each of the chaplains at Polslo, Canonsleigh, and Cornworthy, at the time of his death, 8d. To the Friars Minors of Exeter, 40s., and to the Friars Preachers there, 13s. 4d. For the repair of the Bridge at Totnes, he leaves 3s. 4d.; for the maintenance of the Bridge at Teignbridge [Tyngbrygg, MS.] 3s. 4d.; and for the repair of the Bridge at Culmstock, 20s. To the V. of Culmstock, for two trentals of masses for his soul, immediately after his death, 5s.; and to the Vicars of Burlescombe and Halberton, Walter Stalworthy, chaplain, and John Pruet, for the like service, the same sum to each. To the Lazar-houses at Exeter, Totnes, Plympton, and Honiton, 3s. 4d. each. To his wife Margery he leaves the remainder of his term in a certain tenement (which he bought of the Earl of Devon), in the town of Kingsbridge; the same to be sold if she died before the term expired, and the proceeds devoted to pious uses for their souls. To his dau. Joan, he leaves two oxen, two cows, and forty sheep of both sexes; also, a bed suitable to her rank, with tapestry; also his third best brass pot, a dish, a ewer and wash-basin, his best cloak of scarlet cloth with fur, and 40s. To John Tyrry, his valet (garcioni meo), one robe de liberatis meis, a brass pot, and 10s. To Walter Northecote all his books on the Law of Land, all his steel armour (except his sword), and his second best colt (unum pullum secundum meliorem). To his tenants at Prestecote 12d. each. To John Almysheghys, his servant, 13s. 4d. and a cow. To all others in his service at the time of his death, 40d. each. To Wm. Almyscumb, his best silver girdle, and to Joan his wife, a crimson dress with fur; also to the said Joan and to John their son (testator's godson) he bequeaths his ewer and wash-basin from his house at Exeter. To Rd. Parker 5s. to celebrate for his soul. To Clarice, his servant, for her long service, 20s. and a bed suitable to her condition. The old Missal in his Chapel at Prestecote, and the old vestments, with all the furniture of the Altar, and his chalice in use there, to remain there for the life of Margery, his wife, and then to be given to the Ch. of Culmstock, for use in the Chapel of the Blessed Virgin; the afore-mentioned vestments, etc., to remain for Wm. Almiscumb and his heirs, in the Chapel at Prestecote. He leaves to his executors his interest in the Manors of Rake and Elston[1], the proceeds to be applied to the payment of his debts and legacies: to each executor accepting administration he leaves 40s.; also, he bequeaths to them, to be sold, one press at Rake, for making cider (unum torculare apud Rake pro cisave faciendo), To Mabel, wife of John Schaple, he leaves a gold ring, with "Hoc Nomine IHC." engraved thereon. Three hundred Masses to be said for his soul, immediately after his death, and before his burial. After his death a woollen pall of black cloth, with a Cross of white linen in the midst, was to be placed upon his body; and two round wax lights, and no more, to be set, one at his head and the other at his feet, each to contain eight pounds of wax; also six wax torches, each of the same weight, were to be provided; his executors, and the men carrying the said torches, to be clad in black cloth. After his burial, two of the said torches to be deposited in the Ch. of Culmstock at the High Altar, a third in the Chapel of the B.V M. there, to be burnt at the Elevation of the Sacrament: the fourth to be placed in the Chap. of Prestecote, for the same purpose, as also the fifth, which was to be given to Burlescombe Ch., and the sixth, to the Chapel at Culm Davy.[2] Every chaplain present at his funeral to have 6d.; every poor person, 1d., and any that were blind, 2d. His gifts to his servants to be distributed at the time of his death. All his goods and chattels, after payment of his debts and legacies, to be sold and applied to pious uses, for his soul, and for the souls of his wives, etc.

Executors:—Margery, his wife; Thos. Reymond; Wm. Jew, of Canonsleigh; John Pruet, chaplain; Wm. Almyscumb, and John Cole of North Pool [Northpole, MS.]

On 29 October, 1412, testator added a Codicil to his Will, bequeathing to the Church of Culmstock a further sum of 60s. towards the bell (in subsidium collecte campane ibidem), also to John Vayron, John Knygth, John Broke, and John Burneman, 20s. each; and to Wm. Almyscumb, his clock (orilogium meum, alias dictum clokke). Ten marks were to be paid to Thos. Ferrers, Precentor of Ottery, to put Wm. Walrande, his cousin, (son of Wm. Walrande, junior), to school, for four years after testator's death. To Wm. Almyscumb, and Joan his wife, he grants a moiety of the rent and service of Rob. Fourbour and of Agnes his wife, and the reversion of a moiety of a new tenement, with appurtenances, in the town of Wellington, a garden, and a parcel of land adjacent, which the said Robert and Agnes hold for life, by testator's concession, and that of John Brycon, senior; also, a moiety of the rent and service of Thos. Wydesworthy and Agnes his wife, and the reversion of a moiety of a certain tenement, a garden, a dovecot, and a parcel of ground in the same town, which they held for life by grant from the same persons.

XXXVI. William Wilford, citizen of Exeter.

Dated, 30 June, 1413. i, 319b.

He commends his soul to God and All Saints, and his body to holy sepulture in the Cathedral, or in the cemetery thereof, as his executors shall determine; they are, also at their discretion, to make distribution to the poor at his funeral. Two wax lights, each weighing six pounds, to be set, the one at the head, the other at the foot of his body; and twelve torches, each weighing ten pounds, of which one is to be offered at every altar in his parish church of St. Petrock; one for the Church of Morchard, one for Rackenford, one for E. Anstey, one for Puddington [Poutyngton, MS.], and the other four as the executors might please.

He bequeaths to the Friars Preachers at Exeter and to the Friars Minors there, 13s. 4d. to each; to the Hospital of St. John Baptist there, 20s.; to the Prioress and Convent of Polslo 20s.; and to all of these four flagons of wine apiece. To the Priory of Cowick, 13s. 4d. and four flagons of wine. To the lepers of St. Mary Magd., Exeter, 6s. 8d. To Thomas Tunerton [perhaps "Tuverton"] enough cloth to make a cope. To every priest celebrating, at the time of his death, in St. Petrock's Church, 20d. To John Westecote, Rector there, 4 marks, for tithes forgotten. The bed-ridden poor to be remembered.

He leaves £10, to make a conduit in the City of Exeter, assigning his croft without the South Gate for the erection and maintenance thereof. To his dau. Elizabeth, wife of John Parkere, he leaves the reversion of a tenement in the north suburb of Exeter, which once belonged to Rob. le Noble, and passed to testator's wife, Margaret, for her life; if the said Elizabeth died without heirs of her body, the tenement to be sold, and the money applied to pious uses. To Wm. Thorne, his servant, he leaves one of his shops in the parish of St. Pancras, for life; to go on his death to testator's son Robert, and his heirs; if Robert died without issue, the shop was to be sold and the proceeds applied to pious uses. His house, near St. Petrock's Ch., of which Edw. Lydeford was tenant, he directs to be sold: part of the proceeds (viz., 20s. yearly, for fifty-eight years), to be divided between the Rector, priests, and other ministers, serving God in that Church, to sing an antiphon of St. Mary therein, before her image in the new aisle. But if the said Edward, or any other person, were willing, by concession of the executors, and paying a rent of 25s. a year, to rebuild the said house, he might keep it for the term aforesaid, and testator would grant and bequeath to him all his timber at Southernhay (totum meremium meum quod est apud Southynghay), towards the said rebuilding; the reversion of the said house to be sold at the end of the said term, and the proceeds devoted to keeping up the singing of the said Antiphon, daily, year after year. But if the said Edward would neither accept the said term, nor rebuild the house, the proceeds of the eventual sale of the fee simple thereof were to be applied to keeping up the said Antiphon for ever.

All his interest in the messuages, lands, etc., in the parish of St. Sidwell, which testator had recently acquired by grant from Thos. Monk, he leaves to remunerate his servants and attendants. And all those messuages, etc., in the City of Exeter and its suburbs, which had come to him by purchase or bequest, in fee simple, he leaves to his executors in trust for his son Robert, a minor, together with the lands, &c., in Exeter and its suburbs bequeathed to testator by Rob. Wilford, his father; all rents, etc., to be kept in a chest with four keys, one for each executor, and applied to the maintenance of his said son till he should come of age; any residue meanwhile accruing to be applied annually to the support of two Chaplains, to say Mass for testator's soul, year by year, in St. Petrock's Ch., and for the relief of the poor; reserving, however, for the said Robert, on his attaining his majority, a hundred marks for his immediate needs. Then he was to come into absolute possession of the said lands: but if he should first die, leaving no heir of his body, the property was to be sold, and the proceeds applied to pious uses. To Wm. Hull, and to John Parkere (husband of testator's daughter, Elizabeth) he bequeaths all that his part or share in the ship, or barge, called 'le Marie de Exemoth," which Rd. Crese and testator held in common. To Rd. Reymond he leaves 100s. To John Wilford a jewel worth four marks, to be selected by the executors. All his domestick servants to be remunerated (remunerentur et habeant rewardum). To Margaret, his wife, and Robert, his son, (when the latter should come of age), he leaves, in equal shares, all his household utensils belonging to the chamber, hall, pantry, kitchen, and buttery, for daily use; the silver cups, salt cellars, spoons, and other silver plate, to be divided in equal portions, according to custom, "inter me, et uxorem meam et dictum Robertum filium meum—prout moris est." The residue to be applied for his soul's health.

Executors :—Margaret, his wife; Thos. Reymond; Henry Hull, testator's brother, and Peter Sturt; with John Westecote for overseer; to each of whom he bequeaths 5 marks for his trouble.

Proved, 2 October, in the Church of St. Petrock, Exeter, before Roger Bolter, Canon of Exeter, the Bishop's Commissary therein; and certified accordingly, 3 October, 1413, by the Bishop at Clyst.

Summa bonorum :—£228 6s. 9d.

XXXVII.—William Ekerdon, Canon of Exeter and R. of Longbredy [Langebridie, MS.] (Dioc. of Salisbury).

Dated at Colyton, 8 November, 1413. i, 320b.

He commends his soul to God and his body to sacred sepulture, next to Dodyngton (juxta Dodyngton) in the south tower of the Cathedral.

To the fabrick of the Church of Salisbury he leaves 6s. 8d.; to St. Peter's at Exeter 40s.; for the nave of the Church of Maiden-Newton 6s. 8d., and for the light there before the image of St. John Baptist, 20s. To the Friars of Dorchester 13s. 4d.; to those of Ilchester 10s.; to the Friars Preachers of Exeter, 10s.; to the Friars Minors there, 10s. To find four chaplains to celebrate for him, the year after his death; two in the Church of Longbredy [Langebrydy, MS.], and two in Exeter Cathedral: he bequeaths £22, for their stipends, and for wax, wine, and other necessaries. To Edmund Elyot, clerk, he leaves 40s.; to Wm. Whytyng, a monk enclosed at Sherborne, 6s. 8d.; to John Prauncard 6s. 8d.; to Wm. Dyber 40s.; to the abbot and monks of Abbotsbury and of Cerne, 20s. in each case. For the poor on the day of his burial he bequeaths such sum as his executors may think fit to spend; and they were also to provide for a thousand Masses, to be said immediately after his death. To John Brode he leaves 100s., part of the money that he owed testator. To Walter Hanecok, his young page (pageto meo), he leaves five marks; to Wm. Flay 5 marks: to John Ekerdon 100s.; to Wm. Felde 100s.; to John Horsman 13s. 4d.; to Wm. Holme 6s. 8d.; to Reginald, his chorister, 6s. 8d.; to Thos. Bolworth, his late chorister, 13s. 4d.; to John Trunket 10s. For his obit, in the choir of his Cathedral, for a month from the date of his death, £4 12s. 2d. He leaves his doublet, de corrodio Exoniensis Episcopi, together with the fur, to Hugh, his Vicar. To Matilda, mother of Walter, his page, he leaves 6s. 8d. and a single skirt; to Edm. James 6s. 8d.; to Rob. Veel a silver cup, flat, with cover, (ciphum argenteum flat cum cooperculo—See p. 390, note); to Robert Grey a silver cup, perforated (pounsett), the cover marked with St. Andrew's cross. To the Church of Longbredy he leaves a book called "Willelmus de Montibus;" also, a Gradual, an Antiphonar, an Ordinal, a Missal, a chalice gilt, an apparel of silk for the altar (unum apparatum de cerico pro altari), and a set of vestments; for keeping his obit, yearly, and to pray for his soul, every Sunday in the pulpit: also, a Breviary [bound in] red (portiforium rubium) to be lent to a certain poor priest, and so handed from priest to priest as long as it should last; and in like manner a Breviary bound in silk. He leaves to John Hull the Breviary already in his possession.—To John Byncombe 13s. 4d.—For four poor clerks to be sent to the schools at Oxford, for two years, fifty marks in equal shares. He orders the sum of £20 to be deposited in a chest in the [Cathedral] Treasury, for his obit for twenty years, to be bestowed on those present, at the rate of 20s. a year.—He leaves to John Hull, his executor, five marks for his trouble, and the same sum to John Brode, Rob. Dunnyng, and Gilbert Spencer.—To John Gilbert, to say for his soul thirty masses of St. Gregory (trentale Sancti Gregorii), ten marks.—To Henry Keyche, chaplain, 40s.—To Edwold Packe 20s., and to Joan his wife a skirt, furred (penulatam). The residue of his estate to be disposed of by his executors, for the good of his soul.

Executors :—John Hull, V. of Colyton; Rob. Dunnyng, of Exeter ; Gilbert Spencer, chaplain ; and John Brode, his valet [meum valectum].

Proved 4 December, 1413, before the Bishop, at Clyst, in the presence of Wm. Langton and Rd. Palmer, Canons of Exeter, and Michael Lercedekne, R. of Thorney.

Summa bonorum :—£372 17s. 1d., ob. q.

XXXVIII.—Richard Estebrok, Vicar of Okehampton.

Dated, 5 December, 1413. i, 321.

He commends his soul to God, and his body to ecclesiastical sepulture.—To Walter Manston, to celebrate in Okehampton church for three years for the health of his soul, and for his exequies daily, he bequeaths thirteen pounds of silver ; and to the principal store of the said church 20s., that his anniversary may be kept for ever. On the day of his burial the sum of 40s. was to be given to the poor. To Walter Manston, chaplain he leaves 20s. and his second best doublet.—To Thos. Estebrok, his best girdle with silver clasp, a silver cup and cover, and his best doublet.—To Joan Hore his second best girdle[1] with silver clasp.—To Edith, wife of Rob. Wyke, his two other girdles, with silver clasps, and a quarter of wheat.—To Rob. Wyke the two cows already in his keeping.—To every priest taking part in his exequies, and present and celebrating for his soul on the day of his funeral, 12d., and to each priest only celebrating on the day of his burial 6d.—To Joan, dau. of Wm. Hore, to Matilda (another dau.), to John, son of Rob. Wyke, and to Walter Petheler, he leaves a cow each.—To Adam Toker a cow and half a quarter of wheat.—To John Row, his servant, a heifer.—To John Gavet, his servant, 6s. 8d. To John Weryng, chaplain, his third-best doublet and 6s. 8d.—To Thos. Estebrok, Joan Hore, and Edith, wife of Rob. Wyke, three brass pots and a saucepan,[2] viz., to Thomas his best pot, to Joan his second best, and to Edith his third-best and a saucepan[2]—if the residue sufficed to pay his debts and legacies; if not, the articles were to be sold.—To each executor who should act, he leaves 20s.

Executors :—Thos. Estebrok, and Walter Manston ; and he orders them to distribute 40 measures[3] of wheat among his poor parishioners.

Proved, 11 January, 1413-14, before Wm. Hunden, Canon of Exeter and Commissary of the Bishop, in the Chapel of St. Gabriel at Clyst.

XXXIX.—William Poundestoke, R. of Bigbury and Canon of Exeter.

Dated at Exeter, 9 May, 1414. i, 321[b].

He commends his soul to his Creator and his body to holy sepulture.

He leaves to the store of the church of St. Laurence of Bigbury, 40s. ; also, the better of his two Breviaries there, for use on the north side of the choir for ever, never to be otherwise used or alienated ; also, a large dossal embroidered with the birds called popardys, to spread before the High Altar[4] on Feast-day.—To the store of the chapel of St. Michael-de-la-Burgh,[5] he leaves 20s. ; and to the store of the Chapel of St. Milburga,[6] 13s. 4d. his poor parishioners, as soon as possible after his death, he leaves 40s., for the good of his soul, &c.—To the Cathedral he leaves 40s., to defend the rights of the said cathedral church; also, for its fabrick, 40s.; also, a Legenda de Temporali, and another de Sanctis.—To John Holecombe, chaplain (or to some other fit priest, if the said John be unable, or unwilling, to undertake the duty), he leaves £4 13s. 4d., yearly, for four years, to say Mass for his soul, and for his parents, and next-of-kin;—also, for Sir Wm. de Bykebury, his progenitors and descendants, —in the Church of Bigbury and in the chapel de-la-Burghe afore-mentioned: and twice a week, at least, in the said chapel.—Also 20s., to be divided among the priests who should say Placebo and Dirige and Masses, at the time of his decease, or as quickly as possible afterwards; and 10s. among Christ's poor, on the same day, that they might pray for him. He directs that the dignity and customs of the Cathedral of Exeter, as to exequies, singing the Psalter, and the whole manner of sepulture, be observed.—He leaves £20 in money (which will be due to his estate after his death, on account of residence), to keep his anniversary in the Cathedral as long as the money lasts; directing that every year, on the day of his obit, 13s. 4d., part thereof, be distributed among the Canons, Vicars, and other Ministers of the Cathedral, according to their degree and the custom of the church; also to the two clerks of the Treasury he leaves 13s. 4d.—To the parish-church of Poundstock he leaves his new Missal, and, if the parishioners are willing, 20s., to maintain his anniversary, and that of his parents, &c., for ever; if not, the Missal to be sold, and (with the 20s.) applied to pious uses. —To the Priory of St. John, in Exeter, he leaves 13s. 4d.—To the Friars Preachers there, 6s. 8d.; and weekly, "post tricennalem diem quatuor panes canonicales de residencia mea post mortem meam debendos." He leaves the like bequest to the Friars Minors of Exeter.

Executors:—Roger Bolter, Can. of Exeter; Thos. de Plymmeswode, V. in the Ch. of Bampton (Dioc. of Lichfield); Rob. Lyngham, R. of St. Mary-Major, Exeter, and John Wythyslond, V. of Heavitree; to each of whom he leaves 40s. and a silver cup with cover. Any residue, after payment of his debts and funeral expenses to be applied to pious uses, and works of charity, especially among the poor tenants of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and his own parishioners of Bigbury—for the souls of himself, Sir Wm. Bykebury, knt., his parents, &c.: but subject to the fulfilment of further instructions in a Codicil (which is not given in the Register).

Proved 8 February, 1413-14, by all the executors except Thos. de Plymmeswode; who appeared before the Bishop, separately, at Clyst, 17 February, together with John Bykebury, his surety in the sum of 100s.; the said Thomas belonging to "an alien Diocese."

XL. William Langeton, Canon of Exeter.

Dated at the Bishop's Manor of Clyst, 29 January, 1413-14. i, 322.

He commends his soul to God, His Almighty Creator; and desires to be buried in the Cathedral, either on the right, or to the left of the tomb of Bishop Stafford [erected by the Bishop in his lifetime.]

He leaves to the Cathedral his Corpus Juris Civilis, in five books, given him by Thos. Stafford, to be placed in the Library, and secured by a chain; there to remain for ever. To the Church of Wells [Wellys, MS.], near Walsingham (Dioc. of Norwich), he leaves a Missal, an Ordinal, and a copy of the Pupilla Oculi; also, a set of vestments, for priest, deacon, and subdeacon, with a cope to match—all to be bought by his executors at a cost of £10. To the Church of Rokeby (Dioc. of Coventry and Lichfield), he leaves a set of vestments for the priest only, to cost 40s.; and the like to the Churches of Warbleton [Warbylton, MS.], Bosham, and Wisborough [Wysbergh, MS.], all in the Dioc. of Chichester; and, also, to the Church of Ottery, if his executors are not asked to provide the cope required by the statutes on account of his Prebend therein. For the fabrick of the nave of the Collegiate Church of Crediton—"jam fere ad terram prostrate"—he leaves all rents, profits, &c., coming to him at the time of his death, on account of his Prebend of Prustecomb therein, over and above anything due to the said College, according to the statutes, on account of his said Prebend. To the Church of South Pool he leaves a set of vestments for the priest and a cope, to cost 66s. 8d. To the poor at Wells, 66s. 8d. ; to those at Wisborough, 20s. ; at Westbrook (his Prebend), 20s. ; at Apuldram (formerly his Prebend), 20s. ; at Warbleton, 20s. ; at South Pool, 20s. To Wm. Pole he bequeaths a silver cup with its cover, having three feet fashioned after the similitude of lions. To John Wylle, chaplain, to pray for his soul and for all the faithful departed, 20s. ; also a doublet with hood. To the chaplains, clerks, and boys of the Bishop's Chapel at Exeter, 100s. To the other members of the Bishop's household, 100s. To John Arderne a silver cup and cover, with testator's arms engraved on the top of the cover. To Margaret, wife of John Arderne, a scarlet robe, with its fur.

The residue he leaves to his executors, directing them, first, to send Wm. Portour, his godson [filiolo meo], to school for two or three years, and to apply the remainder to pious uses, for his soul.

Executors :—John Schute, V. of Paignton ; and John Arderne, Esquire.

Proved, 17 February, 1413-14, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

XLI. Joan, widow of—que fui uxor—Robert Dyrwyn.

Dated at Foleforde,[1] in the parish of Crediton, 2 September, 1391. i, 323.

She commends her soul to God, and requests to be buried in Crediton Church in the place "ubi Magister meus jacet."

To the Precentor, Canons, and other Ministers of the said church she leaves 13s. 4d. for Placebo and Dirige, Commendation, and Mass, on the day of her burial. To the Dean of Crediton, 10s., viz. 5s. of the goods of her "Master," and 5s. of her own goods; to pray for their souls. To each Vicar, 8d. ; to each Annuellar 6d. To her sister Margery she bequeaths goods worth 40s. ; to her son William her best silver cup, her best goblet (maser), and half her vessels of brass, pewter, and wood, the cups excepted. To Agnes, wife of Wm. Prous, she leaves her horse, viz. Amelere,[2] or his value in money. To each of John More's boys, living at the time of her death, 20d. To each Aquebajulus in the Church of Crediton 2d. To all her servants at the time of her death, 2s. to be distributed among them. To Agnes Rooch, 20d. To John Rooch and Agnes his wife, 20d. To Walter, Robert, and Joan Rooch, 12d. each. To Nicholas Aleyn, 12d. The residue of her estate she leaves to such poor persons as are most in need of help, and for priests willing to say Mass for her "Master" and herself.

Executors :—William, her son ; Wm. Prous ; and her sister Margery ; to each of whom she leaves 5s.

Proved, 5 April (and 18 June), 1415, before the Bishop at Clyst.

Summa bonorum—£60 and 20d.

XLII. Ralph Tregrisiow, Dean of Exeter.[3] i, 323.

He commends his soul to God and to Blessed Mary His Mother : his body to be buried in the Cathedral, should he happen to go the way of all flesh in the County of Devon [si in Comitatu Devonie humanitus mihi contingat :] but should he die in Cornwall, then either in the Church of St. Crida the Virgin [i.e. Creed], or in that of St. Kyby, Duloe. If he happened to die in any other County, his executors were to bury him in the Church of the parish where death met him, unless they had just cause for not doing so—a matter which he leaves to them.

To the fabrick of the Cathedral he bequeaths 100s. ; to that of Crediton Church 100s. ; to that of Creed—"ubi fui oriendus"—40s., to buy a store [instaurum] for the said Church ; the parishioners to undertake that prayers should be said for his soul, &c. every Sunday, for ever. He, also, leaves to Creed a silver cup (cupam) and cover, with the arms of the See (cum armis Petri et Pauli) engraved thereon.—To the fabrick of Duloe Church he leaves 100s., to buy a store for the use of the said Church, on the like conditions as to prayers for his soul. To the Vicars of the Cathedral he leaves 20s. to pray for his soul and for that of Steph. Penpel. He leaves £40 for the poor on the day of his burial, and orders that his funeral expenses shall, on no account, exceed £10. He desires to be buried within three days of his death, or on the morning of the fourth day, at latest; and, after his burial, his executors were to distribute alms, as their conscience should dictate, for his soul and that of his uncle, Step. Penpel. To Rd. Drayton he leaves ten marks, and the like sum to Benedict Caunterbery. His "Corpus Juris Civilis et Juris Canonici cum eorum Doctoribus," he leaves to clerks and scholars—"de cognacione mea, vel de cognacione predicti Magistri Stephani"—but on condition that none of them should alienate, sell, or pledge the same, but that they should always so remain; and if no such clerks could be found, then the books to were be lent to fit scholars or clerks in the county of Cornwall, for a time. To Ralph Reskemner he bequeaths his best ewer and silver basin; his best silver drinking-cup (potellum), and six of his best silver spoons; his best bed, with canopy and curtains of red materials; his best set of vestments; and six more of his best silver spoons; making a dozen in all. To Benedict Canterbery he leaves a silver cup, and cover with his arms. To Isabella, relict of James Gerwes a silver cup and his best robe with fur of vair (cum foruris de variis). To Joan de Hellond a silver cup. To Joan, wife of John Hylle, his second-best robe, also with fur of vair, and a silver cup.—To the Ch. of St. James, Tregony [de Tregonia] his large Missal; formerly the property of his said uncle, the Dean of Wells. To Ida, wife of Belion,[1] he leaves his third best robe, with fur of vair, and a silver cup. To Thos. Gvynov his small Breviary, the gift of his uncle, the Dean of Wells. To Dame Alice Reskimer ("sorori de Bokeloud"), his cousin, 20s. To the convent of Polslo, 20s. To the Canons of the Cathedral attending his funeral, 6s. 8d. each; to every Vicar so attending 40d.; to every Annuellar 20d.; and to every Secondary 12d. To each of his executors, consenting to serve, 100s. To John Canon, baker, 20s. The residue of his estate to be devoted to pious uses for the soul of testator, the above-named Stephen, and his parents and heirs, his benefactors, and all others who in any way had benefited him.

Executors:—John Mulys and James Halap; and they were charged to treat and agree with the Prior and Conv. of Merton for the Rectory of the Church of Tregony, in Cornwall, and all other their possessions near Tregony, for a certain sum of money, with a view, to buying certain possessions near Merton, in exchange for those of the said Prior and Convent near Tregony. Also, his executors were to keep his anniversary in the Cathedral for 40 years, and to pay 6d. to each Canon present at Placebo, Dirige, the Commendations and the Mass; 3d. to each Vicar; 2d. to each Annuellar; to each Secondary 1d.

Dated in testator's house in Exeter, 16 June, 1411.

Proved 26 July, 1415, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

XLIII. Walter Robert, Rector of the Principal (i.e. Pitt) Portion in the Church of Tiverton.

Dated, 12 July, 1414. i, 324.

He commends his soul to God and his body to holy sepulture.

To the Church of Northill he leaves the Breviary which he received from his "Master," William Colmpton, for the use of the R. of Northill alone, the parishioners to have no right to the same. Poor parishioners there, who owed him very small sums on account of tithes, were to be relieved from payment thereof, in part or altogether, at the discretion of his executors. To the Prior and Convent of Launceston he bequeaths 20s., to pray for him and for his benefactors. For the fabrick (or repair) of the church of Tiverton 20s. To his mother he leaves 3d. a week, so long as she survives him, pro potu recenti sibi providendo. To his sister Joan his best robe, with hood and fur; also 6 of his small silver spoons, and a silver cup[1] which she had in her possession; also a table-cloth and a towel of second best quality, and one pair of sheets; also the silver girdle which she had in keeping. To a young[2] and respectable chaplain he leaves 8 marks, to celebrate in Tiverton Church (and not elsewhere) for testator's soul, and for the souls of Rd. Wykeslond, Wm. Halyet, late R. of Roseash,[3] and John Stykerygge, and for the good estate of Wm. Colmpton, his "Master," or (if deceased) for his soul. To John Robert and his wife he leaves half a mark, and remits all the debt that they owed him; also he leaves them one pair of sheets. To Thomas Frist, of Morchard Cruwys, he bequeaths 13s. 4d. and forgives him a debt.

And whereas, a little time ago, testator brought an action at law against Stephen Tournere, and recovered from him 10 marks, and perhaps went beyond the bounds of moderation and made haste to revenge himself in the said action; and because the said Stephen is a poor man,—"although he brought a false charge against me,—and that he did so God knoweth,—nevertheless, as in the fear of God, I leave him 20s.; but, then, he must give up the rancour he nourishes towards me in his heart, and keep a decent tongue in his head for the future, a thing which he has never been accustomed to do, or, at any rate, rarely."

To Joan, his brother's daughter, he leaves a single robe with hood, at the discretion of the executors; and he gives her 40d., and remits the sum she owed him. To Richard, his brother's son, he leaves 6 marks, to keep him at school, the money to be advanced to him, as he requires it, by Walter Colle. To Walter Haydurer, chaplain, to pray for his soul, he leaves 10s. Also to John Fax half a mark; to Rd. Weryng, 20s.; and to "Little[4] Walter," his servant, 40d. To his successor in his Portion at Tiverton he bequeaths a large-sized brass pot, and one of his best dishes; also a mortar and a good iron spit, the chaldron (caldarium) which stands in the kitchen, 4 pipes and 2 hogsheads[5]—empty, and the vessels used for brewing;[6] also 6 silver spoons, and a silver cup and cover[7] in the keeping of John Fax; also, a surplice with an amice of black cloth furred with gris;[8] subject to this condition, that he personally reside on his benefice, and settle quietly any claim he may have on the executors on account of repairs at Tiverton; else he was to have none of these things.

And, whereas Thomas Hendeman owed testator 10 marks, he was willing, if he paid the executors 5 marks without giving any trouble, to remit the rest; but he was to do so within fifteen days after demand or be made to pay the whole. To Margery, his brother's daughter, he leaves half a mark. And all the the residue of his estate (except the legacies mentioned above or in a codicil), he leaves to Walter Colle, his sister's son, to be applied to pious uses, and specially in providing food and necessaries for testator's "Master," William Colmpton, as long as he lived, and to bury him decently; and to provide, if necessary, for his brother, Wm. Colle.

Executors:—The aforesaid Walter Colle; Matthew Doune; and John Whyteway, notary-publick. To Matthew Doune, for his trouble, he bequeaths all his utensils at Morchard-Cruwys, and remits the money due to him for things which the said Matthew had bought of him from time to time. To John Whyteway he leaves 20s.

Memorandum at the end of the Will:—"Isabella Payton owes me, for debts incurred by Vincent Wryght, her husband, 10s. and two marks: also six marks on her own account, and 9s. 11d., of which sums if she pay my executors the 6 marks which she borrowed of me to buy wine with, after her said husband's death, I give her up the remainder; otherwise she must pay the whole. Also, my Lord, the Earl of Devon, owes me £20 (as John Gunne well knows), but if the said Earl means to be a good Lord etc. (sit eis bonus Dominus etc.) to my executors, and not give them trouble in the execution of my Will, I remit the whole debt, as well as 5 marks which the Lady Matilda, his Countess, owes me: otherwise I hold him accountable before the Most High God.—Also, Walter Schanke owes me 6 marks, and I have a Catholicon and a Book of Brito[1] in pledge; let him pay, and the books be restored. Also he owes me 8 marks (a loan), and one mark; and I have in pledge a silver cup, now in Exeter. Also he owes, for his expenses in the case of John Jacob, I know not how much. I remit the 8 marks, the 1 mark, and the said expenses; and, over and above this, I leave him 5 marks, in recompense for a large book of Mattins, which he gave me gratis. Also I leave him the Breviary which he has in his possession. And my will is that his silver cup, which I have in Exeter, be restored to him."

Proved, 20 September, 1415, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

XLIV. William Hunden,[2] clerk, Archdeacon of Totnes, Canon of Exeter, etc.

Dated, at the Archdeacon's House, in the Close; 27 January, 1415-16. i, 324b.

He commends his soul to God, Blessed Mary and All Saints; his body to holy sepulture, where God shall please.

He leaves to poor decrepit persons and to prisoners £10, and more if necessary, at the discretion of his executors. Also, to mend the publick roads and bridges in the Archdeaconry of Totnes, 40s.; and the like amount for the same purposes in the Archdeaconry of Rochester. To three chaplains, for a year (or to one chaplain for three years, if three cannot be procured), £20, viz. 10 marks each per annum, to say Mass daily for his soul, and for John and Joeta, his parents, Thos. Opton, John Dangy, John Tayllour, Edith Foot, John Snape, and Wm. Brydbrok. To the Abbot and Convent of Lessness [Lesenes, MS.—Dioc. of Rochester], a pair of gilded ewers (weighing 10 lib. de troy 8 oz. and over—never to be sold or alienated); for the Canons there to say a collect at Mass, every day, for ever, for his soul, and to keep up his anniversary. To the Ch. of Longfield [Langefelde, MS.] in the same Diocese, a vestment of cloth of gold de luca.—To John Hunden, his brother, a bed, draped with red worstede, with curtains, and everything to match for a bedchamber; also one of his best suits, to wit a tunic (collobium), trimmed with fur of menyvere (i.e. de menu vair), with fur hood; also another tunic; also a set in green and red worstede for the hall; one best pair of sheets, 6 silver cups called Gobelettes, one bowl (maser) gilt, with cover, and 12 silver spoons parcel-gilt (deaurata in parte); also pixidem deauratam pro pulvere;[3] one of his best table-cloths, a towel, and 2 hand-napkins (sauenapys); and he gives up to the same John £20 which he had borrowed. To Margery, his sister, a pallet-bed (unum lectum palet) of white, green, and red worstede, with three curtains, complete, for her bed-chamber; 2 silver cups, on the cover of one of which was engraved—"Ihc est Amor meus;" a robe furred, hood, and a second double robe; also a tunic (collobium) with fur de Grey, a table-cloth, a towel, and 2 hand-napkins. To Wm. Scheldrake £10, to put him to school; and to his cousin Alice, dau. of John Scheldrake, £10, to enable her to marry. To his cousin Joan Park, £20; 2 silver cups, one with a cover, not engraved; 12 silver spoons; a bed of red and white worstede, with three curtains, one pair of blankettys, and 2 pairs of sheets. To the Bishop of Exeter, his "Johannes de Liniano super antiquis," in 2 volumes.[1] To the University of Cambridge, "Johannes in Novella, super antiquis et Sexto Libro, in 3 volumes, to remain for ever in the New Library there, for the use of graduates and scholars in residence. To Laurence Haukyn a book called "Pollicronicon." To Rd. Palmer his Bible. To Roger Bolter a book called "Kalendarium sive Inventarium Juris;" to Thos. Abyndon his "Legenda Sanctorum," and a book "De taxis ecclesiarum." To Rd. Penels, "Cinus[2] super Codicem," and "Lapus super Sexto Libro et Clementinis," with divers others, all in one book; also "Johannes in Addicionibus."[3] To John Swayn, a silver cup called a Bowl (bolle—a tankard), with cover, which testator had been accustomed to use in his chamber; also "Johannes de Atona,"[4] and "Constitutiones Provinciales;" and all his papers and little books—"de formis instrumentorum et aliarum materiarum diversarum de practica." To John Park, his brother, he forgives a debt of £50. He gives the use of his Breviary, quod incipit, in secundo folio, "Suscipere voluisti Domini," to John Forde, chaplain, for life, and after his death to some other poor chaplain chosen by the said John; the said Breviary to descend from priest to priest, as long as it should hold together.—To Thos. Slocok he gives the use of another Breviary, quod incipit in secundo folio 'Nos [miseros[5]]' To John Mychel a "Sextus Liber cum tribus Doctoribus" qui incipit, in secundo folio, "fuit quare hoc dixerunt." To the Cathedral he leaves his Henry Bohic in suis Distinccionibus (in two volumes), to remain for ever in the new Library,[6] for the use of the Canons and others who resort to the Library with the Canons' leave.—To the Church of Crawley (Dioc. of Lincoln), he leaves £5, for a tabernacle to be painted, or for some other ornament, for the image of St. Firmin, patron of the Church. To the Church of Hadstoke (Dioc. of London), his vestment de panno aureo de Cyper. To the Church of Rokyslegh (Dioc. of Rochester), a vestment de Bordalysaunder for ferial days. To John Hunden, his brother, a Missal, beginning on the 2nd folio, "ad principale altare;" also 2 silver ewers, engraved with images of Peter and Paul; two silver lavers, a chalice gilt, two silver jugs (urciolos), a pax silvered, a vessel for salt, and a bell gilded, a set of green hangings for an altar, and a vestment to match; also two towels for use at the same altar. To Nich. Hille he remits 26s. 8d., and leaves him 40s. To Rd. Godeman, 40s. To Thos. Lobbe 40s. To Wm. Dygher 40s. To Thos. Chesterton 20s. To Janyn de coquina 6s. 8d. To his brother John all his lands, tenements, &c., in the County of Suffolk, as by hereditary right and by no other title, for life; to revert afterwards to Wm. Scheldrake, his cousin, and his issue; failing which, to John Scheldrake, his brother, and his heirs; failing whom to his next-of-kin in perpetuity. If his said brother, in contempt of his Will, should sell the property, he was to forfeit all the above-mentioned legacies: neither was he to have them till he had given at least the security of his oath not to alienate the said property. The executors were to sell all his lands, etc., in "Tyrtyscleve," in the County of Kent, the proceeds to be paid to Joan Park, his cousin, for a marriage portion. To Wm. Barton and his successors, Archdeacons of Totnes, he leaves omnia lecta de tabulis ac formulas tabulas pro vestimentis conservandis in eisdem, that may be found in any chambers in the Archdeacon's house in Exeter; also, tabulam principalem secundariam cum trestallis et scabellis omnibus in eadem aula existentibus cum uno novo scryne et copborde erected therein; also the tables, etc., used in the buttery, and all tables and trestles in the kitchen; also, all the timber prepared for the construction of the hall-roof on the garden side. But the said Wm. Barton and his successors were not to alienate any of these things: and the roof was to be put up within a reasonable number of years, or the executors were to sell the whole, and apply the money to pious uses. The residue he bequeaths to his brother John, Rd. Penels, John Swayn and John Mychel, chaplain, to be used for the good of his soul; and he appoints them his executors.

XLV.—Hugh de Hyckelyng, Precentor of Exeter.

Dated in the Precentor's Manse in the Close, 8 August, 1415. i, 325b.

He commends his soul to God, his Creator and Redeemer; his body to be buried in the Cathedral, near the altar of the Chantry of Thomas [Brantingham] the late Bishop. To the fabrick of the Cathedral he leaves 100s. As to his funeral rites, he desires everything to be done with due regard to the honour of the Church, but without any herse (absque hercia), or any general feasting save only for the Canons and Ministers of the Cathedral taking part in the ceremonies; avoiding excessive expenses, que magis tendunt ad pompam mundi quam ad salutem anime. To every Canon present at his funeral he leaves 40d.; to every Vicar 20d.; to every Annuellar 12d.; to every Secondary 6d.; to every Chorister 4d. The Canons present in die tricennali, at Placebo and Dirige, Commendation and Mass, were to have 20d. each; the Vicars 12d.; the Annuellars, 8d.; the Secondaries, 4d.; the Choristers, 3d. He leaves £27 to maintain his obit in the Cathedral for 20 years from his burial, viz., 27s. on each day of his obits in the 20 years, according to the use of the said Cathedral; each Canon to receive at least, 4d., if present at Placebo and Dirige, and the same for Commendation and Mass; the Vicars and Annuellars, 2d. each; and each Secondary and Chorister 1d. The bellringers to be paid according to the custom of the said Church. If any part of the 27s. were not spent, the money was to be added to the fund. He leaves for distribution on each of these days, among poor, lame, and infirm people, unable to work, 5s. Also £16 for three worthy priests, to say Mass for his soul, and for his parents, friends, etc., in the Cathedral Church, at the altar of the tomb of Thos. Brantingham, the late Bp., for the year immediately following testator's death; each to receive eight marks; and also 13s. 4d. to provide a light, and wine and bread, during the year. Moreover each of these priests was to say Placebo, Dirige, and the Commendations daily throughout the year. He leaves also, 40s., for 16 trentals, to be said immediately after his death. To the fabrick of the Colleg. Ch. of Glasney (where he had been Canon), he leaves 40s. To each Vicar and Annuellar in the Cathedral, taking part in his exequies on the day of his burial, 6s. 8d., to pray for his soul, etc., specially, for a year after his death, every day, when they say Mass and use other prayers and suffrages. To the Friars Minors of Exeter, the Friars Preachers there, and the Hosp. of St. John, 20s. to each; and to the poor infirm folk of St. Mary Magd., near Exeter, 13s. 4d. To John Boterel, chaplain, he bequeaths £6 13s. 4d., a large Breviary and an Ordinal. To the Ch. of Crediton 20s. for his obit there, within a month of his death. The rest of his goods his executors were to dispose of, for the good of his soul, among the parishioners of Paignton, Chudleigh, and Saint Mary Church, and other poor persons, especially parishioners and tenants of the Dean and Chapter.

His executors desiring to acquire any of his goods, at a just value, to have preference over outsiders, and each who consented to act, 13s. 4d. for his trouble.

Executors: Laurence Haukyn, clerk; Henry Foleford; Rob. Lyngham, clerk; Rd. Skynner, clerk; Rob. Dunnyng, clerk; and Rob. Hyckelyng, Esquire.

If any of the legatees mentioned in this Will, or in the Codicil thereto, should resort to litigation, their legacies to be forfeited. All the legatees, on receipt of their said legacies, to give the executors full discharge. The executors were on no account to lend any portion of the testator's goods to anyone, but to distribute the same immediately.

The Codicil, dated 8 August, 1415 :— Testator's best robe of scarlet cloth, or another in good condition, with all its fur, to be sold, and the money spent in purchasing a comely vestment for the Lady-Chapel in the Cathedral, to remain therein while it lasts. To Alice, his sister, he leaves £6 13s. 4d. To John de Stapulforde, his nephew, 100s. To Rob. de Hyckelyng, his cousin (cognato), 40s., a bed, and the cup of silver gilt which testator bought of Robert's mother, together with its cover. To John, son of Wm. Hickelyng, for a marriage portion, £26 13s. 4d. To his servant John Stapuldon (after repaying the 40s. which he owes) £13 6s. 8d. To his servant, Wm. Stokys, £6 13s. 4d., and two oxen. He desires his executors to return (paying all expenses) to the Prior and Convent of Haltemprice [Hautemprys MS.], Dioc. of Ebor. two books which they lent him in his youth,[1] to wit Digestum Vetus and Inforciatum: he leaves them 40s., to pray for his soul. To his servant, Rob. Weryng, 20s., an ox, and 20 sheep, then at Ugbrooke. To his servant, John Weryng, an ox and 20s. To Rd. Skynner, chaplain, 100s., a book called Pars oculi, and a robe trimmed with fur; that he may remember him in his prayers; also, a Breviary. To Wm. Broun, V. of Sidbury, 13s. 4d. He bequeaths some tapestry (novum doser meum de opere tappesterie), for the High Altar of the Cathedral: and two side-hangings (costres) to match, for the Lady-Chapel. To his poor tenants, et nativis pauperibus at Paignton he leaves £3 6s. 8d., to pray for him; and 60s. to his poor parishioners there; the same at Chudleigh. To Edw. Galbrygg, his servant, 40s.: to John Harry, another servant, 26s. 8d.; to Rob. Sutton, another, 26s. 8d.; to John Chamberleyn, another, 20s. To Rd. Sterlyng, his succentor, 40s. over and above his fees. To Hugh, son of Rob. Hyckelyng, his godson, £10. To John West, his secondary, 20s. To Benedict, his cup-bearer (servienti pincerne), 20s. To Walter, cousin of John Boterell, 20s. To Thos. Dyrell, his chorister, 20s.[2] To the Prioress and Nuns of Polslo, for his soul, 40s. To Rob. Lyngham, R. of St. Mary-Major, Exeter, his new Psalter.

Proved, in the parish-church of St. Leonards without the South Gate, 28 March, 1416, before Roger Bolter, Can. of Exeter, the Bishop's Commissary. Sealed, at Clyst, 30 March. The inventory was produced, at Clyst, 6 April.

Summa Bonorum, £334 19s. 10d.

XLVI. Thos. Barton, Can. of Exeter, R. of Ilfracombe, etc.

Dated, at Exeter, 27 June, 1415. i, 327.

He commends his soul to God, His Mother the Glorious Virgin Mary, and All Saints; his body to holy sepulture in the Cathedral, near the tomb or oratory of Thomas [Brantingham] the late Bishop, on its south side, under a marble slab. One half of the Vicars, Annuellars, Secondaries and Choristers to celebrate Placebo and Dirige, daily, in turns, while his body lay at his house; each Vicar and Annuellar to receive 2d., each Secondary 1d., each chorister a halfpenny. Two wax lights, each weighing three pounds, to burn at his head and feet, while his body remained in the choir. Sixteen poor men, clothed in black cloth or russet, to carry four torches, each of 7 or 8 pounds of wax, and 7 tapers, each weighing 2 pounds of wax. And twelve poor persons, wearing black cloth, were to carry 12 wax-lights, not burning, each weighing 1 pound, for the 12 Altars in the Church, to be lighted on the said altars at the time of his exequies. Also 20 torches, each weighing about 7 or 8 pounds, were to be provided for 20 churches, or chapels-in-charge, in Exeter and the suburbs, to be lighted daily at the elevation of Christ's Body, while they lasted; and every clerk belonging to the said churches and chapels, vested in his surplice, was to carry a lighted torch before the corpse, from testator's house, and through the midst of the town, to the Broad Gate of the Close, and from thence to carry it, extinguished, each to his own church, for rendering this service. His funeral expenses to be regulated by the executors, at their discretion; but no Canon or citizen was to be invited except such as had actually to assist at the service: and 200 poor persons were to be fed, the same day, in a suitable manner, on baked meats and roast (de coctis et assatis) with spiced drink (cum potu subtili), not more than enough for poor men of that sort; lest they should gorge themselves. His Ordinale, according to the use of Sarum, and his large Breviary, bought of the executors of the late Bishop, to be chained with iron chains to the table to which the Catholicon, and Lira Super Quatuor Evangelistas are chained: the clergy generally[1] to have all reasonable access thereto. His exequies to be celebrated in the choir; each Canon present to have 2s., each Vicar 12d., each Annuellar 6d., each Secondary 4d., each Chorister 2d., and the same on the 30th day with payments to about the same amounts; also in the Churches of Crediton and Ottery; in St. Mary-Major, by the clergy of the City; and in the Priory Churches of St. Nicholas, St. John, Cowick, &c., with like payment in each case. On the day before his funeral, or on the day itself, there was to be a general distribution of alms to beggars and indigent people—1d. to each; but to the decrepit, the blind, and the helpless, unable to make a living, in Exeter, Crediton and Ilfracombe [Ilford, MS.], 4d. each. His exequies were to be kept in Ilfracombe Ch., on some convenient day after his funeral, and 40s. distributed among poor parishioners. Also, he makes provision for the celebration thereof for an octave after his death, by the Fellows of the Hall in Oxford called "Stapyldon Halle" and they were to divide 40s. among them; those that were priests to say Mass, the others the Psalter. The Friars-Preachers of Exeter were to keep his anniversary for a year, and to receive 5 marks. A fit priest was to say Mass in Ilfracombe Ch., after his death, for 7 years. Another priest was to celebrate, and pray, at Bishop Brantingham's altar, for 7 years, for testator's soul and the Bishop's, and for all their benefactors. The sum of £26 13s. 4d., English money (due after his death on account of residence), to be placed in safe keeping in the Treasury, for distribution, year by year amongst those present at his obit. And the sum of £20, in gold, was to be deposited in the Archives of the Church of Crediton, to maintain the late Bishop's anniversary, and his own. To the Priory of Cornworthy, on account of its extreme poverty (pauperima domus), he leaves 20s., each nun to have 12d. to celebrate his exequies, and every priest there 8d.; the rest to go to the nuns in common.

For the construction of a new window, the raising of the walls,[2] and for timber for the roof of the north transept (gabuli borealis) of Crediton Church, in which John Sully, knt., lies, he leaves £20, if other Canons, or the parishioners, are willing to contribute to the same, so that it may be completed to correspond with the other transept; else, the money was to be spent about the High Altar, to enclose the presbytery and the walls with columns in comely fashion, and to provide 2 small tablets of alabaster, decently painted, for the two small side-altars in the choir (pro altaribus parvis in choro collateralibus). He leaves 100s. for the construction of a bridge adjoining the mill called "New Mill" [Nyewemylle, MS.], near Crediton, with 2 arches of stone, if the inhabitants are willing to contribute, and complete the work within a year; else the money is to be given to the poor, or laid out on the roads, where most wanted. Also, he leaves £10 towards rebuilding the bridge at Thorverton, with arches of stone, if the inhabitants set about the work in earnest within a year, and persevere with it; otherwise the money to be devoted to pious purposes. To each of his executors he leaves 40s., besides their legacies and expenses. The residue, whether in possession or owing, to be expended on works of piety, or according to the directions in a Codicil.

Executors :—Rd. Gabryell, Rd. Penels, John More, John Wyddyslond, and John Cutvyn.

Witnesses :—Wm. Kelwa, notary-publick ; John Cowyk, R. of Pyworthy ; Wm. Fraunceys ; Geoffrey Langdon ; Roger Schaplegh ; Rob. Rydon ; Rd. Wotton ; and others.

Codicil :—To Laurence Hawkyn, he leaves a pair of rosaries, etc. (unum par oraculorum nigrorum cum gaudiis de auro, et anulum aureum cum signaculo vertibili de petra blodia ex parte una, et aquila cum duobus capitibus ex altera, et botellum de argento semiplenum de balsamo puro). To Rd. Gabryell, besides a girdle already given to him, he leaves his purse, called a Gipsier, and a ring of silver-gilt. To Rd. Penels he leaves his girdle of black silk, with buckle and ornaments of silver gilt, a baslard, et unum par oraculorum de Ambre with a gilt cross, and a buckle with an image of St. Katherine. To John More his large bed, de rubio Werstede, videlicet coopertorium tapetis cum dimidia celatura et 3 Ridellis ; also, his portiforium plenarium according to the use of Sarum (on fol. ii, Veni, Domine), directing him to give it, when about to die, to a worthy priest, who will use it and hand it on to another ; and so on as long as it lasts. To John Duffelde a small round goblet (masser) and a silver cup worth about 30s. To Elias Stoke his overcoat (supertunicam) of green cloth, with a cloak and hood of green Tartaryn. To Rd. Mark an overcoat with hood de horegrene ; and a book of sermons, bound in red leather (already in his possession), subject to the same conditions as the other books. To John Mathew, V. of Broadclyst, a pamphlet (pamfilium), of the late Bishop's, entitled Lucidarium, with sermons and other good treatises and discourses ; that he may pray for the Bishop's soul. To Thos. Baker, R. of Kentisbury, his bed de blodio worstede cum tapete, dimidia celatura de odium,[1] et iij^bus^ Ridellis de blodio carde[2] ; he was also to have some jewel of silver if he were diligent in getting in the money owed to testator at Ilfracombe. To John Wolston a silver cup (peciam) and cover, worth about 26s. 8d. To John Cutvyne a long scarlet robe filudatum cum una furrura grisia de Scache: (in check fashion ?), and a small book called "Raymond." To John Wydeslond, V. of Heavitree, unum supertunicam de nigro blodio, furratam de bise, cum capicio duplicato de eadem ; also a small goblet (maser), black, bound with silver and gilt. To Wm. Baker (who was with the Bishop of Bath), a silver cup, not engraved, worth about 20s. To John Holond a cloak of violet (clamidem de violet) without fur, and an overcoat of the larger size, with hood to match. To John Cowyk, some of his utensils at Ilfracombe, viz., 2 iron spits, 2 ranges (*racke*ꝯ) of iron, 2 brass pots, one brass chaldron (cacabum), one of his better dishes, the cooking vessels of tin, and a table-cloth of Parisian work ; also a Breviary, once the property of Walter de Redeness, on the same conditions as the other books. To Thos. Horelock, his priest at Ilfracombe, he leaves other of his utensils there, to the value of 26s. 8d., a proper valuation having first been made. To John Copleston, junior, he bequeaths his long silver-gilt cup, standing on 3 lions, with a cover enamelled on the knob (cum cooperculo aymelato in pomello), which had been bequeathed to testator by Alexander Merle ; hoping that he would stand by his executors, and assist and protect them in every way in his power. To John Wille, a poor clerk, 40s., if he continue in the schools at Oxford. To Geoffrey Langdon 66s. 8d. To John Wyke, certain utensils worth 20s. To Elias Bear the cup of maser-wood, bound with silver, not already bequeathed, and 20s., or the value thereof. To the anchorite enclosed at St. Leonard's a robe of black cloth or russet, and 20s. towards his maintenance. His servants, at the time of his death, to be continued in their service for 30 days, and rewarded according to length of service and diligence in work, at the discretion of the executors. If Rd. Gabriell remained in testator's house, or elsewhere within the Close, he was to have the tapestry embroidered with figures of men (aulam [i. q. aulaeum] cubrowdeatam cum hominibus), which belonged to the late Bishop : also testator's mirror,[3] and his new table ; but the money left him in the Will testator withdraws, as he does not need money. All his personal attire (vestimenta mea pro corpore), except his garments of scarlet cloth, of great value and trimmed with fur, testator bequeaths to respectable and poor Rectors, Vicars, and priests, in the city of Exeter and the neighbourhood, especially those belonging to St. Gabriel's Chapel at Clyst. To the Hosp. of St. John Baptist, Exeter, he leaves 20 marks for the support of one priest, to say mass for two years, in their Church, if it please them, for the souls of the late Bp. Brantingham, Robert his brother, and Henry Blakeburne. To St Mary's Chapel at Crediton he leaves 2 curtains (ridelli) and a frontal of crimson silk (frontale de rubio et blodio tartarin) with the Crucifix and Mary and John embroidered thereon. He orders a chasuble to be made of cloth of gold, red, cum orfreis de precioso auro,[1] vellnet, et aliis peciis remanentibus in Capella mea, and given to the Church of Bampton : if any materials were left they were to be made into receptacles for corporals (repositoria pro corporalibus), and given, by way of charity, to poor churches. In like manner towels, made of different kinds of materials, were to be given to the poorer Churches appropriated to the Dean and Chapter of Exeter. To Rd. Reve, R. of Roseash, [Esse Ravff, MS.], he leaves an overcoat and hood, which he bought of the wife of John Schapplegh ; and to J. Wigwar his larger overcoat with hood to match. All his coverlets (lodices) or blankets, and sheets, (linthiamina usitata de canvass), at Exeter or at Ilfracombe, he gives to the decrepit and the bedridden, to prisoners, and to infirm and poor persons not remembered in his Will. To the altar of St. Michael in the Church of Crediton he leaves his alabaster tablet, beautifully painted ; unless the parishioners of Ilfracombe are willing to contribute 40s., over and above the sums in the hands of Thos. Baker, collected from the executors of persons buried in the nave of their Church. To Thos. Barnard, his godson, (filio meo levato de sacro fonte) he leaves 26s. 8d., if he continue to attend school. His larger silver-gilt chalice, and his sheets de panno de Reynes, he orders to be sold, and the money laid out for the repose of the soul of Wm. Swynflete, his cousin. The aforementioned John Cowyk to have 2 round cups of silver, called bowls (bollys), a purse (gipcier), a silver ring, and 6 small silver spoons. None of his goods to be delivered up, lent, or alienated in any way whatsoever, till they had been properly valued, and the price paid to the executors. All legacies to lapse unless the legatees survived him. His executors might purchase any articles at a fair and duly attested price. He expresses an anxious wish that the gold deposited with the Prior of St. John Baptist, Exeter, and the proceeds of the sale of his goods and the recovery of debts, be distributed among the parishes of Devon and Cornwâll, at the rate of 6s. 8d. each, any residue to be reserved for priests at Exeter, Oxford, and Ilfracombe willing to say Mass for the souls of his benefactors ; for poor clerks of Devonshire studying at Exeter (Exonie scolatizantibus) ; and for other works of piety. Directions are given for distributing among the Canons, &c., of the Cathedral present at his anniversary the forty marks laid up for that purpose in the Cathedral Treasury ; and for the distribution of the £20 laid up in the Archives at Crediton for the anniversaries of Bishop Brantingham and of testator. An iron-bound chest of the late Bishop's, in the keeping of the Precentor, to be given up to the Cathedral-Treasury, and used for the safe keeping of moneys devoted to the obits of Canons, etc. ; and another similar chest, and an iron coffer, (cathedra [i.e. 'arca']) in the possession of testator, to be delivered over to the Church of Crediton. He leaves to Glasney some tapestry of the late Bishop's, worked with Katherine's wheels and swans (tapetum Domini defuncti cum rotis Katerine et cingnis contextum), to be spread before the High Altar on the greater Festivals; the late Bishop's parysii [the "pavise" was a large shield], and his brass gun to be handed over to the Cathedral Treasury. The missal, chalice, and other 'ornaments,' which belonged to Henry Blakburne, to be sold for the said Henry's soul, as also ij salices argentee cum procellis deauratis.[2]

XLVII.—John Govys, R. of Holy Trinity, Exeter ; a Vicar in the Cathedral Church.

Dated 31 March, 1416. i, 328b.

He commends his soul to Almighty God, his Creator, Who redeemed it with His precious blood ; his body to holy sepulture in the Cathedral cemetery. A hundred Masses were to be said for his soul within two days after his death. To the Canons he leaves 12d. each, to the Vicars 10d., to the Annuellars 8d., to the secondaries 4d., to the choristers 2d., if present at his obit. To each Rector in the city, present in his surplice and preceding his corpse to the Cathedral, 6d. ; to every other priest present, 4d. To the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. John within the East-gate, 6s. 8d. ; to the poor boys serving God there, 12d., and the same to the poor men. To the Friars Preachers of Exeter 6s. 8d. ; the same to the Friars Minors. All were to wear surplices at his exequies, and to say the service simultaneously, finishing it at about the same time; proceeding and afterwards, in their habits and surplices, before his corpse, to the Cathedral, devoutly chanting.

To Robert Lyngham, R. of St. Mary Major, he bequeaths his small cup, bound with silver, and gilt, called lytelmaser, together with its cover. To Wm. Brown, V. of Sidbury, his best cup of maple silver-bound, with its cover, and 6s 8d.—For the fabrick of the Cathedral Church 6s. 8d. To John Parke 6s. 8d. To Matth. Stoke 3s. 4d. To John Parfay 20d. To Rob. Widelegh 20d. To Rd. Skynnere 20d. To the Wardens of Holy Trinity Church all that tenement, with garden adjacent thereto, situate at the South gate of the city of Exeter, near the said Church, and lately granted to testator by the Mayor and Community of Exeter for a fixed term of years (as by Indenture appeared) ; to have and to hold from the date of his death to the end of the said term, on condition that the said Wardens and their successors should maintain his anniversary in the said Church, year by year, throughout the term, employing the Rector and clerk of the said Church, and four others, annuellar priests, belonging to the city, and paying the said Rector 4d., the clerk 2d., and the other priests 2d. each, for their services ; also 12d. for the light, and for bread, etc., 2s.; taking 6d. for their trouble in the matter. Any residue to be used for the advantage of the said Church. To John Lydeford and Alice his wife he leaves 6s. 8d. To Juliana, wife of John Forchull, 6s. 8d. All his parishioners, old as well as young, to be feasted on the day of his burial, and pray for his soul. Those who were nursing him in his sickness were to be remunerated well and not grudgingly, according to their deserts. Thos. Freman, chaplain, was to receive 106s. 8d. annually, from an annual rent of eight pounds granted to testator by the Warden and College of Vicars-choral of Exeter, to say Mass for his soul, &c. ; he was to be paid from that source as long as it lasted ; and 4 marks were to be laid out for testator's soul, to the best of his executors' discretion: if the said Thomas died or was promoted before the termination of this payment, some other priest was to take his place. To Thos. Porteworthy he leaves 20d. To each executor 13s. 8d. for his trouble. The residue to be distributed, for the good of his soul, etc., among poor priests and clerks and other needy persons as soon after his death as possible.

Executors :—Wm. Broun, V. of Sidbury ; and Thos. Freman, chaplain.

All Saints, desiring to be buried in the Cathedral beside of the tomb of Wm. Trevellys, late Treasurer, at the foot of his grave, at the entrance to the choir on the north side, if he should happen to die in the County of Devon, or in the parts adjacent thereto: if otherwise, then in the Church of the parish where he might die, or other suitable place at the discretion of his executors.

To his mother, Matilda, he leaves a silver cup, plain, with cover, worth 38s. by weight, and, towards her maintenance, 2 marks per annum, in quarterly payments as long as she lived; if this sum, in addition to the rents and properties which she enjoyed in her own right, did not suffice, the executors were to give her as much of the residue of his estate as might be necessary. To the Hosp. of St. John, Exeter, he leaves 20s., and the same to the Friars Preachers and the Friars Minors. To the lepers ('leprosariis' in Hospitali ... habitantibus) of St. Mary Magdalene's Hospital 6s. 8d. All these were to pray for his soul. Poor people attending his funeral and asking alms were to have 1d. each; every Canon of the Cathedral taking part in the service, 40d. There was to be no stated feast on the occasion, except for the officiating Ministers and testator's relations and friends; also for the poor, decrepit, and infirm. To the Custos and Vicars Choral he leaves 40s., to pray for his soul, &c. With the residue his executors were to pay his debts, and apply the balance to pious purposes, according to instructions which he had given them; and—he adds significantly—"prout et sicut varietates temporum secundum totam fortune et vires facultatum mearum postulabunt et mortis sufficient in tempore."

To John Mokeworthy, of Holsworthy, 6s. 8d., a coat with hood, and a young bullock. To John Paulyn, junior, 5s. a coat with hood, and a cow. To Janinus (Item lego Janino), 40d. To Walter Judde 40d. and a heifer. To Roger Godman a young bullock three years old. To John Rytherdon, John Cotell, Hamon Southecomb, Thos. atte Nywecourte, and John Worthem, all the debt they owed testator for wheat bought of him. To Walter Hakker a young bullock. To Richd. Vyell 20d. To John Fayreby 20d. To Walter Prynsy, and his wife, 40d. To Rob. Oby 20d. To John Judde 40d. and a riding-coat. To Alice Jul a young bullock. To Nich. Rendy a cow. To Rob. Denyas a young bullock. To the prisoners (prisonibus) in the Bishop's gaol 5s. To the prisoners in the King's gaol 10s. To the chaplain of the lepers at Crediton 6s. 8d. To Margaret Welywort 40d. To Joan, his wife he bequeaths all his gold rings, and (for her lifetime) his best Missal and chalice, with the vestments, cruets (jiolis), and bell; to go after her death to Holsworthy Ch., that the parishioners might maintain their obits and those of their parents, and keep their names on the Roll of Intercessions for every Sunday in the year. Also, all his interest in his house at Exeter, called "Kellyysynne," with remainder to John Copleston junior, if she died before the determination thereof; also all his growing corn (blada mea) and hay for the year at Symston Lake and Wallen. To John Hacche 20s. and Tercios meos de Lege, formerly the property of John Wynkankton; also his best bow. To Robert [Pytman], Parson (persone) of the Church of Hollacombe, for tithes forgotten, 40d. To Walter Colyn a bullock. Four priests were to be found, to say Mass, at Holsworthy, for his soul, for two years after his death. To Roger Horne he leaves 3 sheep. To John Hond, chaplain, his worsted coat. To Thos. Lyle a heifer. To John Holand, Parson (persone) of St. Pancras' Ch., on account of oblations forgotten, 40d. To the store of St. Pancras' Ch., 40d. Any residue to be devoted to works of piety.

Executors:—John Grymston, Parson (personam) of Holsworthy; Joan, testator's wife; John Copleston, junior; Thos. Noreys; and Robert atte Wode; each to receive 40s. for his trouble.

Proved 24 August, 1418, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

Summa bonorum:—£419 5s. 4d.

LVI.—Richard Penels, Canon of Exeter.

Dated in the Close, Exeter, 28 December, 1418. i, 332b.

He commends his soul to the Most High and Undivided Trinity—Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, beseeching the Son of the Most Glorious Virgin Mary that, even as with His Precious Blood He redeemed it on the Altar of the Cross, so He would vouchsafe to keep, and defend, and save it from every spirit of evil. He desires that his body may be buried in the Cathedral; and to every Canon present on the occasion he leaves 20d.; to every Vicar 12d.; to every Annuellar 8d.; to every Secondary 6d.; to every Chorister 3d. For the Nave of Crediton Ch. he leaves £20; for the bridge at Chudleigh, 100s., on condition that the piers are built of stone; and for the new campanile of the Church of Moreton [Hampstead] 100s. His poor parishioners there to have 100s. to pray for his soul. Should the Bishop confer testator's Prebend of Crydy on John Schute, the said John was to have an antient chalice, and a small brass pot, which testator had, himself, received by the gift of John Sutton. To every poor priest in the Hospital of St. Gabriel at Clyst he leaves a coat. Forty marks to be divided among blind, lame, infirm, and poor persons in the Archdeaconry of Totnes, and that with all possible speed, employing trusty persons at testator's cost; he appropriates two marks thereof to the poor of Brixham. To the executors of Rd. Holrygge, late V. of Brixham 20s, for tithes due to them. Immediately after his death a thousand Masses to be said for his soul, &c., as quickly as possible, with the Collect Deus Cui proprium major. To Henry Webber 14 marks, to say Mass for his soul, (if he be promoted to the priesthood within the three terms of the year next after testator's death), and 20s. for the expenses of his Ordination; also, "Sextum meum Decretalium cum uno Doctore; Innocencium meum; et antiquiora mea Decreta;" also, the use of his Breviary, which was not to be alienated, but bequeathed to some poor priest, who would pass it on in like manner. To Rich. Chichestre his Digestum vetus, a small volume, et Codicem meum (and, as the said "Codex" [Justinian] was of small value, his executors were to buy another, suitable for the use of a scholar); also, "Decretales meos;" and he left him 100s., so that for three years he might have five nobles a year, and more if the executors saw fit and he continued in the schools. To his elder brother, Nicholas, testator leaves his second-best silver cup with the cover, the better of his two brass pots, and a dozen of his tin vessels. To his brother Thomas his third cup with its cover, and the 20s. which he owed. To his sister Joan his best cup and cover, 6 silver spoons, his red bed, with its curtains, —the last that he bought,—also 2 blankets, a pair of sheets (of those in good condition), a mattrass, and a canevas; also, five marks in money, and two small pots, his new ones of brass. To Rd. Marke, for tithes forgotten, and to pray for his soul, 13s. 4d. To Helias Stoke and Rob. Lyngham, 6s. 8d. each, to pray for his soul. To the Prior, &c., of the Hosp. of St. John, 13s. 4d. To the lepers (leprosariis) of St. Mary Magd. 6s. 8d.; to the poor boys of the Hosp. of St. John 6s. 8d. To John Sarger, chaplain, 3s. 4d. To Ralph, cousin of Rd. Mark, Thos. Hogge and John Cabyn, 3s. 4d. each. To the Prioress of Cornworthy two marks, viz., 13s. 4d. for herself, and 13s. 4d. among the nuns. To the R. of the Chapel of the Blessed Mary of Slapton 6s. 8d., and to the Brethren there 13s. 4d. among them, according to their rank. To John Hoper, chaplain, 40s., and the coat which testator bought against next Christmas—to pray for his soul. To John Seymere, chaplain, 13s. 4d. To John Whyteway 26s. 8d. To John Lydeford and his wife 6s. 8d. To Andrew Taylour 3s. 4d. To John Schute his silver salt-cellar and cover. To Thos., his Vicar-Choral, his cope (capam). To Roger Bolter his Liber Decretorum (if he consented to be overseer to his estate and to assist his executors.) To Wm. Trebel 6 silver spoons and a book called "Jon Aton," and his executors were not to demand the money that was between them, but the said William was to give it, himself, to the poor. To John Hytte, junior, and Wm. Dygher, he leaves 3s. 4d. each. To each boy of the Bishop's Chapel 12d. To John Befe the coat and hood which testator had of the livery of the Prior of Plympton (quem habui, isto anno, de liberata Prioris Plymptonie) and 6s. 8d. To John Bele his brown riding coat (jupam equitalem brunei coloris). To William, senior in the Bishop's kitchen 6s. 8d.

Executors:—His brother William (with 40s. and his two old silver cups, worth by weight 40s., for his trouble), and John Lane (to whom he leaves four marks.)

Proved, 23 January, 1418-19, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

LVII.—Laurence Haukyn, Precentor of the Cathedral, &c.

Dated at the Bishop's Manor of Clyst, 6 April, 1418. i, 333.

He commends his soul to his Creator, Who redeemed it with His Precious Blood; his body to sacred sepulture where God might please, i.e. near the place where he chanced to die; if in the Diocese, then in the midst of the Choir at Crediton, in the space between the choir-stalls; but if beyond the Diocese, as his executors, or any one of them, being present there, might determine, or as his friends should arrange. His funeral expenses were not, through worldly vain-glory, to exceed the bounds of moderation.

To his well-beloved lord, Edmund, Bishop of Exeter, he leaves his white satin vestment with corporal to match, and all the furniture of the altar, to wit 2 frontals, and 2 curtains of silk (Tartaryn), red and white, 2 consecrated towels of white linen: also a tablet (Tabelletam) of gold with the image of St. Peter. To Roger Bolter a silver cup called le Brendelle Kow (a legacy from Wm. Broun)[1]; also his best silver salt-cellar and cover. To Rd. Palmer an Antiphonar, quod incipit in secundo folio, "Periculis;" to be used by himself as long he pleased, and then handed on to other worthy priests, as long as it lasted; also a silver cup and cover—*cum cooperculo batere*ʒ cum stellis et aymelato cum Ꝑ. & Ꝓ. in summitate cooperculi; also a pair of rosaries of coral (par precularum de Coraill), with a gold ring enamelled all round with divers images (cum uno anulo circum diversis ymaginibus aymelato). To Rd. More, his nephew, a silver cup, the cover engraved with a vine; his best mazer;[1] 12 of his best silver spoons; his Legenda Aurea, que incipit in secundo folio, "De Festivitate," to use till his death, the book to be passed on to other worthy priests, as long as it lasted; and he was to pray for the soul of John Clive[2] and for testator. To Sir Edw. Courtenay, knight, eldest son of the Earl of Devon, he leaves six silver goblets, with covers. To John Shute a Breviary, quod incipit in secundo folio "peccato nos custodire;" to use for life, and pass on as in the other cases; also a great silver bowl (bolle) and cover, with a silver pix (cum una pixide vocata Povder Box). To John Worthyn a silver cup and cover, with Benedictus Deus inscribed round the latter, and 12 of his second-best silver spoons. To John Arderne, Esquire, 100s. To John Wolston, clerk, 100s. His executors were to remunerate his servants at their discretion, according to grade and length of service, and the residue was to be disposed of for pious purposes as they should see fit.

Executors:—John Shute, clerk; John Arderne, Esquire, and John Wolston, clerk: with Roger Bolter and Rd. Palmer as Overseers.

Proved 3 February, 1418-19, before the Bishop at Clyst.

LVIII.—Thomas Clyfford, Canon of Exeter.

Dated on the Sunday next after the F. of St. Lucy the Virgin, i.e. 18 December 1418. i, 333b.

He commends his soul to Almighty God; his body to be buried in the Cathedral. To St. Andrew's, Stokeinteignhead, he leaves a set of vestments of red velvet (felwet). To Rd. Clyfford a silver cup, with a cover having a small bolle on the top. To Matth. Stoke a silver cup, with a knop (knappe.) To John Clyfford, his brother, the fellow to the same (sociam ejusdem pecii.) To Wm. Clyfford, his brother, 20s. To Alice Lavoy a silver salt-cellar and cover; his best brass pot; and an iron spit (broche de ferro.) To Alice Clyfford, his sister, his best robe; to the aforesaid Alice Lavoy, his second-best; and to Isabella Bremely, his third and fourth. To Gunneta Gybbys, his fifth. To Rob. Parker, 40d. To Rd. Holever, 6s. 8d. To Rd. Marke, 6s. 8d. To the Sub-Dean of Exeter, 6s. 8d. To Wm. Bere, 2s. To Thos. Clyfford, his second brass pot. To John Stoke, 5s. The residue, after paying his debts, to be devoted to pious uses.

Executors:—John Clyfford, his brother; and Matthew Stoke.

Proved 28 February, 1418-19, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

LIX.—Sir Richard Champernoun, Knight.

Dated 26 February, 1418-19. i, 333b.

He commends his soul to God, and his body to sacred sepulture in his parish-church of Dodbrooke, by the side of the body of Katherine, his wife.

To his son Richard he leaves a plough, with eight oxen and all appurtenances thereof in Dodbrooke, and the half of all his sheep on the said Manor; also, a bed, one of his best silver cups, with cover, twelve of his best spoons, and a fourth part of his pots, dishes, and all his other utensils in London, stored in a certain cask or casks (utensilium Londonie in quadam pipa sive in pipis existencium.) To his son John he leaves another plough, with eight oxen, and all appurtenances at Innesworth, and half his sheep on that Manor; also another bed, and the third part of all his pots, dishes, and other utensils in London (as above). To the Wardens of his parish-church of St. Thomas of Dodbrooke he bequeaths a set of red vestments, of good quality, complete; also, a red cope; the parishioners of Dodbrooke to pray for his soul, for his wives and sons, and for all benefactors; also, his best Breviary. To John Kaynysham, his cousin, 20s. To John Kenylyon, his chaplain, 20s. To Wm. Colver 6s. 8d. The residue, after paying his debts, to be given to a priest, or priests, to say Mass in Dodbrooke Church, and receive for their stipend eight marks a year, provided that Mass were always said for his anchorite, giving herself continually to prayer, (Anacorite mee continuo oratrici), and that his servants were remembered according to their deserts and length of service.

Executors:—Rd. Champernoun, his son; Rd. Vaysy, R. of Bridford; Rd. Tryby, R. of Newton Ferrers; and Henry Drewe.

Proved, 3 April, 1419, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

Summa bonorum: £200 4s. 2d. ob.

LX.—Richard Palmer, Canon of Exeter, and R. of Ugborough.

Dated at Clyst Episcopi, 2 May, 1415. i, 334.

He commends his soul to God Almighty, Who redeemed it with His Precious Blood; his body to sacred burial. To his parish-church of Ugborough he leaves a new Missal, a new Gradual, and another of some age; also, a new Manual, a book called Pars Oculi, a Legenda Sanctorum, and two Processionals, to be kept in the Church, for use in Divine Worship, as long as they should last. To John Palmer, his brother, residing in the parish of Clyfton (Dioc. of Lichfield), he bequeaths 100s. To Thos. Waddon, his clerk, 40s. To each executor, if willing to serve, six marks; and they were to devote to pious uses any residue.

Executors:—Roger Bolter, and John Schute, chaplains.

Witnesses:—Walter Boway, notary-publick, R. of St. John-in-Cornwall; Thos. Greyston, R. of Farringdon; and Robert atte Wylle, clerk.

Proved, 17 April, 1419, before the Bishop, at Clyst.

ADDITIONAL NOTES TO THE WILLS:—

No. III., p. 379 (note 2).—It is possible that 'ovis' is a clerical error for 'ovi' (in which case vocat' would, of course, stand for 'vocati'). Mr. Greenfield sends me the following extract from the Will of John Hille, of Spaxton, dated 21 Oct., 1434:—"Item, Johanni, filio et heredi meo, unum ciphum de uno ovo vocato a Grypeseg, cum coopertorio de argento et deaurato."

No. IX., p. 383.—"unum quaternum optimum de organis'." This is obscure. Perhaps it means "an excellent quire of Organ-musick." I find "Liber Organicus" in the Inventory of 1506.

No. X., p. 384, line 5.—"vnam gownam de frise vocat' Mouster Villers." This word appears as 'musterdevyllys' in the will of Wm. Holcombe (Redmayne's Registr. fol. 27), quoted by Oliver; who states, in a note, that it "sometimes takes the grotesque form of mustard-devils, and is said to be a corruption of moitié-de-velours." "It has been plausibly derived," he adds, "from Montivilliers in Normandy (called Moustier Villiers in the 15th Century), the seat of a supposed manufactory" (Monasticon, p. 278, note). Line 21—"de liberata," i.e. "of the livery" (see p. 400, line 5, and p. 421, ad finem). Line 40—"de carde"; see p. 413, note 2. Line 44—"de Curie," i.e. "on Cookery." (W. D. M.)

No. XLII., p. 405.—"volo quod faciant me sepeliri infra triduum post mortem meam, vel quarto die de mane, ad ultimum." It is singular that Tregrisiow, who alone of our Testators gives instructions in his Will for a speedy burial, should be the only person of whom it is recorded in this Register that he was suffered to remain unburied for an unprecedented length of time. He died 25 July, 1415 (ii, 167b, 257)—"defuncto . . . . mensis Julii die vicesima quinta ; ipsiusque corpore decimo nono [die mensis Augusti ex tunc proximo sequenti reverenter ecclesiastice tradito sepulture" (ii, 169b). Apparently "decimo nono" is a mistake for "nono,' on which day (see ii, 167b) the petition for the Election of a Dean was presented to the Bishop and granted ; and the above record proceeds thus—"licenciaque postmodum eligendi Decanum . . . . petita et obtenta, subsequenter, vicesimo tercio die ejusdem mensis Augusti"—the Chapter proceeded to the Election. Even then the interval would be a fortnight !

No. XLIV., p. 409, ad finem—"Item Janyn de coquina ; cf. p. 420, line 18.

No. XLVIII., p. 416, line 8—toutdys en ioye ; perhaps these words were worked on the hangings—a kind of motto, "always happy." Line 18.—"Pavele is perhaps a mis-spelling of paille, which in old French is sometimes spelt poele (W. D. M.) Line 33.—For casu read cas' ; perhaps, "in uno castulo."—This Testator was a daughter of Sir Giles Daubeney, knt., of Baryngton, Somerset, who died 24 June, 1386. She was thrice married : 1st to Sir Wm. Percehay of Kyton, in the parish of Holcombe-Rogus, son and heir of Sir Henry Percehay, knt., one of the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas. She was his second wife, and he died, s.p., between Feb., 1383-4, and Feb., 1386-7 ; 2nd, before April, 1390, to Sir John Hulle, knt., one of the Justices of the Court of C. P., by whom she had issue two sons and a daughter. She was his 2nd wife, and he died 24 June, 1408 ; 3rd, before Sept., 1412, to Sir Rob. Latimer, knt., of Duntish, Dorset, as his second wife, by whom she had no issue. Her 'sister Chambernon' was Katherine, who married Sir Rd. Champernowne, of Modbury.—Rd. Mille was one of the feoffees of Sir Rob. Latimer of his manors of Dewlish and Child-Okford, on his marriage with Matilda, to hold to their joint issue, with remainder to his right heirs.—Wm. Jewe, of Canonlegh, Devon, was an executor of the will of Sir John Hulle, Matilda's former husband, who settled on her the manors of Wellysford and Bickleigh (B. W. G.)

LISTS OF PERSONS ORDAINED.

The figures correspond with the numbers in the above List.

Where more references than one are given, it must be understood that two or more persons bearing the same name are mentioned once ; not the same person more than once ; e.g., "Smyth, John," with ten references, stands for ten persons called "John Smyth," who were admitted ad primam tonsuram by Bishop Stafford, and at different times.—An asterisk signifies "Illegitimus, cum quo Dominus dispensavit."—"L. AN ITINERARY OF BISHOP STAFFORD (1395-1419).

1395.[1]

London[2]—Continuously from June 20 to March 24, except March 18, when the Bishop was at his manor of Horseley, where, apparently, he remained till he returned to London on the 24th.

1396.

London—All the year with rare exceptions; I find him at Horseley April 1; Aug. 8 and 24, and Oct. 8; at "Calis," Nov. 1, and again at Horseley on the same day.

1397.

London—All the year, except towards its close, when I find him "apud Salopiam" Jan. 31, and Feb. 2, 3, and 4. The next date is Feb. 16—London; on the 27th he was "in quodam Hospicio Oxonie, Battysynne vulgariter nuncupato;" on March 15 in London; and on the 19th and 20th in Bristol.

1398.

London—All the year, with occasional exceptions. He was at Coventry on Sept. 15; at St. Frideswide's Oxford, Jan. 29; at Daventry some time between Feb. 3 and 28 (the day of the month is omitted).

APPENDIX.

[I am indebted to Mr. Dymond for access to the following interesting documents, preserved in the Chest of the Parish of St. Kerrian, Exeter (the Church of which has been destroyed). The Will of John Wilford belongs to our period, and he was a brother to William Wilford (or Wilsford), whose Will is given at page 401. The Inventory also belongs to Bp. Stafford's time].

I.

In Dei Nomine, Amen.—Penultimo die Februarii, Anno Domini Millesimo cccc^mo decimo septimo, Ego, Johannes Wilsford, civis Civitatis Exoniensis, compos mentis, condo testamentum meum in hunc modum. Inprimis lego et commendo animam meam Deo Omnipotenti Qui eam Suo Sanguine precioso redemit, et corpus meum sacre sepulture. Item, do et lego Johanni Melbury et Thome Montegu, custodibus Ecclesie Sancti Kyrany, Exonie, unam acram terre mee cum pertinenciis in Velewill, jacentem extra Portam Borialem Civitatis Exoniensis predicte, in suburbiis ejusdem Civitatis, inter terram nuper Rogeri Askerswille, quam Willelmus Shaplegh tenet, in parte occidentali, et terram nuper Johannis Sleghe in parte orientali, ac terram vocatam Starcombe in parte boriali, et venellam ducentem versus Starcombe in parte australi. Item, do et lego eisdem Johanni Melbury et Thome, custodibus predictis, unum toftum meum cum gardino adjacente cum pertinenciis, super montem Sancti Davidis extra Portam predictam, in suburbiis ejusdem Civitatis, inter tenementum Roberti Hoigge in parte australi, et terram Johannis Lange in parte boriali, et viam regiam ducentem versus Couelegh in parte orientali, habendam et tenendam predictam terram, toftum, et gardinum, cum omnibus arboribus in eisdem terra, tofto, et gardino crescentibus, simul cum omnibus et singulis suis pertinenciis et proficuis, prefatis custodibus, et eorum successoribus qui pro tempore fuerint, a die confeccionis presencium usque ad finem termini nonaginta et novem annorum proximo sequencium complendam, reddendis inde annuatim capitalibus Dominis feodorum illorum redditibus et serviciis que inde debentur; sub tali condicione tamen, quod predicti custodes, et eorum successores qui pro tempore fuerint, teneant anniversarium meum in predicta Ecclesia Sancti Kyrani annuatim semper die Martis proximo ante Festum Kyrani Episcopi, cum Rectore ejusdem Ecclesie et cum quinque aliis presbiteris et duobus clericis: ita quod Rector inde habeat, si presens fuerit tam ad exequias quam ad Missam, iiijd., et quilibet dictorum presbiterorum sic presens iijd; et quilibet dictorum clericorum sic presens ijd.; et pro lumine ibidem ardente iiijd., et quilibet custos dicte Ecclesie ibidem presens pro ejus labore iijd. Et post finem termini predictorum nonaginta et novem annorum volo quod predicta terra toftum et gardinum cum pertinenciis vendantur per custodes dicte Ecclesie qui pro tempore fuerint, et pecunia inde proveniens volo quod ad usum dicte Ecclesie convertatur. Item, do et lego executoribus meis subscriptis omnia residua messuagia terras et tenementa mea cum pertinenciis que habeo in Civitate Exoniensi et in suburbiis ejusdem ad vendendum imperpetuum; et de pecunia inde proveniente volo quod omnia debita mea primo et principaliter sint plenarie persoluta. Et de residuis ejusdem pecunie, postquam predicta debita mea sic fuerint plenarie persoluta, volo quod Walterus Leye habeat inde decem marcas sterlingorum, si tantum adtunc remanserit; et hoc sub condicione sequente, videlicet quod executores Thome Poleworthy,] Bakere, pro predicta summa decem marcarum totum debitum quod idem Walterus eis debet pro adquisicione illius tenementi nuper predicti Thome Poleworthy, quod de predictis executoribus nuper perquisivit, sibi totaliter condonare et relaxare voluerint infra triginta dies post vendicionem et deliberacionem eorundem messuagii terrarum et tenementorum meorum predictorum. Et si predicti executores Thome Poleworthy hoc facere noluerint, volo quod executores mei infra scripti inter aliud residuum bonorum meorum predictas decem marcas bene et fideliter disponant, prout eis melius videbitur expedire. Residuum vero bonorum meorum superius non legatorum lego executoribus meis ad inveniendum unum presbiterum celebrantem in Ecclesia predicta pro anima mea et animabus illorum quibus teneor, quamdiu dictum residuum durare poterit. Ad istud vero testamentum bene et fideliter exequendum, ordino, facio, et constituo executores meos Thomam Cooke, clericum, et Edwardum Langynow.

In dorso :—

Probatum fuit presens testamentum in plena Curia Civitatis Exoniensis, ibidem tenta die Lune proximo post Festum Sancti Georgii Martiris, anno regni Regis Henrici Quinti post Conquestum sexto [25 April, 1418], coram Johanne Cooke, Maiore ejusdem Civitatis, Johanne Clerk, Willelmo Shaplegh, Nicholao Trelauny, et Stephano Butteford, ballivis dicte Civitatis, per sacramentum Willelmi Shaplegh, Johannis Melbury, et Ricardi Lawe. Et super hoc facta fuit proclamacio generalis quod si aliquis pro se habeat vel dicere sciat contra testamentum predictum, veniat infra annum et diem, jus suum prosecuturus, si voluerit ; super quo preceptum est evidenter Curie predicte liberare sacramentum supra legatariorum, salvo jure cujuscumque.

There are two other copies of this Will in the Parish Chest ; one, a shorter Will endorsed—"Est aliud probatum" ; the other corresponding with the one printed above, and still retaining the seal of the Official of the Archdeacon of Exeter, somewhat mutilated. It is endorsed as follows :—

Sexto die mensis Marcii, Anno Domini Millesimo quadringentesimo decimo septimo [1417-18], probatum fuit presens testamentum coram nobis, Officiali Domini Archidiaconi Exoniensis, in Civitate Exoniensi, in qua quidem Civitate infrascriptus testator decessit, et per nos approbatum, et pro eodem testamento pronunciatum, in quo Thomas Coke, clericus, et Edwardus Langynow sunt executores nominati ; et postea, decimo septimo die mensis Aprilis, Anno Domini Millesimo quadringentesimo decimo octavo, dicto Edwardo coram nobis ibidem personaliter comparenti, in forma juris jurato, administracionem bonorum dicti defuncti infra ambitum Archidiaconatus predicti commisimus. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum Officii nostri presentibus apposuimus. Datum supradicto decimo septimo die mensis Aprilis, Anno Domini Millesimo cccc^{mo} decimo octavo.*

[The MS. is a little damaged, and one or two words are consequently illegible. From "Item, j scalam" to the end it is in a different handwriting, and evidently the work of a comparatively illiterate scribe.]

Hec indentura facta Anno Domini Mill^{o} cccc^{o} xvij^{o} inter parochianos parochie

* Sir William Pole includes William Wilford among the "men of best note, and wch have either in warre or peace bine employed in this countye," and tells us (p. 85) that he "made saile into Britaine wth div's ships of Devonshire, and in revenge of the harmes done by the Lord Cassils, hee tooke fortie ships laden wth oyle & wine, beside other exployts done by him, 4 of H. 4." Robert Wilford, his Father, was Mayor of Exeter no less than twelve times in the course of the years 1375—95 ; and William himself was Mayor in 1401 and four times afterwards, John was never Mayor ; but he was one of the four Bailiffs (elected annually with the Mayor) in 1399, 1401, 1404, and 1412. It is curious that in these two contemporaneous Wills the Family Name should be given in two distinct forms—William Wilford—John Wilsford. Izacke, in his Antiquities of Exeter, adopts the latter form. So does Jenkins ; but he only copied Izacke. I suppose Izacke must have seen these St. Kerian MSS., in another of which (dated 1384) Robert Wylsford (sic) occurs, and in yet another (dated 1398), William Wilsforde (sic). In all other instances, so far as I can learn (and the name occurs frequently), it is spelt Wilford. The "s" in these St. Kerian MSS. is exceedingly clearly written ; but I cannot help thinking, though Isacke accepted it, that it must have been a clerical error.

Sancti Kyrany, Civitatis Exoniensis, ex una parte, et custodes ejusdem Ecclesie ex altera, testatur quod predicti custodes receperunt conjuntim (sic) in suam custodiam omnia ornamenta et jocalia in hac indentura subscripta et intitulata a predictis parochianis, a Festo Omnium Sanctorum usque ad idem Festum proximum sequens. ,, 36 (note 1) : here, and in a few other instances, the Anglo-Saxon character ȝ is improperly used by the scribe to represent the letter z. Where the MS. is quoted, it has been strictly followed, throughout ; and it seems necessary to direct attention to this clerical error.
,, 59 (also 155) for Clonenburgh read Clovenburgh ; the "n" seemed the more probable rendering of the ambiguous character which stands for "n" and "u" indifferently, as bringing the word closer to its modern form Clannaborough, and it was adopted by Dr. Oliver, in his Taxatio of Pope Nicholas IV. In Fox's Register however, I find the word spelt with a "v," which seems to settle the question.
